INDEX TO ADVERTISEMENTS AND TABLE OF CONTENTS—PAGES TWO AND THREE

Farenwald Says: His Youngest House Is His Oldest

YOU who know Mr. Farenwald of Roslyn, Pa., know how he can jam a short sentence full of facts.

Not that the facts themselves are always right there, but that what he says makes you see plain as day exactly what he has purposely left unsaid.

Last week, for instance, Mr. Fontaine, one of our Philadelphia men, was walking with him around his range.

All but one of the eleven houses are Lord & Burnham construction.

Suddenly Mr. Farenwald pointed to the odd house of another build and remarked: "That's the youngest house on the range, but it's the oldest."

Of course it wouldn't do for me to say anything more than he said. Only perhaps I might add that the house he said was the oldest, is six years younger than the youngest Lord & Burnham house.

It is also nine years younger than the oldest Lord & Burnham house. And the oldest Lord & Burnham house is younger than that youngest other house.

From which facts, wouldn't you conclude that Mr. Farenwald believes it pays to pay for Lord & Burnham houses?

White Trucks

100,000 Miles of Service

MALANDRE BROTHERS, New York Florists, have operated a White Truck for four years. During this time it has traveled more than 100,000 miles.

"We have found our White Truck entirely dependable and economical," these owners say. "It is still in excellent condition and apparently is good for a long period of service. We have found the truck extremely valuable in our business, since it has materially reduced the cost of making our deliveries."

Actual records show that White Trucks do more work at lower cost and for a longer period of time. This accounts for the large number of Whites in the service of Florists the country over.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

WAITING FOR THE TRAIN AT ALVIN

To the little Texas town of Alvin the trade's interest attaches once a year in May, as the center of the district whence come, within a few days, many carloads of jasmine buds, distributed to florists all over the country. This article gives a glimpse of the jasmine industry.

IT is believed that the first commercial grower of jasmine buds in Texas was M. V. Wright, one of the earlier Houston florists. His field was located at Alvin, probably to take advantage of the unusually heavy dews that place has in the early spring. His field was planted about 1887 and consisted entirely of the variety Gardenia jasminoides (G. florida, Linn.).

About three years later Major George W. Durant, who died only a few months ago, planted about double the Wright acreage, in a larger variety, to which the name grandiflora was applied.

In 1894 C. W. Benson planted an acreage somewhat larger than the Wright field and these three fields constituted the total of the Texas acreage for several years thereafter.

Fifty Acres Now.

At the present time there are about fifty acres devoted to this crop at Alvin and vicinity, most of the business being done by about ten firms, all of whom have other interests, as the jasmine crop is one which occupies their energies only a part of the year, the shipments covering no more than four weeks, frequently less than three, and principally centering before Memorial day.

The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a photograph made at the railroad station at Alvin on the evening of May 25 and shows a scene typical of the shipping season. At the moment the camera was used there were twenty-two express trucks lined up for the northbound train, each truck piled high, the shipment consisting practically all of jasmine buds for the Memorial day trade of florists all over the northern half of the United States. Early in the history of the business the Alvin shippers obtained "general special" (now second-class) express rates, the only cut flowers to which this concession ever was made.

Alvin's Advantages.

Just why Alvin has become the cape jasmine center of the country is not apparent, as there are many other places which possess all the apparent requisites of soil and climate, but Alvin, located only an hour by rail south of Houston, enjoys all that great railroad center's advantages in transportation. There are seventeen railroad lines radiating from Houston, with through express car service to all the principal markets.

In the beginning the shippers of cape jasmine buds sent their crop to wholesale commission florists in the larger cities of the north, but they found the method uncertain. In the beginning it worked well, but as the greenhouse business developed the jasmine shippers with increasing frequency hit heavily stocked markets. In such conditions the jasmine shippers suffered: As they are heard from only a few days in the year, their shipments, highly prized in time of scarcity, in time of glut were almost sure to be set aside for the pushing of the flowers of growers who ship through a greater portion of the year. It was neither unnatural nor open to criticism, but it resulted in the jasmines sometimes failing to realize express charges and in forcing the Alvin shippers to sell direct to the trade. This they have been doing for some years, long enough to have established connections with retail florists all over the country, and only surplus stock is sent to commission houses.

Alvin, rather nearer the Gulf than to Houston, has a rich soil and an early spring. The bulk of the crop is reasonably sure to make the northern Memorial day—were it not the industry would disappear, as the prices received after May 30 seldom are high enough to make the crop profitable.

Varieties Grown.

The cape jasmine is Gardenia jasminoides, Ellis, which Bailey makes synonymous with G. florida, Linn., by which name the Alvin growers know it. Bailey thinks grandiflora belongs in the group with G. florida vars. major and majestica. Of grandiflora an Alvin grower, C. W. Benson, says: "I am sure this is the variety found in Asia about the middle of the last century by Fortune, and named for him, Fortunei, Hort. (Fortuniana, Lindl.). Why this variety has become more popular among florists than G. florida is an enigma, except that the season of Fortunei usually hits Memorial day trade more closely than G. florida. But there are seasons when G. florida should be used and is needed to help out on a late crop of Fortunei."

"If I were a florist doing business in northern states," continues Mr. Benson, "I should consider well grown G. florida blooms preferable to Fortunei, for, while the bloom is not quite so large, the foliage is much more beautiful than Fortunei. The color is a deeper green and more wax-like than Fortunei. This combination of the wax-like flower and wax-like leaves is simply irresistible. I have never seen blooms of the winter-flowering variety, Veitchii, as grown in the north, but am sure there can be no possible comparison between Veitchii and G. florida and am under the impression that the bloom of the latter is about twice the size of Veitchii, while the foliage of Veitchii which I have seen is not attractive."

A Bit of Culture.

Gardenia jasminoides is a tender shrub four to six feet high, with thick, glossy, dark green evergreen foliage. It propagates readily from cuttings and in the Alvin district the bushes are grown in rows across broad fields, the plants having been set about eight feet apart, which permits cultivating with the plow as well as the hoe. The flowers usually begin to open about the middle of May. The cutting is done in the bud and the work gives employment during the season to as many girls and boys as are available in the town. Cutting is begun as early in the morning as it is light enough to see, and only the buds in the right stage of development are taken, the field being gone over four or five times a day. Even then a considerable part of the crop is lost, as the buds pop open and are not suitable for shipping.

Too Early or Too Late?

In the days of late April and early May there always is great perturbation among the jasmine growers and shippers at Alvin, an uneasiness which communicates itself to large numbers of the townsfolk who annually go into the fields to help cut the crop. The cause is the uncertainty of the weather; will the crop be too early or too late for Memorial day? Either contingency would be serious in any ordinary season.

April 25 C. W. Benson said: "I took special pains today to visit all the fields and find that most of them are later than at any previous season in the last twenty-six years. About thirty per cent of the plants will not produce any buds for Memorial day use and at least fifty per cent will not start before May 20, in my opinion. A small portion will start May 10 and about forty per cent by May 17 or 18, which is just about right for heavy orders to forward May 22 to 27 inclusive, according to distance they are to travel.

"To offset this backward condition, which is caused, I think, by a combination of drought last year and lack of cultivation due to scarcity of labor, the fields which will produce are carrying about 100 per cent more buds than last year. Consequently, with a continuation of heavy dews we are getting now and our usual rainfall, the output of buds available may be nearly as large as last year or the year before. We had nearly seven inches of rain in one week the latter part of March and the ground in the cultivated fields is now black with moisture two inches below the surface and this can be retained for several weeks."

May 2, Carlisle & Sons made this statement: "Warmer weather and a fine rain are bringing the jasmine crop along rapidly. We believe there will be more fine stock than ever before for Memorial day."

Two Seasons' Prices.

You may have heard the story of the Indian in the northern woods who was asked why he had doubled the price of a pail of wild huckleberries: "Hell of a war on some place." So the Alvin shippers, along with everybody else, have raised their prices this season. Years ago they did what other florists have been unable to do: They established standard grades, used by all the shippers, and they adopted fairly uniform prices. This is how it stands, prices per thousand:

Grade	Stems	1918	1919
B	under 8 inches	$ 6.00	$ 8.00
A	8 to 12 inches	10.00	14.00
X	12 to 18 inches	15.00	20.00

There is another factor which will affect the cost to the consumer who puts a jasmine wreath on the grave of some loved one May 30, for of course the retail florist will pass all the extras on to his customer. It is the increased express charges. The government took over the express service since the last Alvin crop moved and has made two advances in rates, amounting to about thirty per cent.

Length of Stem.

There is one interesting point in connection with the jasmine business which has never been discussed between grower and retailer. It is the length of stem. "While in Dubuque at Memorial day several years ago," said C. W. Benson, "the florists there showed me why they could not use a 4-inch to 6-inch stem to advantage in making up work, but except for altar vases and similar uses I cannot see the advantage of a greater length of stem than eight to twelve inches and, now that express rates are higher, the additional weight of stems twelve to eighteen inches in length will add, on an average, about $3 per thousand to the transportation cost. Of course, we must try to grow what our customers demand. By pruning, thorough tillage, etc., we can make our fields produce about 10,000 blooms to the acre, carrying 24 to 30-inch stems, but I have never urged any of my customers to use a longer stem than eight to twelve inches, although we can make more money growing the longer stems at higher prices."

It has been suggested that if retailers will make known their preferences as to length of stem, the growers will undertake to supply the demand, but it seems probable that this already has been done and is unconsciously reflected in the present output. The growers must never have felt much actual need of longer stock than their 12 to 18-inch stems or it would be reflected in their standard grades and price list. As a matter of fact, previous years' price lists showed a XX grade, 18 to 36-inch stems, at about one-third higher price than the next shorter grade, but it has practically disappeared from the offers, evidently because little called for. The summing up of the season's orders on the part of any of the shippers would serve to show the percentage of each grade now wanted.

This is the Cape Jasmine, Gardenia Jasminoides.

AS IT LOOKS TO HOLLANDERS.

European growers whose products will be excluded from the United States after June 1, by the operation of Quarantine No. 37, are having a great deal of difficulty in accepting the sincerity of the act; to them it looks as though the Democrats have in this instance totally eclipsed the protection ideas of the Republicans as exemplified by the tariff.

The following is by C. M. Grullemans, Sr., of the well known Holland firm of J. J. Grullemans & Son:

"I wish to say a few words about the American restrictions on trees, shrubs and some kinds of bulbs. I should like to place the following questions before the Federal Horticultural Board of the United States: Why are gladiolus bulbs excluded? Is this because a good number of these are grown in their own country? Is this to protect their own trade? Why are Spanish iris, ixias, scillas, babianas, spiræas and hundreds of other bulbous sorts excluded? Did anyone ever sell a cleaner, nicer, brighter lot of bulbs? Surely these do not bring insects into the country. Why are these excluded? Glad to know.

"Regarding Boskoop stock, since the last hundred years the Boskoop nurserymen sent their trees, shrubs and plants over to England, France, Germany, Austria, Sweden, Denmark, Norway and Russia. Has either one of these countries ever complained of these so-called insects? Never. Well, then, let them play open cards in the States and say, 'Look here, Mr. Hollander, keep your stuff at home because you compete with us.' Let them admit in the States openly that the Boskoop stuff is better and cheaper, etc., but do not hide this protection system under a false name. This is surely unworthy of so big a country as the United States."

POPULARITY OF PERENNIALS.

Both as Plants and Cut Flowers.

Probably no plants are advancing more in public favor than are the hardy perennials. Not only are perennials used extensively as cut flowers, but, in my humble opinion, no flower garden or landscape would be complete without a space for some of these plants. By careful selection of the different varieties, flowers may be had continuously from early in April until well along in autumn. Even in early winter, when the cold blasts are sweeping the fields, hardy chrysanthemums and Helianthus Maximilianii remain in bloom, their heads bending in submission to the oncoming winter months.

Another feature which adds to the popularity of this grand class of plants is the great difference in the height of the varieties, ranging from six inches to seven feet. On account of this divergence in height, they can be artistically arranged in the form of picturesque scenery.

Tall, Medium and Dwarf.

Among the tall-growing varieties that I would mention are the bocconia, helianthus, anchusa, aconitum, hibiscus, boltonia, hardy aster, Campanula pyramidalis, eulalia, hollyhock, rudbeckia, liatris, etc.

Among those of medium height are the heliopsis, gypsophila, gaillardia, hardy chrysanthemum, delphinium, aquilegia, coreopsis, phlox, iris, euphorbia, pentstemon, monarda, lythrum, etc.

Then come the dwarf varieties, many of which are useful as border plants. These comprise the alyssum, iberis, sedum, veronica, primula, cerastium, plumbago, saxifraga, alpine aster, armeria, hardy pink, pachysandra, Phlox subulata and, last but not least, Myosotis palustris, with its tiny heads of beautiful, delicate blue flowers, peeping out as if saying in their own language, "Forget-me-not." Thos. J. Murphy.

"DO IT WITH THE GARDEN."

A slogan for florists who use their greenhouses for the growing of vegetable plants is suggested by Alfred Engelmann, of the Engelmann Greenhouses, Maryville, Mo. This slogan, "Do It with the Garden," Mr. Engelmann believes should prove as valuable to the growers of vegetables as "Say It with Flowers" is to those who have flowers to sell.

"As so many of the florists' establishments have taken up the growing of vegetable plants as a profitable side line in season, why not have a slogan to push and develop this business, along the same lines as 'Say It with Flowers'?" asks Mr. Engelmann. "We have originated and are using the slogan, 'Do It with the Garden.' This slogan is easily adaptable to many different sorts of advertising of vegetable plants and the readers of The Review are welcome to use it in any way they see fit. Something of this kind, if persistently and intelligently followed up, will surely pay."

The Engelmann firm has been using the slogan in advertisements in the newspapers of Maryville. Here is the way one of the advertisements reads:

"Do It with the Garden." Raise your own vegetables for the table and for canning and derive the benefit of the pleasure and profit this will mean to you. Aim for satisfaction and results. Set out Engelmann's greenhouse-grown tomato, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, eggplant, pepper, watermelon, muskmelon and sweet potato plants. You will find them superior to ordinary plants in many respects. One satisfied customer tells another and we want every garden lover who never has gardened with Engelmann's greenhouse-grown plants to try at least a few of the different kinds and get acquainted with their many good points.

The results of the advertising have been extremely satisfactory, according to Mr. Engelmann.

South Bend, Ind.—W. D. Rettic is a strong advocate of maintaining the present standard of prices and is positive they can be obtained more easily by a little explanation to the intending purchaser. A choice line of spring stock was noted.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

EASTER IN THE STORES.

The Easter reports make it appear that this year's scarcity of lilies did little harm to the retailers. It may be, indeed, that it did them good. Nearly all the stores were able to procure a few pots of the typical Easter flower, but it did not predominate in their displays as it has done in other seasons. The result was that a pleasing variety was lent to the stock. There are many retailers who believe that the Easter business was benefited by the greater variety of the offerings, of which the accompanying illustrations are typical. These are reproduced from photographs made on the evening of Good Friday, by artificial light, in the store of W. J. Smyth, Chicago. It is to be regretted that, for contrast, pictures are not available of the store as it appeared at closing time when the Easter morning rush was over. Practically every plant was gone and Mr. Smyth reports it to have been the largest Easter in his many years of experience at that location.

AN ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN.

Considerable newspaper advertising is being done by the florists of Waterbury, Conn., especially by Ryan & Powers, which firm has been conducting a systematic advertising campaign, using display advertisements as a medium. The advertising has resulted in several notices in the newspapers and articles on flowers, which are considered valuable.

Preceding Easter, Ryan & Powers began an advertising campaign of a general nature, using small display advertisements suggesting flowers for various purposes. These advertisements were attractively arranged and an artistic border was placed about each one. The city authorities of Waterbury were pushing a "city beautiful" campaign at the time these advertisements were appearing and the firm suggested shrubs and flowers as useful in this connection. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," was used freely in the advertisements, appearing in practically all of them.

Advertising for Easter business began with Ryan & Powers over a week before the holiday. Special advertisements were used, calling the attention of the public to Easter and suggesting uses for flowers in connection. As a climax to the Easter advertising, five firms published a full-page coöperative advertisement April 17. These five firms were Saxe & Floto, Ryan & Powers, A. S. Nodine, W. F. Beerbaum and Leary.

That this publicity helped business greatly is believed by George T. Ryan, who says that his firm and other florists of Waterbury did a mammoth business Easter, far surpassing former years. He says that he attributes the increase not only to the display advertising, but to the publicity given the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," by the newspaper writers.

A VICTORY LOAN DISPLAY.

With the Victory loan in mind, the Bell Floral Co., Temple Tex., recently arranged a window display that attracted considerable attention and brought the company some good advertising in the way of newspaper mentions.

"On one side of the window," says R. M. McDaniel, sales manager of the company, "we made New York harbor, with Long Island and the mainland in sand. We used tin foil for the water and were able to bring out the waves finely by crumpling it, even better than we had expected. The Statue of Liberty was holding a ribbon which extended across the Atlantic ocean to a transport loaded with soldiers, in the port of Brest, France, just ready to sail for America. On the ribbon were the words, 'Victory loan' in gold letters, while a small part of the ribbon was colored blue, representing the local quota of the Victory loan. The Victory loan ribbon was pulling the transport across the Atlantic to America and the idea was to show that if we fell down locally, the Victory loan would break.

"Back of Brest were the trenches, barbed wire entanglements, shell holes, tree stumps, trucks, Red Cross cars and ammunition wagons, while Red Cross nurses waited on the wounded as they were brought into a hospital situated in a grove of trees back of the firing line. Wounded soldiers, the Red Cross nurses, ambulances and doctors were shown about the rest camp and hospital. Near the seashore and just below the hospital were aeroplanes, just ready to make flights, while others were to be seen undergoing repairs in the great hangars. On the sea were flying boats giving information to the commanders of the ships lying just off shore.

"The window drew a large crowd from early morning until after closing time, so we feel well repaid for the small expense of decorating."

Mr. McDaniel and Louis Cregg Talley, the latter also with the Bell company, did the work which resulted in the display.

THE SPIDER AND THE FLY.

(New Version.)

BY ARLINGTON.

"Will you walk into my greenhouse?"
Said the florist (he was "fly");
"'Tis the best stocked floral greenhouse
In these parts, you will espy.
We have flowers of all descriptions,
Plants and blooms for beauty's eye;
I am sure that we can please you
And the prices are not high.

"Flowers are here to suit the fancies
Of the bridesmaid and the bride;
Carnations, freesias, roses,
Violets, sprays and more beside;
Myrtle, heather, Black-eyed Susan,
Wand'ring Jew and daisies pied;
Daffodils and bright primroses,
Marigolds and London Pride.

"When friends are sick, you strive to cheer them;
What so fine to charm the eye
As a pot of crimson tulips
With a card, 'For sympathy'?
Here are wreaths for a bereavement,
Pillows, crosses by the score;
And whatever be your choice, ma'am,
You will surely come for more.

"Let your eye roam round those benches;
Does not every prospect please?
Was King Solomon in his glory
E'er arrayed like one of these?
See these lilies, white and spotless,
Fair and pure as driven snow;
Can the heart or mind of mortal
Further for its gospel go?

"Flowers are here for each occasion,
Grand or humble, grave or gay—
For funerals, birthdays, weddings,
Christmas, Easter, Mothers' day.
Thank you, madam; I am certain
You will ne'er regret your choice;
Flowers are gifts that Nature offers
And it's well to heed her voice."

SHADING GREENHOUSES.

Can you inform us through your valuable columns what method is best for coating glass of greenhouses, as the heat in spring and summer becomes so intense that the plants require to be shaded? Is there any mixture which could be sprayed on where the house is high and hard to reach with a brush? Also, should the mixture be applied inside or out and, if inside, could it be sprayed off the plants without injury to them? Any information which you may give us will be greatly appreciated. S. J. & S.—Ont.

A large percentage of the growers use as uncommendable a material as common mud for shading the greenhouses, but of course it has to be renewed after each rain and hastens the day when the bars must be repainted. A far better shade is ordinary lime wash, to which some salt has been added. It makes it stick better.

A shading material which has many friends among the private gardeners is made of equal parts of white flour and tallow, to which is added half as much whiting as flour. The whiting is mixed with cold water and added to the other two ingredients after they have been heated enough to melt the tallow. The article known as Brunswick green, obtainable at drug stores, sometimes is added. This shade is applied warm, with a brush.

The lime shade sometimes is put on with a long-handled brush, but more often is sprayed. All shading is put on the outside of the glass; we never heard of shading the inside of a house.

WREATHS FOR SOLDIERS.

Memorial day this year, more than any other holiday, should be observed, not only in the United States, but throughout the world. It is a day already dedicated to soldiers and strictly observed in some sections of the United States. In other parts of the country, however, it is sadly neglected. Why seek to create new holidays if we neglect those we already have?

No doubt we shall have many more celebrations over the great victory, and perhaps an international Thanksgiving day. Are we to forget those who made all this possible? Our governments were great enough to accomplish all that they attempted in war. Surely the task of placing a victory wreath on the grave of every man who fell in battle is not asking too much.

Needless to say, each country will have its monuments. These will, no doubt, be beautiful and the best money can buy. We may even have beautiful cemeteries in France and other countries. Still, once we have built them, will we not forget them as in the years gone by?

If our governments proclaim Memorial day a legal holiday, and set aside sufficient money for the purpose, our public schools could attend to all the necessary arrangements. And what a lesson for the school children!

To a certain extent, the florists' trade is dependent on sentiment. Memorial day is one that touches the most tender memories and, without dwelling too much on the commercial side, it is one day the florists should endeavor to persuade the public to observe. People will not forget to honor the immediate members of their own families and, when we stop to consider the price that our brave soldiers paid to preserve democracy and make the world a fitting place to live in, surely all of us will not hesitate to honor them in death. J. A. Canon.

A RETAILER'S VIEW.

No one in the trade can recall a year during which the market has offered so many hard and unusual conditions as it has during 1918 and 1919, to date. Excepting the growers, the market has been under a continual strain. The retailer is pretty well satisfied. But the satisfaction which should rightly have been his, has found a resting place elsewhere—in the growers' bank accounts. The retailer (the writer is one of them) has borne the strain and made a little money, but not the percentage due him on the volume of sales he has made and the end of the rough road is not yet in sight.

During the last year a greatly increased capital has been necessary, in order to carry on during the rough-and-tumble for stock. Premium prices have been paid and a minimum percentage of profit reaped, in order to hold the public good to the "Say It with Flowers."

Many of the smaller shops have been obliged to eliminate boxes and wax paper, even going so far as to resort to tissue paper on pot plants, which is an economy unthought of a year ago. Not only is this true of the smaller shops, but in the largest ones also an economy has taken place. The boxes are not entirely eliminated, but a cheaper grade put in. It is not only on boxes, which I mention as an instance, but all down the line, from making larger sales to refusing delivery on small ones, the tendency has been to cut down expense in order to come out right.

It has been well proven that, with the public, there is a limit to everything. The president of a popular packing house in this city stated some years ago that "the people will pay just so much for a thing and, when you have reached that mark, be wise enough to stop, if you wish to continue in business." The trade realizes the truth of this.

For several years back, at Christmas, carnations in popular stores sold for $3 per dozen. The wholesale price was rarely over $12 per hundred. The public paid this price and carnations moved a-flying. Last Christmas the wholesale price reached $20 and the popular stores made an effort to stage them at $4 per dozen. This price proved a good one to steer buyers to plants. Perhaps $4 per dozen may seem an alarming price to charge, but it is not enough if they cost $18 or $20 per hundred. Thus, if the profit is not enough and the public will not pay $4 for carnations, then the goose that lays the golden egg is being strangled by Mr. Grower, who holds his product over the retail dealers' heads.

Production must be offered a premium in order to urge unusual effort, but to this offer there should be a limit. The commission house commits the sin of all sins when it raises the price of stock beyond the reach of the average buyer. The prices demanded for some grades of stock have at times been so unreasonable that comments from all concerned admitted unfairness. But the periods of such unreasonableness were so short-lived that the market repeatedly fell to these evils unwarily.

If there is but one bunch of sweet peas in the city and they are much in demand for a special occasion, would it be just for the salesman to ask $10 for them because he knew he could get it? No! But this is the kind of game the grower has played at times; and it is absolutely an unfair game to play.

The approach of Mothers' day is already causing the trade uneasiness. The thought in every retailer's mind is: "I wonder what carnations are going to bring?" He already knows what his trade will pay. The question confronting him is, what he will have to pay. Organization and united effort are capable of working marvels nowadays and perhaps in time the trade will have regulation for prices, based on cost of production and distribution. For the present, it will be expected that the grower will hold his product over the retailers' heads and gradually lower it to the one reaching the highest.

DOINGS OF THE CLUBS

CHICAGO PUTS IT OVER.

Trade's Quota Is Subscribed.

Chicago went over the top at the meeting of the Florists' Club May 1. The subscriptions then obtained carried the total above $250,000, the quota assigned to the trade as its part of the Victory loan.

The meeting was held one week ahead of the regular time, on account of Mothers' day coming so close to the regular meeting date. In spite of this change there was a good attendance and every branch of the trade was well represented.

The speaker of the evening was Lieutenant M. Parkinson, U. S. N., who saw as much action as anyone in his branch of the service. He gave a fine talk on some of the things our boys did in foreign waters and was given a rising vote of thanks and presented with a large bouquet of Russell roses.

Where Every Little Helped.

After the talk the big campaign was started to put the trade over the top. A novel idea was carried out to have the progress of the campaign clearly before everyone. A long strip of paper, which had been marked to show the trade's quota and the percentage subscribed for, was unrolled down the center of the table and a large red, white and blue ball was advanced down the strip as each sum was pledged. At 10:30 p. m., amid much acclaim, the ball was pushed under the goal, which was a gold arch at the far end of the table.

Many of the pledges were to sell for the committee, or to take, certain amounts of bonds, but there were numerous unqualified subscriptions, nearly everyone present going down for something. The principal pledges were:

team to represent Chicago at the S. A. F. convention to be held at Detroit in August.

It was decided that the club will hold a basket picnic the first Sunday in August. Another important entertainment to take place in August is the ladies' night. It will be at the Randolph hotel and there will be a good "jazz" orchestra to furnish the dance music, and many surprise features will be on the program.

THE BUFFALO BANQUET.

Penn Preaches Publicity.

Of the various social successes attained by the Buffalo Florists' Club, the banquet of April 29, held at the Statler hotel, was paramount. There was an attendance of 120. Mark Palmer, son of W. J. Palmer, was master of ceremonies.

A vase of improved Russell, staged in the center of the room, a product of John H. Dunlop, of Toronto, Canada, created much comment because of the beauty and sturdiness of the flowers. In speaking of this rose Mr. Dunlop stated that the trade may expect dissemination a year hence.

The principal speaker of the evening was Henry Penn, of Boston. Mr. Penn reviewed his own experiences and observations of the trade's needs and its progress. He laid particular stress on the need of coöperative advertising and teaching the public the value and uses of flowers. "Not long ago," he said, "a man came into my store and said: 'Penn, what are you going to soak me for a bunch of flowers?' Right there and then I thought that this idea must be overcome by all means. 'What are you going to soak me for a bunch of flowers?' It is hard to imagine people thinking that they are being 'soaked' when they enter our shops. To overcome this we must teach them the value of flowers through proper publicity. We must teach them that they have a value and not that we are 'soaking' them."

Progress Has Been Made.

Mr. Penn pointed out the progress that the trade has made during the last few years and mentioned the necessity of paying better wages, in order that the trade may encourage the attachment of efficient help.

"A glutted market," he said, "is another thing we must endeavor to overcome. The only way to do this is to advertise. Waiting for the customer has proved entirely too slow. We must create buyers to take care of the supply. Valentine's day, but a few years ago, was merely a day to send a comic postal or, at best, a neat postal card. Now it is a day on which we handle a great supply of violets and other flowers. Formerly, on Decoration day, people brought only a few flowers to the graves of their loved ones. Now it is a day on which we handle thousands of wreaths and suitable bouquets and this has been done through publicity."

Mr. Penn expressed his wish that other cities would copy after Buffalo. Start friendly little gatherings of retailers and talk over what fair prices ought to be and, in time, surely enough would realize this necessity to hold regular meetings. "The sooner one realizes the cost of doing business," he declared, "the sooner he will see the need of having established prices." After stating the cost of doing business in other lines, Mr. Penn said that in his own establishment the cost is thirty-two per cent. This percentage is higher than in other lines, but it can be lowered by creating more sales. "Think of the number of birthdays in this country," he insisted. "What will bring more cheer and sunshine into the home than flowers? Advertise the reason why flowers should be bought. Advertise the happiness they bring and the results of flowers in the home. Let the people understand flowers and they will 'Say It with Flowers.'"

How to Get the Money.

In closing, Mr. Penn expressed his wish that time may bring about a system by which the task of collecting the publicity fund will be simplified to a charge of two per cent at the wholesale houses. In this way everyone will contribute his share.

Other visitors were Fred Brown, of Cleveland; John Higgins, John Dunlop and George M. Geraghty, of Toronto, and Congressman McGregor.

Mr. Brown reviewed the progress of the Cleveland retail florists and said that "though we have had some hot arguments, we have always finished friendly and all of us had more business at Easter than we could attend to." F. P. A.

DOROTHY PERKINS AT EASTER.

The trade will be interested in noting how general the conditions at Easter were over the entire United States. On the Pacific coast the same conditions prevailed that were noted in the cities bordering the Atlantic. There were scarcely any lilies on the market and to take their place increased quantities of rambler roses and French hydrangeas were provided. The roses predominated. They were fine. It is remarkable that the roses everywhere were better than usual this Easter. As an example, the illustration on page 19 shows one of the rambler houses of Hayashi Bros., Oakland, Cal., photographed just before deliveries were started. This firm grew four houses of rambler roses. The one shown in the illustration contained nothing but Dorothy Perkins. In the four houses there were over 4,000 pot ramblers, including such varieties as Perkins, Tausendschoen, Excelsa and Hiawatha. The stock was ready exactly on time and the popularity of rambler roses in San Francisco this Easter was such that every plant was sold some days in advance of delivery.

THE GLADIOLUS

FERTILIZER FOR GLADIOLI.

I have a supply of fertilizer for which the formula, as marked on the bags, is as follows: "Nitrogen, two to three per cent; available phosphoric acid, nine to eleven per cent; potash; K_2O." Will you kindly let me know whether this fertilizer, with wood ashes added to it, will do for gladioli? Should barnyard manure also be used in conjunction with the commercial fertilizer? Please state, also, how much of the ashes should be used per 100-pound sack of the fertilizer. R. M.—Wis.

The question as to whether stable manure should be used for gladioli, or for any crop for that matter, and as to what amount should be applied, would depend entirely upon the nature of the soil. Such manure is especially desirable upon land deficient in humus and there are few soils on which it cannot be used to advantage. Unless the land has been heavily manured in recent years, it will probably be advisable to apply ten to twenty tons per acre, of well decomposed manure, which should be disked into the soil. If the tract is a clover sod or is well supplied with humus, ten tons will be sufficient per acre, provided commercial fertilizer is used with it.

The formula as given shows the amount of nitrogen and phosphoric acid, but no percentage of potash is stated. From the fact that the scarcity of potash has made it difficult to obtain and the price has almost prohibited its use in fertilizers, the amount is not likely to be more than one per cent, and this may be ignored in determining the amount of the fertilizer desirable.

A good grade of unleached hardwood ashes should contain about five per cent of potash and one and one-half per cent of phosphoric acid. Just how many pounds of wood ashes should be used per acre will depend upon the cost. Good results may be secured with 1,000 pounds per acre, and two or three times that amount would do no harm. Since the potash and phosphoric acid will not leach from the soil, they will be available for future crops if a larger amount is applied than will be used by the crop of the present year.

In connection with ten tons of stable manure, we would suggest the use of 1,000 pounds of wood ashes—hardwood, unleached—and 500 pounds of the fertilizer mentioned, per acre. Provided a good grade of unleached hardwood ashes can be obtained for not to exceed $8 or $10 per ton, as is possible in many places where wood is commonly used for fuel, we would use one ton of wood ashes per acre, with twelve tons of manure, and would not use the other fertilizer. LADIES' S. A. F.

At the St. Louis meeting a motion was made and carried that the members be required to vote, at the next annual meeting, on the question of not paying the secretary for her services, as heretofore. Mrs. H. G. Berning, Sec'y.

STARTING SPRENGERI SEED.

Being a beginner in the trade, I have trouble getting my Asparagus Sprengeri seed to sprout. Should seed be treated before sowing? I have had seed in sand six weeks and there is no sign of sprouting yet. I wish to buy some standard works on greenhouse flowers, dealing with management and cultural methods. H. S.—Tex.

Seeds of Asparagus Sprengeri are sometimes several weeks in germinating, as may be said of asparagus seeds in general. It is a good plan to sow them in trays of light soil, covering the seeds to a depth of about one-quarter of an inch with the soil, and pressing the latter down firmly. Place the trays in a warm greenhouse, giving a night temperature of 60 to 65 degrees, and keep the soil moist. If the seed is fresh, it should germinate satisfactorily.

One of the most practical books for a beginner in the florists' business is "Greenhouse Management," by L. R. Taft. This may be purchased from the publishers of The Review. W. H. T.

Albany, N. Y.—"If there were no mistakes made, there would be no use for the eraser on the end of a pencil," observed W. C. Gloeckner, of this city, in referring to the recent flower show of the Albany florists at the Albany Cut Flower Exchange. "My idea," continued Mr. Gloeckner, "was to hold it at the Ten Eyck hotel, where it would be viewed by our best people. As a trade exhibit, it was a success." Easter business was good here, fully up to expectation. The absence of azaleas was noticeable, there being only three fine plants to represent this leader. Hydrangeas and roses in pots sold readily.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Milwaukee Florists' Club has issued invitations for a ball at the Calumet Club May 15.

Columbus, O.—The Celina Greenhouse Co. has been issued incorporation papers. Capital stock is $25,000 and W. T. Palmer is named as incorporator.

Evansville, Ind.—Papers of incorporation have been granted the Lockyear Floral Co., with a capital stock of $25,000. Incorporators are Melvin H. Lockyear, Ella M. Lockyear, L. E. Price and Ethel B. Price.

Concordia, Kan.—C. Humfeld, who a while ago abdicated as the verbena king of Clay Center, Kan., has reëstablished himself in Concordia. Mr. Humfeld is happy in his cozy quarters, having a son and son-in-law just returned from the service, both in good health and now with him in business. The boys are running the place, with Mr. Humfeld steering it along only as a pastime. The Humfeld houses were allowed to run cold all winter and upon return of the boys were started up again with an extensive line of plants.

Youngstown, O.—A corporation has been formed to conduct the greenhouses which have been operated here by John Walker. The new company is to be known as the Walker Floral Co. The names of the incorporators, with the exception of that of Mr. Walker, have not been made public.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The greenhouses operated here by E. Nagel & Son, located at 1118 West Lake Street, have been purchased by Harry F. Baker and will be conducted by him in connection with his nursery and greenhouses on Lake Harriett boulevard. The landscape office will be at the Lake street address, where Mr. Baker is remodeling the building.

Iowa City, Ia.—James Aldous & Son have leased a handsome new business home at 112 South Dubuque street, across the street from Hotel Jefferson. The business was started in 1873, by James, Sr. James, Jr., joined him fourteen years ago, after a term of training in New York, although he was born in the home at the greenhouses. Business is increasing steadily.

LIME TO SWEETEN FERN SOIL.

What is the best way to apply lime to ferns in pots to sweeten the soil? In what proportion should the lime be used? M. A. R.—Ind.

The best way to apply lime to ferns in order to sweeten the soil is to mix some ground limestone in the soil at the time of potting, using a 6-inch potful of the lime to an ordinary wheelbarrow load of soil. If the plants are already potted and you wish to give them lime, the cleanest method would be to water them once a week with clear lime water, which may be prepared by slaking a peck of lime in a barrel and then filling the barrel with water. After the lime has settled to the bottom, use the clear water on the ferns. W. H. T.

FERNS LOSING FRONDS.

Is it sour soil that causes fern fronds to turn brown and drop off? I have been advised to use lime water for this condition of the soil. In what proportion should the lime be used? What is the best way to kill green aphis on Asparagus Sprengeri in a store window? M. A. R.—Ind.

It is understood that the ferns referred to are nephrolepis, and in that case sour soil and defective drainage may cause the leaflets to turn brown and drop off. But the leaflets may also drop from having been too dry. Watering with clear lime water once a week will do no harm and may be the treatment your soil needs. An easy method to provide the lime water is to slake one peck of quicklime in a barrel of water, allow it to stand until the lime settles to the bottom and then use the clear water on the plants.

The best insecticide for green aphis is solution of nicotine, using one teaspoonful of the forty per cent solution to one gallon of water and applying with a sprayer. W. H. T.

CUTWORMS ON FERNS.

Kindly advise us how to get rid of green cutworms on ferns. They seem to work at night. We have tried many remedies and have even picked the worms off the plants, but they still are numerous. I. G.—Tenn.

While we cannot be positive just what insect is at work upon the ferns, we judge it to be the climbing cutworm. There are a number of species which behave as stated in the inquiry, feeding at night upon the foliage of a great variety of plants and burying themselves during the day just below the surface of the soil. When only a few plants are concerned, it is a simple matter to find them by digging over the surface soil to the depth of one inch.

One of the best remedies for cutworms is to place about a spoonful of poisoned, sweetened bran in each of the pots where the work of the insects has been noted. For one pound of bran use a sufficient amount of cheap molasses to give a thin coat to each particle of bran, and then add one ounce of Paris green or white arsenic to each pound of bran, mixing thoroughly. L. R. T.

SOME QUICK CROPS.

We read with interest the timely hints in The Review, but inasmuch as our situation is peculiar in that the greenhouse is only one of the departments on our farm, we shall appreciate any suggestions you can give us as to the operation of a plant such as ours.

We have a greenhouse 25x40 feet, heated with hot water, only in the spring, same being run in connection with our chicken brooders. We have for the last two seasons devoted the house almost entirely to the raising of tomato and cabbage plants, followed by cucumbers and a few flowers for our own use and for local sale. We have a good market for vegetable plants along our local railroad branch and feel certain that we would be able to dispose of anything in the line of cut flowers of our limited output. With this end in view we put in a few sweet peas, the latter part of February, which are doing nicely. These occupy only a portion of our middle bench and in March we added 300 gladioli. We expect to put in one bench of snaps and the other side bench we will devote to lettuce, radishes, tomato and cabbage plants. As these will be gone by July 1, we had planned to devote all our space to asters. We have made it a practice to transplant the tomato plants four inches each way, which gives us fine, stocky plants, but as we have plenty of hotbed sashes we feel we could use them for the vegetable plants, devoting the greenhouse to plants requiring more care.

As our winters are severe and the greenhouse so small, we do not feel justified in running it all winter, preferring to drain the piping and start up again in February. This necessitates our growing only short-season plants, requiring a minimum of heat.

We should appreciate any suggestions you care to make or changes, which would tend to increase the returns from a small, short-season plant such as ours. A. & C.—Mich.

With the house going empty in June, the natural crop for a situation in which it was not desired to heat in winter would be chrysanthemums. These might require a little heat for finishing, but would be cut out about Thanksgiving and probably would be the best autumn crop. If there is not enough head room, grow pompons on the side benches and one of the large sorts in the center bench. For a spring crop sweet peas, snapdragons, mignonette or bedding plants could be grown. The house could be kept busy with the aid of the hotbeds.

Sheffield, Ala.—A new concern here is the Tri-City Floral Co., which recently began the construction of a range of greenhouses, in which will be grown a general line of pot plants and cut flowers. G. W. Redus is manager.

Charleston, S. C.—A branch store has been opened by the Rodgers Floral Co., Inc., in the Garden theater building. Miss E. T. Britton will be in charge. Candy will be handled as a side line. Harold E. Rodgers, of the company, has returned from overseas service in the army and will resume his duties at the main store in the near future.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Memphis Floral Co. was made defendant in a damage suit for $10,000, recently filed in the circuit court here by Mrs. H. Schaffer. The suit grew out of an automobile accident, in which Mrs. Schaffer says she was injured. A motor truck belonging to the florists' concern is alleged to have struck the complainant.

Vinita, Okla.—R. E. Moss, florist, has undertaken a column of "Garden Talks" in the Journal. He finds business excellent.

Miami, Fla.—William N. Beechey bought out Farrar & Oakley a few months ago and has been busy getting things into the shape he wants them. He has been experimenting for some years with little known varieties of ornamentals and soon will have something out of the ordinary to offer in roses and palms.

De Land, Fla.—H. H. Tomlinson, of the Tomlinson-Key Floral Co., Jacksonville, Fla., has sold out his interests in that business and has bought a half interest in the business of William B. Currey here in De Land. The new name will be De Land Fern & Cut Flower Co. They have enlarged the ferneries considerably and are still going to make extensive improvements in both branches of the business.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

With flowers in greatly increased quantity and a demand not materially changed, values in the week just closed suffered considerably. While arrivals moved fairly well, much stock was offered at concessions in order to clean out surpluses in many lines. A few items brought full values on account of quality, notably some fine narcissi and Darwin tulips. Gardenias suffered greatly, moving at any price after the best flowers had been selected. American Beauty specials were cleaned out at as low as 15 cents each, which, however, is not an unusual figure at this time of the year when the crop is heavy.

The demand now is sluggish, although arrivals are not particularly notable through their bulk. Roses seem to move fairly well, slightly lower prices serving to accelerate the buying. Some excellent flowers of the new variety, Premier, are coming in and are taken freely.

Carnations are in good supply and move with apparently little effort. Prices have seemed to vacillate between 8 and 4 cents for the best, but now they are fairly strong at $6 to $8. Orchids are not in good supply, but lower-grade cattleyas hang fire considerably. There is a fair demand for Phalænopsis amabilis for wedding work and no difficulty is experienced in moving the scanty supply available.

Lilies are down to prices near a rational mark, 10 to 15 cents according to quality. Lily of the valley has been on the short side for some days; consequently outside-grown stock from the south has found an opening.

Outdoor lilac is coming in good quantity and advance shipments of peonies have been seen, but of a kind not particularly attractive.

There is a wealth of miscellaneous stock available, some of which is hard to move. Pansies sell well when good, as also do Spanish iris, late freesia and good sweet peas.

The long looked-for warm spring days seem to have arrived and it is hoped that the frosts, experienced up to a week ago, are gone for good this season. Outdoor work among florists is extremely backward.

Various Notes.

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold a spring exhibition of plants and flowers at the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden, May 10 and 11. The annual meeting of the society takes place May 10, in the lecture hall of the Museum.

Secretary John Young, of the S. A. F., returned May 3 from a short trip in the middle west.

Both the Manhattan and Brooklyn committees working in the interests of the Victory loan are making extraordinary efforts to fill their quotas. The New York committee held an enthusiastic meeting May 2, at the offices of the New York Florists' Club. Chairman Kessler expects his committee to cover its quota, but there are a number of supporters yet to be signed.

Mothers' day is a topic of much interest just now and retailers are planning for big business. J. H. P.

The New York office of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Pana, Ill., has closed a contract with E. M. Statler for the erection of a roof conservatory and palm house on the new Pennsylvania hotel. From the standpoint of the builder, a most interesting feature is the 55-foot span without supports. The cost of the structure will be $40,000. This will be the finest conservatory in connection with a hotel to be found anywhere in the United States. It will be used as a promenade and assembly room for banquet guests. It is the original idea of Mr. Statler.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

During the last week the market has been quiet. There has been a good supply of all lines of stock, but, with so much going on, the demand has fallen off. The Victory loan drive and the races keep everyone on the jump and the public does not seem to have time for flowers.

Roses are plentiful and of good quality. The same may be said of carnations. All miscellaneous stock is coming in fine shape. There are plenty of outdoor tulips and hyacinths. Shrubbery of all sorts is extremely plentiful and the commission houses are forced to move the stock as best they can and at the best prices obtainable.

Various Notes.

On a recent trip through the Green Spring valley the grounds looked like a vast flower garden. Fruit trees, as well as shrubbery, were in full bloom and from one end to the other the handiwork of the I. H. Moss Co. was visible. This company is executing a large order for the city on the new St. Paul boulevard. An exceedingly fine lot of shrubbery is being placed in the sunken gardens. It has been the custom of the municipal authorities to send out of the city for this line of stock, but Mr. Hastings, the landscape architect who has this work in charge, is of the opinion that just as good if not better stock can be supplied at home than can be procured out of town.

G. J. Muhly, of the Florists' Exchange, reports that the firm is doing well. Trade is particularly good in greens. Some of the finest carnations seen in Baltimore this spring were handled by this house last week.

The Lexington market is a worthwhile sight these days. Good prices are being obtained for all kinds of bedding plants. The public evidently has decided that the war is over and that the flower garden is going to have its proper place again.

The staff of the Richard Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. is busy with orders. R. A. Vincent, who has charge of this department, is a hustler. Business is coming to this company in big blocks.

James Hamilton, of Mt. Washington, Md., had about 300 fairly good azaleas last week. These, of course, were held-over stock, but he had no trouble in disposing of them at good prices.

Just about a year ago two young men started a wholesale house in this city. I refer to Seick & Glick. When they started, the wise ones shook their heads, but these two have been "on the job," and today they have outgrown their quarters at St. Paul and Center streets and have leased a large room at 508 St. Paul street, where they expect to do even better next season than they have ever done. The members of this firm are hustlers. Tate.

WESTERN MONTANA NOTES.

The Easter business of the State Nursery Co., of Helena, far exceeded their fondest hopes. They cleaned up on everything, both in the wholesale and retail departments. Now everybody in the establishment is too busy to talk, in getting out the spring orders. Both in the seed department and the greenhouses they are working every night to keep up with the rush.

The Easter business in Butte was the best the downtown florists have ever experienced.

The Butte Floral Co. had a beautiful window all in yellow. In appointment and art it would do justice to the largest retail stores of the east.

Mr. Cherravinca has arrived from the Pacific coast and accepted a position as foreman with the Butte Floral Co.

Will Stevens, who has charge of the carnation range of the Butte Floral Co., swears by Carnation Laddie. It grows finely on the continental divide of the Rocky mountains. Mr. Stevens, incidentally, spent a few days in Missoula last week.

The Englewood Greenhouses, of Butte, had a good supply of lilies. Naturally, they went like wild fire.

The R. & S. Flower Store, of Missoula, has added a bulk seed department and has changed the name to the R. & S. Flower & Seed Store. Vegetable and flower seeds are handled this year, but next season a warehouse will be secured and a full line of grass and field seeds also will be handled.

The greenhouse of the old Missoula Nursery Co., foreclosed on several years ago by the Pablo Estate, was sold at private sale to Sterling & Swee, of Roman, who bought it as an investment and have rented it to the Missoula Greenhouse & Nursery Co. David Brown is managing the plant.

F. X. Scully, proprietor of the R. & S. Flower & Seed Store, has returned from a trip through western Montana and a visit to his oil properties in Wyoming.

Louis Voigt, formerly of Chicago but ... foreman for the R. & S., is the proud owner of an automobile and spends all his spare time out at the mountain streams trying to lure the trout.

Adolph Reims, of the Eugene Flower Store, of Spokane, was married April 26. He went outside of the craft for a helpmate.

The Hamilton Nursery Co., of Hamilton, Mont., has discontinued business. One of the Hamilton banks holds the property, which is lying idle.

Mrs. Tony Beihler has opened a flower store in Hamilton. The name of the store is The Fern. F. X. S.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business continues good, with plenty of both city and out-of-down orders. There have been some elaborate weddings of late, which have called for big displays in the florists' line, and there have been more luncheons and dinners this spring than for some time. Stock is fairly plentiful. Roses are especially reliable just now and are selling at 3 cents to 15 cents. Sweet peas have been shortened in supply by lack of sunshine and are scarce. Those to be had are 50 cents and $1. Carnations are slowing down in supply because of dark weather and bring 4 cents. There are some yellow and white daisies, calla lilies and a few Easter lilies. Snapdragon is good at this time. American Beauties are so scarce and of such poor quality that they are not being quoted.

Mothers' day will see a scarcity of carnations in this vicinity, as a number of cloudy days recently have cut down the supply. Those shipped in will be so high-priced that the dealers will have to sell at a loss or charge so much that the public will not care to buy. Carnations always have been the best sellers here on this particular day, but, with a shortage, the experience of Easter without the lilies may be repeated, and it is safe to say that other flowers will make their appeal. It is not any special flower so much as the sentiment that counts, after all.

Various Notes.

T. J. Noll & Co. have added a new line of baskets to their stock.

Robert Fields, who was in France, has returned home and has engaged in business with his father in Kansas City, Kan. Ernest Moore, another local florist who saw service on French soil, is now with E. A. Humfeld.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has sent notices to all its agents that orders for carnations for Mothers' day will be filled with twenty-five per cent white and seventy-five per cent colored blooms. Heretofore there has been so strong a demand for white carnations for this holiday that the supply has been far from adequate and late buyers could not get any white. This time, to be fair to all, only twenty-five per cent of any order will be white. This company has a good crop of carnations, in prime condition for the occasion, but will need them all.

The deal involving the sale of the greenhouses and business of the George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. in Pleasant Hill, Mo., and the wholesale business in Kansas City, to the Pinehurst Gardens Co., of Pleasant Hill, Mo., has been closed and the new concern is known as the Pinehurst Floral Co. William Wade, who was a valuable member of the Rock force for fifteen years, is manager of the Kansas City branch. Mrs. H. M. Lamb, who was in charge of the business under the Kellogg ownership, has retired. Mr. and Mrs. Lamb have sold their home here and are preparing to go to Minnesota in June. Later they will visit Yellowstone park and then go to California for several months' stay. They will make the trip by motor car. M. F. Parker, president of the Kellogg company, has retired from business. He and his family will continue to make their home in Pleasant Hill.

Samuel Murray says that the sentiment of Mothers' day makes it one of the biggest days in the florists' calendar. Mr. Murray is an optimist, as he has good reason to be as the owner of so successful a business, but it is largely due to his gift of looking on the bright side of things that he has succeeded. "The war has taught us many valuable lessons," Mr. Murray said, "and one of these is to be content with what we have. We must work in the present and be earnest in our efforts. We found at Easter that we could do without lilies, impossible as we thought that would be a year ago. We are entering the greatest era of prosperity the world has ever known and the florists will get their share of it. Every holiday is getting bigger each year and will continue to grow as the years go on. Mothers' day will be bigger still next year and the next."

Kansas City was busy last week welcoming some of the returning heroes. First there were the 110th Engineers, the advance part of the famous 35th Division. These engineers won distinction in the Argonne, when they threw down their picks and shovels and took up bayonets to stop a German advance. This was only part of the brave work they did and the town went wild when the boys arrived, April 30. May 3 the 129th Field Artillery and Battery E, 128th, arrived in the city. J. E. K.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

When the writer expressed his admiration of some fine specimens of conifers at the nursery of Rowehl & Granz, of Hicksville, L. I., Mr. Granz stated that the land upon which they were growing would have returned much more had it been cropped with potatoes.

* * * *

Commenting upon the general condition of the market, the veteran New York wholesaler, J. K. Allen, observed that "it could be better." Memorial Sunday, April 27, created a slight increase in the demand. The muse noted in one church twelve handsome wreaths, also an immense, standing floral cross placed in the chancel, in commemoration of deceased members of the 71st Infantry. Doubtless other regiments were similarly remembered elsewhere. This promises to be an annual event and the trade will do well to mark the calendar.

"'Your ship will not come back if you do not send it out.' Quite true," observed Henry Weston, of Hempstead, N. Y., "and has it occurred to the readers of The Review that if there is not a radical change it will not be such a great while ere there will be no crew to man the ship? In other words, where are our successors to come from if the present conditions continue? How many boys, can you tell me, are following in the footsteps of us old-timers? Publicity is being urged with the avowed intent to create a greater taste for flowers, but equal thought should be paid to the production or the creation will be wasted effort. During my term as president of the New York Florists' Club this important subject of production was often mooted, but no solution of the problem was arrived at. Evidently it is slow to evolve, but it will come, and in as vigorous a manner as did the publicity movement." Here is food for thought and action.

F. A. Danker, of Albany, N. Y., notes a great change in the class of flower buyers. Formerly it was the elite; now it is the rank and file. Also, the big prices paid for large specimen plants are a thing of the past. "In my experience of twenty-seven years," observed Mr. Danker, "I have never before found the situation so complex. It will take some time to find out how things stand and what to grow for another season to the best advantage. It is a gamble, anyhow. It certainly was a winner for the grower, whether of plants or cut flowers." At the Danker residence, fronting the nursery, a bed of Beaute de Poitevine geraniums is planted. It is the first in town. It is a fine ad and worth the risk of freezing. Similar plants, in 4-inch pots, in full bloom, sold readily for $1 each at Easter.

"Sold everything we had that was appropriate for Easter," observed Henry Hansen, of Catskill, N. Y., "at what we consider a fair advance. This will be our policy right along and when we have to go outside and pay what we think is an exorbitant price for stock, we are not anxious for the business. And let me add in passing that while the publicity movement is a fine idea, great care must be taken not to kill it by an overinflation of prices. That is the danger today. I speak advisedly, after a long experience as a retailer who grew most of what I handled." Our confrere has no need to be pessimistic as far as he is personally concerned. He resides on Easy street and in a place where the trolley car is considered ancient. The rolling stock was scrapped, rails were torn up, and streets were repaved to accommodate more modern means of transportation. W. M.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

DEMAND is just a little ahead of the supply. The desire to take advantage of it leads to sending out considerable stock before it is ready.

ALL the growers seem to be rooting as many cuttings as possible of Columbia. In its second season it will jump into a leading position in the rose markets.

WITH European markets again open for Japanese bulbs, it seems impossible that there can be anything other than another shortage of lilies at Easter in 1920.

IF lily bulbs cost more this season, it will cost less to bring them over. General cargo rates have fallen, Yokohama to Seattle, to $4.50 per ton and to San Francisco, $5 per ton.

THIS is a season in which many a reputation will be made or lost. The grower who has the strength of character not to send out stock until it is ready will profit by it in the plentiful years to come.

THERE will be large quantities of French hydrangeas, grown in America, to take the place of the quarantined azaleas next Easter. It is reported that one grower is propagating as many as 100,000 hydrangeas this season.

LAST week The Review received, one day too late for insertion in that issue, one full-page, three half-page and one quarter-page advertisements. It seems to be a general failing to put things off till the last moment—or even a little later. Advertisements received after Tuesday can not appear in that week's issue.

THERE was a meeting of the S. A. F. publicity committees at Cincinnati, May 1, advantage being taken of Secretary Young's trip in the middle west. The work was considered as progressing splendidly in all respects save one, the raising of funds. Only a small percentage of the trade is contributing to the work, although all are benefited.

THE price cutter always feels that his course is justified and that, anyway, it is nobody's business what he asks for his own goods. It is an old theory, exploded in other lines of business. Today the view is that any seller who does not ask prices at least equal to the open market cost of replacing the goods is retarding the progress of the entire industry.

SEND The Review clippings of the Mothers' day advertisements published in the local newspapers by the florists in your city.

THE telegraph delivery will be a big feature of the business this summer. It will be well worth while to push it as soon as the dull months come.

ONE of the trade's problems is to promote the one-time buyer into the regular customer class. The latter is a real asset, while the former may prove to be a liability, because of the uncertainty of his patronage.

IT is possible that the plant quarantine will not do as much harm as some believe. When this country, at the outbreak of the war, found itself cut off from its supply of German dye, the domestic manufacturers rose to the occasion. Florists surely will not allow themselves to be bested by the dye industry.

IN the course of the next few weeks the remaining giganteum bulbs of the 1917 crop will be used up and there probably will follow six months or more when lilies will be practically unknown in the trade. The 1919 crop from Bermuda will arrive in July and August, with a few bulbs soon after from the Azores and a small quantity from Formosa in the early autumn. The new Japanese bulbs are not due until November.

THERE have been many attempts to define a standard for plants, just as there is for the pots they are grown in. Even a committee of the veterans of the S. A. F., told to define such standard grades, tried it a few years ago and gave it up. But there was unanimous opinion on one point: To be describable as from a pot of certain size, the plants must have had sufficient time in that pot to have become rooted around; the roots must permeate the soil and show on the outside of the ball. How many plants sent out this season answer that description?

GOOD BUSINESS.

Business is good in all sections of the country. There is only one report from those who use the Classified ads in The Review. It is like this:

We are cleaned up and have to return checks, which is hard to do. It pays to advertise in the old reliable, The Review.—Tarentum Floral Co., Tarentum, Pa., May 3, 1919.

We are well pleased with the business the little ads have brought us this season.—George Hammer, Van Horne, Ia., May 5, 1919.

The ad has sold out our moonvines.—G. F. Odor, Iola, Kan., May 4, 1919.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

MONEY FOR MAINTENANCE.

The income tax is teaching florists many improvements in business methods, not the least important of which is better maintenance of greenhouse property.

In many, perhaps a majority of cases, it has been the florists' preference to spend little on maintaining his houses, to use them as long as they would produce good crops without expense for repairs and then to tear them down and rebuild. But the income tax authorities frown on large charges for depreciation; it has been ruled that four per cent is the maximum annual depreciation allowable on buildings of average substantial character and that no further allowance can be made after the annual charge has equaled the first cost. Florists who have been charging off from seven to ten per cent depreciation each year since the income tax law was passed find themselves with fairly good houses and little of the room for further deductions from income for this account.

But the law contemplates reasonable charges into expense for the maintenance of property. Owners of greenhouses as a rule can keep their places up much better and prolong the usefulness of their houses without courting an investigation by the government.

PRICES.

Any price is justified, resulting from the operation of the law of supply and demand.

But it is not always expedient to let the law of supply and demand operate to its ultimate conclusion.

Carried to the limit, prices rise until demand subsides; then prices fall.

It would be a serious mistake to advance the price of plants or cut flowers to the point where the public would stop consuming; in that case the trade not only would be left with perishable stock, but it would be necessary to reawaken the demand on a lower price level, and in the hiatus there would be a serious loss.

Those who sell flowers at wholesale must keep their customers in business.

There would be more reason for sellers holding prices down in times of scarcity and great demand were buyers not so prompt to beat prices down in times of plenty.

CORRESPONDENTS.

The Review would like to publish a weekly news letter from every important city in the United States—the only reason why it is not done is that most florists have writers' cramp. The Editor will be pleased to hear from anyone who wants to put his city on the trade map. There are particularly good opportunities in

Detroit	St. Paul
Minneapolis	Memphis
Milwaukee	Washington

There are many smaller cities in which the trade interests are large enough to afford material for frequent letters.

ELASTICITY.

One of the problems confronting the publishers of The Review grows out of the fact that the trade has its sharply defined seasons. In many lines of trade paper publishing it is possible to sell each advertiser a definite space for a definite length of time. Florists, nurserymen and seedsmen, however, want an elastic arrangement, which will permit them to increase and decrease the advertising as the seasons come and go. Consequently the publishers of The Review never know more than a day in advance how much space will be required in any forthcoming issue. Advertisers go at it like this:

Your publication certainly has been a puller this spring and we shall use it whenever occasion demands.—Neosho Nurseries Co., Neosho, Mo.

The Review aims to maintain sufficient elasticity to provide for all comers even in the busiest season, but advertisers are urged to send in copy on Thursday, Friday and Saturday whenever possible. If advertisements are not received until Tuesday it is necessary to set the type at night and it costs double.

OBITUARY

J. G. Crozer.

Capt. James G. Crozer, veteran of the Civil war, long-time resident of Iowa and of Cedar Rapids, and a former chief of police of that city, died May 1 at his home, 1409 Second avenue.

Mr. Crozer was born at New Lisbon, O., July 28, 1839. When he was but a small boy he removed to Iowa with his parents. He grew up and attended school in Iowa and married in that state. In 1888 he located at Cedar Rapids as agent for the United States Express Co. and had lived in that city ever since.

He served through the Civil war as a member of Company C, 26th Iowa infantry. After he returned from the war he was engaged in business as a druggist. He was chief of the police department eleven years ago and since that time had been in the retail flower business, building up a large trade.

Mr. Crozer was a member of the G. A. R. and of the Royal Legion of Honor.

In addition to Mrs. Crozer, he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. William Finn and Mrs. Robert A. Hall, both of Cedar Rapids, and Mrs. George I. Abel, of Philadelphia. One sister, Miss Kate Crozer, lives at Omaha.

Funeral services were held at the residence, May 3, the Rev. R. J. Campbell officiating, and burial was in Oak Hill cemetery. There were many flowers.

Michael Naumann, Sr.

Michael Naumann, Sr., aged 75, died April 22, in his home, Sherman avenue, Etna, near Pittsburgh, Pa. He was born in Millvale and had been engaged as a florist all his life. He was a member of Stokes Lodge No. 796, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and Samuel Harper council No. 503, F. P. A. He leaves three sons, Charles, Michael, Jr., and Conrad Naumann; one daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Zigow; twenty-five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

John Brown.

John Brown, well known nurseryman, old-time prospector and veteran of the Civil war, died in Chico, Cal., April 25, at the age of 77 years, having been stricken with paralysis a week before. Mr. Brown was born in Mobile, Ala. He took part in the Civil war in a Missouri regiment. For many years he mined and prospected in the west, operating in Nevada and many parts of California, including Plumas county, Cal., and the Magalia ridge. For the last nine years he had been identified with the Chico Nursery Co. He had no immediate family, but there are relatives in southern California and Missouri. M. M.

John D. Ramaley.

John D. Ramaley, a retired florist of St. Paul, Minn., died at the home of his son in Wayzata, Minn., April 30. He was 85 years old. Mr. Ramaley entered the flower business about twenty years ago, opening a store in St. Paul, in the Flatiron block, Seventh and St. Peter streets. He was in the business until about three years ago, when, on account of poor health, he was obliged to retire.

Mr. Ramaley will be kindly remembered by everyone in the trade who had dealings with him. He was extremely active for a man of his years and took a keen interest in all things pertaining to the florists' business. Owing to his removal from St. Paul when he retired, not many of his florist friends were at the funeral, which was held at the Oakland cemetery chapel, St. Paul, May 2. Mr. Ramaley was the oldest florist, in point of age, in the Twin Cities.

DUTCH SHIPMENTS SLOWING UP.

The importations of Holland nursery stock are decreasing more rapidly than expected. Last week's boat, the Amsteldyk, brought only the following:

Vandiver, J. L.—58 bags vegetable seeds.
Maltus & Ware—338 cs plants, shrubs, etc.
Kuyper, P. C., & Co.—144 cs shrubs, trees, etc.
Ouwerkerk, P.—17 cs trees and shrubs.
Lang, R. F.—13 cs shrubs, 13 cs flower bulbs.
Richard, C. B., & Co.—24 cs shrubs.
Speelman, C. J., & Sons—4 cs bulbs.
Brown, W. E.—15 cs plants and shrubs.
Grootendorst, F. J., & Sons—13 cs flower bulbs.

The big Nieuw Amsterdam, which came in May 2, had only small lots of horticultural goods, as follows:

Dreer, H. A., Inc.—1 cse flower seed.
Brown, W. E., account Ferry, D. M., & Co.—1,416 bgs flower seeds, 1 cse do.
Maltus & Ware—28 cs plants, shrubs and trees.

The door will close on all Holland plants in three more weeks.

WIND STORM INSURANCE.

Some time ago I saw an article in The Review to the effect that the Society of American Florists was contemplating an organization for tornado insurance similar to the Florists' Hail Association. Can you inform me if anything of the kind has materialized? The cost of tornado insurance on greenhouses has been raised so greatly that we feel as though it is almost prohibitive. A policy for $2,500 once cost $18.75 for five years; now the rate is $55 for one year. We have three policies for that amount and would like to know if it would be possible to carry insurance without being robbed that way. Please let me know, if you can do so, whatever would help out in this matter. H. O. B.—Ia.

The committee of the Society of American Florists which investigated wind storm insurance for greenhouses could not see its way clear to action and passed the matter along to the Hail Association. The directors of that organization were unable to see their way clear to undertake such insurance and closed the incident by the statement that the charter of the Hail Association does not permit it to write any other form of insurance. The State Florists' Association of Indiana then undertook to organize an insurance company to write all kinds of insurance on greenhouses, but, after several months' hard work by capable committees, gave it up as a bad job.

John G. Esler, who probably knows more about greenhouse insurance than any other man in the trade, says that the risks involved are such that it is impossible to insure greenhouses against wind damage except at rates which make the project unattractive from all points of view. F. D. Wallace, a Chicago broker who has made a specialty of greenhouse insurance, says it is possible to insure carefully selected risks at reasonable rates, but that the writing of wind storm insurance on greenhouses in all localities or without consideration of the type of construction can only be done at rates that seem unreasonable to the assured. Companies which have tried it have been raising their rates rapidly of late.

TAXES ON GROWING PLANTS.

It will be a great favor if you, or some reader of The Review, will give an interpretation of the law of taxation, Section 22, state of Indiana, which reads as follows: "The stock of nurseries growing or otherwise in the lands of nurserymen and stock of florists in greenhouses should be listed and assessed as merchandise."

Does this mean all stock in greenhouses shall be assessed, or only such stock as can be thrown on the market at the time of assessment?

It seems to me that a florist's growing crop should not be taxable any more than is a farmer's growing crop. Both are perishable and it is a question what will be realized out of them. No doubt the blooms on carnations, lilies, snapdragons and other blooming plants and all potted plants which could be thrown upon the market should be given in. C. W. M.—Ind.

Nearly all of the states have adopted some such tax law as that quoted by the Indiana subscriber. In one way or another the attempt is made to include for tax purposes all the growing crops of florists and nurserymen. In a general way the courts uphold all such legislation; unless it can be shown that the florist or nurseryman is taxed out of proportion to his neighbors he has little chance for securing relief through any legal process. By far the better way to approach the proposition is to ignore the legal aspect and go at the assessor in a friendly spirit, to show him that the growing stock of a nurseryman or florist cannot be valued by the standards applied to other stocks of merchandise. Assessors usually are reasonable men and it is possible to show them that a large part of the value of growing plants lies in the care which is yet to be given them and that selling prices are no measure of value for the simple reason that it is impossible to make an immediate and complete sale at any price.

It is assumed, of course, that no florist or nurseryman has any objection to paying taxes that are not out of proportion to what his neighbors pay.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

It really is wonderful the business that is being done in the Chicago wholesale cut flower market. There seems to be no limit to the possibilities of selling flowers this season. Of course the supply is nowhere near so large as it has been in May of some other years, but there is, nevertheless, an enormous quantity of stock coming in and going out every day. But it is not enough, even at the prices asked.

It takes no long memory to go back to the time when growers were pleased to get $5 to $6 per hundred for carnations for Mothers' day; even at that, some retailers protested they were too high and frequently there was a break

A Word About Prices

Next week, as soon as cuts begin to come strong again, after the close cutting for Mothers' Day, we look for a drop in the market of 25 to 35%—but we want you to remember that Amling's prices never are higher than others charge if able to supply an equal g ade of stock. The difference between what Amling asks and others ask is i the flowers, not in the prices.

before the week was over. This year it takes $120 to get a thousand first-class carnations and there are orders for more than can be supplied. Of course some buyers hold off, saying they cannot pay the price and make a profit, but the justification of the price is seen in the fact that there are late buyers, ready to pay it, who cannot find anyone who will take their orders.

It is impossible to compare this Mothers' day with any other. At the opening of the week the houses which do the principal shipping business had booked as many orders as they wanted. The result was that the same order, rejected by the first wholesaler to whom it was offered, reappeared several times in other houses, creating an appearance of greater demand than actually exists. Nevertheless it is apparent that the market will not be able to fill anywhere near all the orders this Mothers' day.

The principal shortage is in carnations of a quality which will stand a journey. The supply of roses is larger and the average quality is better. There has been a week of cold, dark weather, which has been extremely bad for business. It is probable, however, that warm weather would have driven off a good many rose crops and would have made a much larger percentage of the supply unfit for shipping.

with unusual pleasure by the retailers, who had felt the need of a large flower that would make something of a show for moderate money, with the result that prices started at a level never known before. Usually the first peonies are well sold at 75 cents to $1 per dozen; this year good stock brought $1.50 to $2 and it does not look as though the price will fall until after the Mothers' day demand has subsided.

The unfavorable weather has reduced the supply of sweet peas; it is said to have reduced the pick of those who use solid beds far more than of those who plant on benches. There are only a few Easter lilies and still fewer callas. Spanish iris never accumulates. Now and then one sees a counter of daisies, but they probably never were first-class. when it was more plentiful. A small quantity of outdoor bulbous stock is offered and is selling briskly. There is no more than the usual call for greens.

Mr. French Retires.

It is announced that Richard Salm has purchased the interest of Guy French in the business of French & Salm and hereafter will conduct it for his individual account.

French & Salm have operated the greenhouses of the Union Grove & Yorkville Greenhouse Co., at Union Grove, Wis., for three years. The lease recently has been renewed. In the beginning the establishment, which consists of three big Lord & Burnham iron-frame houses, was planted to Mrs. Russell rose, but Mr. Salm had been a Beauty grower for many years and last season Russell was thrown out and Beauty substituted. There is nothing else on the place, the stock consisting of 36,000 plants. The success which has attended the change has been phenomenal, the quality and quantity of the cut comparing favorably with the days this market was famous as the Beauty center of the United States.

April Weather.

The weather man's report for April shows one or two reasons why flowers have not been plentiful. Of sun there was only forty-eight per cent of the possible duration; there were only two clear days in the month. The first ten days were warm; later the temperature was below normal.

Outdoor vegetation, which was early at the middle of April, now is about normal. Growers are getting carnation plants into the field whenever the soil is dry enough. Bedding out will begin next week.

Various Notes.

While Alois Frey was on the Pacific coast this spring he purchased ten acres of land at San Fernando, about twenty miles from Los Angeles, and expects to move his entire freesia stock for propagating purposes and bulb growing to the new location next fall, incidentally making his home on the newly acquired property. His present plan is to continue the establishment at Crown Point, which has become famous for its carnations, snapdragons and anemone-flowered mums as well as for the Rainbow freesias. It is reported that the Gould Nursery Co., with four peony plantations, from Tennessee to Wisconsin, expects to market about 35,000 dozens this season.

Nicholas Schmidt became rose grower for Frank Schramm, Crystal Lake, Ill., May 1, succeeding William Spantikow, who is in the Weiss-Spantikow Co., which is building 80,000 feet of glass near Maywood.

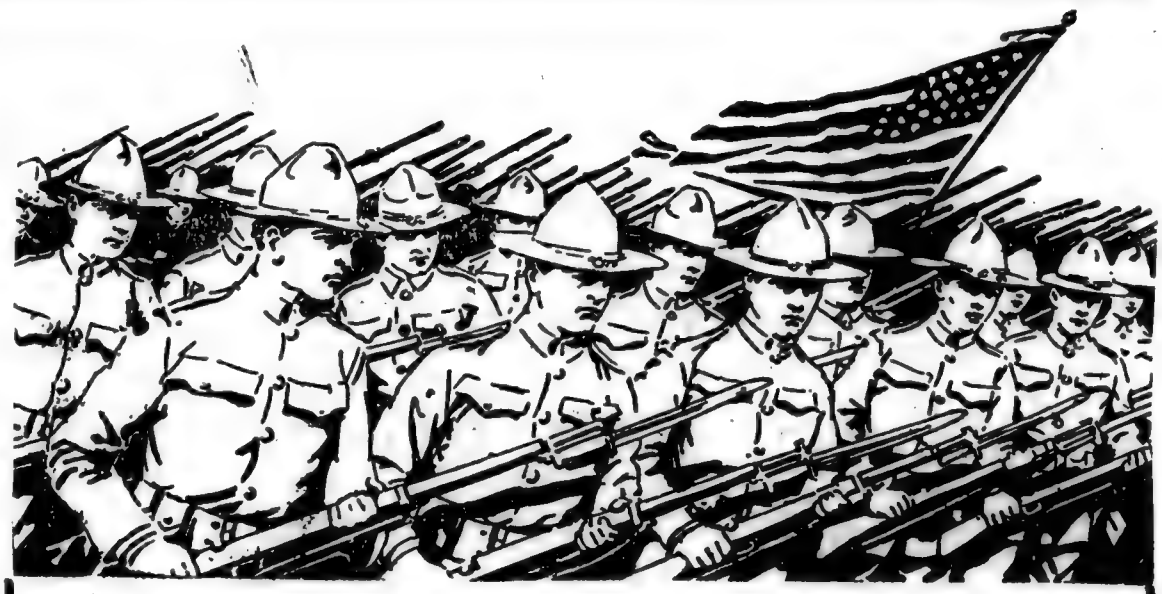
John Colterjohn, formerly with Schiller and other north side florists, is back from France. He was gassed and still is in the hospital, technically, though as a matter of fact he visited the market May 5, looking the picture of health.

When Amling Bros. took over the greenhouses of Hoerber Bros. Co., one of the things they fell heir to was a bench of chrysanthemums just beginning to show bud. These probably are the first chrysanthemums this market ever has seen in April and May. The Chicago Flower Growers' Association says nearly every retailer was ready to buy one dozen, but that it has been difficult to sell a second dozen to any of them, from which it is reasoned that the retailers did not find the public anxious to buy autumn flowers during spring, however much attention they attracted in the windows.



The growers are having trouble with high water. The Des Plaines is at flood and the stream which runs past the establishment of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, is up and out of its banks. The water has reached the greenhouses, but no damage has been done and the river is gradually going down. It is the first time the water has been so high there.

Last week was one of the busiest W. J. Smyth and his staff have had this spring, two large funeral orders breaking in on the run of regular business. A casket cover and numerous pieces were taken to Lake Forest by automobile early April 30 for the Viles funeral. May 2 there was the family order for the Freund funeral. In spite of the fact that the funeral notices said "Please omit flowers," the Smyth store sent about a dozen large designs, each valued at from $50 to $100, Fleischman had several, George Wienhoeber had six or seven and other florists sent good work.

P. C. Schupp, of the J. A. Budlong Co., pointed with pride to a fine batch of Darwin tulips that came just right for Mothers' day.

George Asmus was at Cincinnati May 1, to attend a meeting of the S. A. F. publicity committees, Secretary Young being there on his present western trip.

The growers have had hard work with their early rose plants. Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, has thrown out a large part of the stock to be replanted, but says the frequent rains have made it impossible to get the new soil into the benches. They have succeeded in filling and planting a few benches, but are considerably behind their schedule. Columbia and Premier are the first vari-

C. L. Washburn says he never has seen rose orders so numerous or so large for Mothers' day. He comments that this year's shortage of carnations will kill any idea, if such still persists, that the carnation is the special flower of the day.

Word comes from Pana, Ill., that P. L. McKee is just getting around after a belated illness with the influenza.

A. H. Budlong says he never has seen so strong a demand as this season for young rose stock.

Thenanthos would be an excellent carnation, in the view of the growers, if it did not split. Asked what percentage split in his experience, "Exactly 100 per cent," was the answer of Peter J. Schumer, the Evanston grower. He has two benches of Thenanthos this season and would discard it except for the idea that it might not split so badly if given just the right treatment. He will grow one bench of it next season.

Hart Vance, Jr., returned May 5 after being overseas for two years. He was formerly with A. L. Randall Co. and has gone to Dallas, Tex., to see his folks, after which he will return to Randall's.

As was the case at Easter, there have been many visitors this week, practically all of them looking for cut flowers for Mothers' day, though some had other reasons for being here.

From Cleveland came F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., with one of his store assistants, F. J. Kocher. Also from Cleveland, and Youngstown, and Akron, came Albert Barber. His modest wants were 10,000 carnations and 10,000 roses.

From Detroit came J. F. Sullivan, retailer, in quest of flowers, and A. J.

N. Dougan, who has purchased the greenhouses and store of the Vaughan Floral Co., of this city, recently held his official opening in the new and well appointed quarters on Main street. The store has been moved from Ninth street. The store and windows were elaborately decorated, a spring bride, carrying her shower bouquet, being an attractive feature. Mrs. Dougan acted as hostess. Miss Opal Dougan furnished appropriate music, while Miss Junita Dougan passed out souvenirs. To these were attached tiny banners on which was printed the slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

May is here. The cut flower market is fully aware of that fact. Business has diminished, prices have declined, flowers are accumulating. Roses are more plentiful than any other variety of stock. In some of the wholesale commission houses they are as plentiful as all other varieties combined. When this fact is considered, they have sold well—better than usual at this season—still they are cheap, especially so when taken in large numbers without critical inspection. Roses that are graded as carefully as during the season bring good money. The average of quality is excellent. Carnations are scarce. They command remarkably high prices. More could be used at times, advantageously.

Outdoor sweet peas grown in coldframes are coming in daily—unlike last season, they do not realize top market prices because the weather has been so cool that indoor peas are better.

Easter lilies are having a rather hard time of it. They sell at prices that are the lowest for a long time. Their quality is good, but they do not sell. Their season is drawing to a close. Calla lilies are little used; their season, too, is fast waning. Snapdragons, daisies and calendulas are plentiful. Orchids continue scarce. They are extremely high in price. There is some good delphinium. Spanish iris is plentiful and decidedly fine. The first peonies from the south are here. Greens are plentiful. There are some nice baby gladioli. Fruit and shrub blossoms add variety to decorations.

The May Meeting.

It was rose night at the Florists' Club's meeting, May 6, on the roof garden of the Hotel Adelphia. The exhibits included some of the novelties and some of the standards. There was a club dinner before the meeting that proved an attraction. The essay committee had invited Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., to speak on "New Varieties of Roses" and the occasion proved a delightful one.

Earl Mann, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., brought Rose Premier. From Canada came J. H. Dunlop and his cross of Shawyer and Russell. A. N. Pierson, Inc., was represented by Crusader and Pilgrim, shown for Montgomery Bros.

Alfred Burton and Victor Groshens staged wonderful Russell. The Florex Gardens showed Prima Donna and Edward Towill exhibited Mrs. E. J. Stotesbury.

Following Mr. Pierson's extemporaneous remarks, W. H. Elliott, of Madbury, N. H., and C. H. Totty, of Madison, also spoke.

Robert Scott & Son staged a choice selection of seedling roses.

William Kleinheinz showed Calceolaria Stewartiana.

A Bright Idea.

Of that part of Philadelphia lying west of the Schuylkill river, Fifty-second street is the most enterprising business section. The merchants whose places of business are situated along that thoroughfare vie with each other in inventing devices to attract. They tell each other how many thousand people were in this or that store last Saturday night. What they can do is amazing. Last Saturday night one man on this great thoroughfare claims to have had 4,000 visitors.

PHILADELPHIA WHOLESALE FLORISTS' EXCHANGE

Frank M. Ross, 136 South Fifty-second street, has just arranged an exceedingly clever window display. It is designed to illustrate the working of the F. T. D. idea. It is distinctly educational. The window displays a map of our great country. The various cities are connected by the telegraph wires over which the orders for flowers are flashed from one city to another. Signs inform the onlooker that an order to send flowers to a friend in some other city may be left inside with the certainty that it will be filled immediately and with fresh stock. Such is the power of this F. T. D.

The idea is skillfully worked out in all its details. Frank P. Gaul, who manages this one of Frank M. Ross' three stores, was most courteous in pointing out and explaining the arrangement of the window, which lights beautifully at night. The window opposite was devoted to a special fern sale. The place was neat and inviting from the inside. In the rear of the store was a light, airy workroom. F. T. D. orders were displayed in the window.

Various Notes.

The confidence of the Robert Craig Co. was rewarded by the biggest month —April—in its business history.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seulberger, of Oakland, Cal., were here on a pleasure trip that was combined with a little business.

Edward Lemville, the popular representative of William K. Harris, has friends everywhere.

Harry F. Payne, of Washington, D. C., was here recently.

A party comprising some of the members of the Garden Club went to Virginia to look over the old gardens there. Some of them date back to 1600.

Outdoor valley has sold well this season.

A "Whle" florist.—There was a call on the telephone for oil at William J. Baker's. The junior partner cleverly gave the number of the oil Baker. "Thank you, but," the voice protested, "the book said you were a whale florist, so I thought you had oil." "Oh, 'Whle' stands for wholesale, not whale," the junior partner replied.

The Market.

The weather has been anything but agreeable for several weeks. The days have been cold, wet and windy. It is not at all like the spring weather we had during the middle of March. With this unfavorable weather prevailing, gardeners are becoming anxious. The sun shines little and the greenhouse stock is not coming along as rapidly as was expected.

mand and there have been a number of weddings. The greater part of the stock has been cleaned up. There are large quantities of roses reaching the market and prices are lower. Among the varieties are Prima Donna, Russell, Ward, Maryland, September Morn, Sunburst, Shawyer, Hoosier Beauty, Francis Scott Key, the Killarneys and ramblers.

Carnations are not overabundant. The shortage is particularly noticed in the pink varieties. Reds do not move fast.

Sweet peas are fairly plentiful and include good stock in pink and white, though few lavender peas are seen. The market is well supplied with Easter lilies, for which there is no large demand. Callas are good, but do not move fast. There is a fair supply of violets reaching the market, some stock of which is extremely good and sells well.

The supply of bulbous stock is gradually diminishing, with little left but tulips, Paper Whites and Romans. Outdoor bulbous stock is arriving slowly and the blooms are fairly good. In certain places the recent frost ruined a great number of these.

Fine snapdragons and Delphinium elatum are seen. These sell well at good prices. Both yellow and white daisies move well, as do calendulas. Mignonette sells well and is of extra fine quality. Pansies and valley are in the local market and sell fairly well. Schizanthus, baby primrose and sweet alyssum are among the finer flowers seen.

The stranger did not like the idea of leaving the money in a bank and said he would pay an honest person $500 to take care of his money until he was ready to leave the city. Musson finally offered to protect the stranger's cash. The following morning the gardener drew $1,800 from a bank and this was placed in a tin box, along with the stranger's $3,000. It was arranged that he should meet the two men later. When the box was opened by Musson it was found to contain $3 in bills and some blank paper. Up to the present time the swindlers have not been arrested.

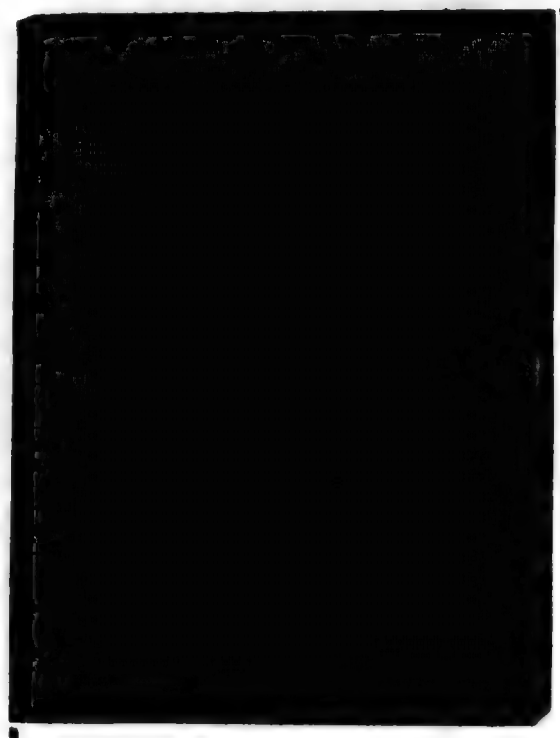
The Market.

The festivities of Easter week were continued throughout last week and consequently there was another heavy call for corsages. The florists had all they could do to obtain enough stock with which to meet the demand. The dark, cool weather has curtailed the supply to some degree and prices are stiff in consequence. Decorations for dances were in order and large quantities of roses, snapdragons and other flowers were in demand. Confirmation services in the various churches also created a heavy demand for altar decorations, with smilax for wreaths for the communicants. Counter trade was brisk and funeral work became quite heavy the latter part of the week, many of the stores remaining open all day Sunday in order to execute the orders.



The supply of carnations has been limited and sweet peas have also been decidedly short on account of the lack of sunshine. Calla lilies are hard to obtain. They are in great demand for church decorations. The supply of roses is sufficient to meet all demands and they are of good quality. Miniature varieties have had a good call for corsage work. Yellow daisies, marguerites and Queen Alexandra daisies are in fine supply. Orchids are moving easily. Snapdragons are in the market in large numbers, but they are insufficient to meet the demand for them. A few azaleas are being shown in the plant line and these bring $3 to $5. Pelargoniums are meeting with a brisk call. Marguerites and pansies are conspicuous in the retail shops. Rhododendrons are expected to be in for Mothers' day. The supply of cut flowers, particularly carnations, is expected to be short for this holiday and prices will be higher than ever. Carnations are now being quoted at $12 per hundred, wholesale, for May 11.

The florists here are making great preparations for Mothers' day. Cooperative newspaper advertising is being used by the Florists' Club and novelties in the way of baskets, Mothers' day flower holders, etc., are being made ready for the rush of business expected. Forget-me-nots are popular. Heavy calls have made smilax scarce and high. Other greens are in only moderate supply.

Various Notes.

Miss Helen F. Patten, owner and manager of the Patten Flower Store, Toledo, is spending a week here, the guest of her mother, Mrs. Mary Patten, at the Flick home. Miss Patten is taking a much needed rest after the strenuous Easter business, which she says was by far the heaviest in her experience.

Mrs. Henry Freese is again able to be at the store of the Knecht-Freese Floral Co., after an absence of several weeks, during which she suffered from a severe attack of bronchitis.

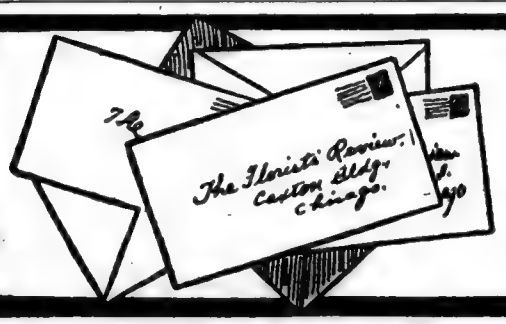
Miss June Schoch, bookkeeper for the Flick Floral Co., has returned to this city, after spending several days in Lafayette, Ind., where she went to attend an Easter dance given by a college fraternity at Purdue University.

The report of April business is far in excess of last year, both as regards the volume of sales and the gross receipts. This is exclusive of the Easter holiday. R. F. B.

BEST COMMERCIAL CANNAS.

What are the four best cannas to be grown for commercial purposes?

F. C. B.—Fla.



I would recommend the following as a good quartette to grow. All are splendid bedders. Probably it would be hard to get two lists of "best varieties" to exactly correspond. Here is the list: King Humbert, of the Italian or orchid-flowering class, scarlet flowers, bronze foliage; Mrs. A. F. Conard, salmon pink, green foliage; Panama, orange red, bordered golden yellow; Richard Wallace, canary yellow, green foliage. There are some newer varieties, which may outclass these, that are of moderate price. Great improvements are being made in cannas and it would be well to try an occasional novelty.

FREESIAS FROM SEED.

Please give me some information about the growing of freesias from seed. State when to sow the seed and how to handle the seedlings. L. S. G.—Minn.

It is presumed that in this case the grower has his own special reasons for growing the freesias from seed, instead of producing them in the ordinary commercial way, from the corms or bulbs which are offered to the trade by specialists. The seed should be sown as soon as ripe, in pots or pans of light, sandy soil, and placed in a sunny position in a cool greenhouse or frame. Air should be admitted after germination is well advanced, but drafts should be carefully avoided. The seedlings do not renew their growth readily after being transplanted. Hence the best method is to sow in good-sized pots and thin out the seedlings, leaving the correct number of the stronger plants to grow to flowering size—about six or eight plants in a 5-inch pot. If the seed is sown in August, the plants may bloom the following spring, but may require a much greater length of time. They will probably produce satisfactory bulbs for the second year.

Bedford, Mass.—George L. Fish, a traveling salesman who has been interested in floriculture for several years as an amateur grower, has decided to go into the cut flower business here, with his wife as a partner.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Letter from President.

The following from President Ammann is interesting at this time, when florists everywhere are wondering as to the future:

Do you still hear the echo of the Easter trade? "Better than ever." "Good sales at high prices." "Easter trade makes record." "Complete clean-up." "Supply insufficient." "Little complaint at high prices; big increase over last year."

Say, brothers, does not that sound good? It means so much for you and your loved ones—better living, better labor and better environment, wonderful in contrast with conditions of just a short time ago.

But, after all, is it not what we are entitled to? Are we not just coming into our own, largely because we have taken time by the forelock and advertised? Publicity—that is it. "Oh, well," you say, "not altogether." No, but ninety-nine per cent of the increased business is directly accreditable to it.

Are you on the honor roll? If not, why not? If you are on it, are you doing your full share? Are you putting one per cent of your gross receipts into publicity, either local or national? Well, if you are not, you are still short of doing your full share of the work.

Did you ever stop to think why people buy so many flowers? Do they use them for others? You say, "Yes, that is true."

What are you doing toward the cause that is educating people, as never before in all history, to give flowers to make others and themselves happy, and to help make the echo as quoted in the opening of this article ring in your ears? Do you hear that you are doing, or will do, your full share? If so, then you are certainly a happy person, along with the rest of the publicity

Conditions Have Improved.

The public has responded to the suggestions we have sent broadcast and it will continue to do so, just as long as we continue the effort we have launched. The response is general and all in the trade share in it. Are you not, Mr. Nonsubscriber, willing to bear your part of the expense, as well as to share in the benefit which is surely ours? Our committees think that you are and believe that your neglect is not intentional. Why not sit down right now and send to the secretary that check, which you

The Market.

The recent cold spell has wrought havoc with the fruit and garden crops throughout western Pennsylvania. The market gardeners are hit hard, those planting crops out of season, of course, suffering most heavily. While asparagus has experienced a drawback, examination shows that the roots are uninjured.

The flower markets during the last two days have experienced the first lull since Easter, with marked decrease in prices of all varieties of blooms. Consequently special offers for roses of elegant quality in lots of 500 are being made at $15 and $20. Conditions indicate that these are the flowers that will dominate Mothers' day instead of carnations, which remain scarce and demand an average wholesale price of 8 and 10 cents apiece. Violets are, of course, passe, but otherwise the general line of stock continues plentiful. Sweet peas have a range of $1 to $3 per hundred.

brother, Private Joseph Franklin Clark, wrote home of having spent Easter Sunday with his uncle in County Mayo, Ireland. He went into the service last June and is located in France with Motor Transport 520. The Clark boys are sons of B. F. Clark, the east end landscape man, whom they formerly assisted.

William M. Turner, of Wilkinsburg, has just added two Ford trucks to his delivery system. His neighbor, Joseph Leo Giesey, also purchased another Ford truck recently. Miss Kathryn McGivern, who for several years has assisted the latter, has been given a position in the salesroom. Mr. Giesey most emphatically protests against the prevailing high prices of cut flowers, asserting that he grows all his own bulbous stock and geraniums and that his own experience has proven to him that the high prices are not justifiable. He contends that customers of the great middle class are rapidly coming to the point where they will discontinue the use of blooms for their tables.

Harry J. Hamm and his war bride, who have been making their home with the former's parents since his return from Camp Holabird, have taken an apartment on Homewood avenue near the store. Mr. Hamm's brother and former manager, Allen J. Hamm, is not recovering so rapidly as expected from the attack of influenza to which he fell a victim last fall.

Sergeant Thomas A. Joyce has returned from overseas service with the 67th Artillery and is taking a two months' vacation before returning to business. He will relieve his brother, Joseph N. Joyce, who has been acting as manager in his absence.

C. The silken oriental poppies designed here are proving especially popular accessories for art needlework shops. E. E. S.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

With the warmer days of the week the supply of roses and sweet peas has greatly increased, the only exception in supply being carnations. These continue to come in slowly. The price for average grades is $5 and $6 per hundred. It is reported, however, that they will soon be plentiful. Many of the local growers say that they are commencing on a full crop. This news is welcome to the retail trade, and Mothers' day may not prove so difficult for want of carnations as some have imagined lately. F. P. A.

Grinnell, Ia.—Paul Kinsman, for the last ten years associated with the Kemble Floral Co., of Oskaloosa, Ia., has been transferred to the Kemble plant at Grinnell, where he will have charge of the Hazelwood Greenhouses. He relieves C. S. Adams, who, with his family, has moved to Manchester, Ia., where he expects to erect a large greenhouse.

Des Plaines, Ill.—Frank Garland has been successful in growing continuous crops of radishes all winter, following chrysanthemums, getting good prices, while the cost of the seed is much less. This is directly opposite to conditions that prevailed the year previous. The soil is sterilized just previous to sowing; this is found to stimulate the germination of the seed, owing to the warmth of the soil, in addition to killing all weeds and insects. "Sowing fifteen pounds of seed by hand is no joke, but it has well paid for the patience required," observed Mr. Garland.

The Market.

The wholesale market during the last week was strong in supply, but not in demand. Stock accumulated daily and the retailers bought sparingly all the week. The latter say business since Easter has been dragging along slowly, as, outside of funeral work, there has been little doing. Several large weddings and social functions scheduled for this week, and Mothers' day, May 11, should help greatly to make the coming week a busy one for all of the retailers.

In looking over the various wholesale markets, the writer found a great supply of sweet peas, in all grades. These had to be disposed of some days as low as $1 per thousand, in lots of 10,000 and 20,000. Snapdragon was another flower on which clearances were not made easily.

Carnations were up and down. During the early part of the week, $10 and $15 per thousand bought good stock. Later in the week, they were up to $3 and $4 per hundred. The bulk of the stock is of excellent quality.

The Market.

The wholesale market during the last week was strong in supply, but not in demand. Stock accumulated daily and the retailers bought sparingly all the week. The latter say business since Easter has been dragging along slowly, as, outside of funeral work, there has been little doing. Several large weddings and social functions scheduled for this week, and Mothers' day, May 11, should help greatly to make the coming week a busy one for all of the retailers.

In looking over the various wholesale markets, the writer found a great supply of sweet peas, in all grades. These had to be disposed of some days as low as $1 per thousand, in lots of 10,000 and 20,000. Snapdragon was another flower on which clearances were not made easily.

Carnations were up and down. During the early part of the week, $10 and $15 per thousand bought good stock. Later in the week, they were up to $3 and $4 per hundred. The bulk of the stock is of excellent quality.

classes of Russell and Ophelia, while the supply of Killarneys was large, especially in the white variety, and these were hard to clean out, even at extremely low prices.

In bulbous stock, tulips were in large supply all the week, but the cut is almost over for the season. There was a good cut of outdoor valley, which sold well, as did Spanish iris. Gladiolus spikes of many varieties are numerous, but the demand is not heavy enough to clean them up in one day. Easter lilies are not in oversupply. Marguerites, which generally sell well, are hard to move this season.

Extra fine, long smilax was in good supply, as well as asparagus. Fancy flat ferns moved well all the week.

Storm Causes Much Damage.

A severe wind and hail storm the night of May 4 did much damage to the following greenhouse establishments: W. A. Rowe lost about twenty-five per cent at the Kirkwood plant. The large plant on the Denny road suffered no loss. A. S. Cerny lost about twenty-five per cent also. Others who reported losses were W. J. Edwards, F. W. Ude, Jr., W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., G. A. Ahner, Paul Ahner, August Hartmann, George Hartmann, Pierre Schneider, William Winter, Ben Niemeyer and A. F. Kopp. The places mentioned are within a mile of one another and, as the hailstones were the largest in that region, they suffered the most loss. Others outside this belt sustained a loss of only a few lights of glass.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association held an interesting meeting April 28, at the Missouri Inn Garden. The attendance was better than usual. President Fred C. Weber, Jr., presided over the meeting. A number of important matters that were left over from previous meetings were taken up and disposed of. There was a general discussion of publicity. The four members who represent the association in the Florists' Board of Trade were instructed to attend the next meeting of the board, as important matters pertaining to the retailers will be taken up at the board meeting. Refreshments were served. The next meeting of the association will be held May 12.

The members of the St. Louis County Growers' Association and a number of florists from this city spent a jolly evening at the establishment of W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo., April 30. A band furnished music for dancing and all who attended spent a pleasant evening.

At a recent meeting of the St. Louis Ladies' Florists' Club, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. S. Cerny, Kirkwood, Mo.; vice-president, Mrs. Gust Grossart, Belleville, Ill.; secretary, Mrs. Julius Koenig. Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Jr., was reëlected treasurer. The new officers presided over the meeting held May 7, at the Missouri Botanical Garden. The new officers are looking forward to a large increase in membership this year.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club held their regular meeting at the home of Treasurer W. C. Smith. An interesting program was mapped out for this week's club meeting, which will be held at headquarters, 1316 Pine street.

Claude Wisley, of Murphysboro, Ill., was a visitor last week and, with W. A. Rowe, visited the various growing places in Kirkwood. Mr. Wisley reports that he is building a new house 29x175 feet, with other improvements, to cost $6,000. The work is being done by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. It is to be completed by July 1.

A. Jablonsky, of Olivette, Mo., is consigning to this market a splendid cut of gladiolus spikes in many varieties. John Steidle and Otto Bruenig, also of Olivette, have a large cut of extra quality roses. Especially fine are the Russell and Ophelia, all of which are consigned to H. G. Berning.

Miss Catherine Vesey, daughter of W. J. Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind., appeared at the Schubert-Jefferson theater last week with the Soldier Players, with which she takes the leading roles. The play was given for the benefit of the publicity fund of the Victory loan. Many in the trade attended.

H. C. Heileman, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, spent a few days here last week.

Morris H. Levine, of Lion & Co., New York, was warmly greeted by his many friends in the trade last week. It was his first visit here since his return from France.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.; thirty-seventh annual convention, Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 24, 25, 26, 1919.

How long will 1917 stand as the record big year for the seed trade?

THE sale of flower seeds this season has exceeded the record of any year since the trade began to feel the effects of war.

ON the whole, the seed trade is not worrying about next season's stock. The reserve has become adequate to relieve anxiety.

"BUSINESS is good." That is the way Chicago seedsmen describe present conditions. They say further that perennials are more popular this year than last, but have no explanation for this.

THE travelers for the Holland bulb exporters are finding it rather difficult to book orders, because of the increase in their prices. The lighter the bookings these gentlemen carry home, the better business will be next autumn for American seed houses which deal in bulbs.

SEARS-ROEBUCK'S SEED ORDERS.

The world's gr atest mail order house, Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, has made another excursion into the mail order seed trade this season with, according to reports, greater satisfaction than was obtained the first time the concern went into the seed business, several years ago. Profiting by the first experience, a different method was pursued this time. Instead of putting in a stock of bulk seeds as was done before, last winter Sears, Roebuck & Co. invited a number of seed houses to bid on a contract for supplying stock in packets and packages. Considering all factors, it was decided to give the contract to the Everette R. Peacock Co., which has a warehouse not far from the mail order establishment. The contract provided that the seller should supply packeted goods as wanted, under the buyer's label. A minimum number of packets of each kind was specified, but the buyer was to be permitted to go as far as circumstances demanded and is understood to have taken considerably more than the minimum quantity bargained for.

The first announcement that Sears, Roebuck & Co. were going to supply seeds for the season of 1919 was contained in a general catalogue sent out last winter. The announcement was not a conspicuous one and merely stated that a special seed catalogue would be supplied on request. A coupon was provided. It is of interest to note how steady the calls for catalogues were. They were mailed only to those who asked for them. The requests came at the rate of 1,300 to 1,500 per day, the number received varying scarcely at all for weeks. The catalogue offered nothing smaller than 10-cent packets.

The orders resulting from the distribution of the seed catalogues are said to have exceeded in number what was expected, but to have fallen short in average size. It was figured that the catalogues were going into the hands of agricultural people who buy in considerable quantity, but if reports are reliable this expectation scarcely was realized. It is said the average size of the seed orders has been approximately $1.50. Mail order seedsmen will be interested in comparing this with their own records. It probably will be found not far from general experience, counting strictly mail orders from the general public.

One of the features of the seed orders received by Sears, Roebuck & Co. which has attracted the attention of those who have had the opportunity of watching them has been the number of calls for flower seeds. These have exceeded expectations. It has seemed to indicate that the seed catalogues went into the hands of the farmers' wives and children rather than into the hands of the farmers themselves.

BERMUDA ONION SHORT.

American seedsmen dealing in Teneriffe onion seed will have to reckon with the loss of half the 1919 crop, according to Consul George K. Stiles, who wrote March 6:

"The most persistent drought within the last fifty years has just been broken in the Canary Islands by a fairly heavy rainfall, which has arrived, however, too late to prevent an extraordinary amount of damage. Of principal interest to American buyers is the fifty per cent destruction of the onion-seed crop, for in 1917 and 1918 over ninety per cent of this important product was exported to America, the value in 1917 being $133,264 and in 1918 $99,036. The onion seed was caught in full blossom by the drought and a great deal of it was badly burnt by southerly winds. Although this is largely an irrigated crop, the plant can not reach its best condition unless rain falls upon the blossoms and foliage.

"It would perhaps be of interest to American holders of Canary Island onion seed to know that experiment here seems to have proved that the seed, if carefully soldered up and kept in a dry, dark depository, can be guarded for at least twelve months without any apparent loss of germinating power or any depreciation in the size, weight or quality of the onion grown from such seed. This statement is based on information furnished by one of the largest and most scientific growers in these islands, who states that he has so conserved and afterwards sown such seed with most satisfactory results. There have been heretofore a certain number of complaints proceeding from American buyers that Canary Island seed when kept from one season to another failed to give satisfaction. It would be interesting to know the result of experiments along this line carefully conducted by scientific growers in various sections of the United States."

The Market.

Commencing May 1, the market has distinctly improved. The near approach of Mothers' day is in some degree responsible for this, particularly in the case of carnations, which open the present week at $8 to $10 per hundred and promise to make a considerable advance over these figures before May 10. A good supply will be available, provided we get a few warm days to make the flowers pop out, to use a common grower's expression. The lack of really warm weather so far (our highest of the year has been 75 degrees) keeps the quality of carnations first-class. Roses are moving better in sympathy with carnations. Among varieties of extra fine quality now are Francis Scott Key, Milady, Maryland, Columbia, Ophelia, Double White Killarney, Hadley, Russell and Miller. There are still small lots of locally grown double violets. Sweet peas are of excellent quality. Some select flowers realize $3, but the bulk go at $1 to $2 per hundred.

There is a fair supply of both callas and lilies, but the demand for them is not robust. Snapdragons also go rather slowly. Daffodils are nearing the end and tulips are in short supply. Outdoor-grown Poeticus ornatus is coming in. Of Spanish iris there is a good supply, but the demand is somewhat weak. Calendulas, myosotis, anemones, polyanthus, Gypsophila elegans and other miscellaneous flowers are arriving in fair quantity. Cut Lilium candidum which did not bloom in time for Easter meets with a poor sale now. Quite a little delphinium still comes in. There is now a good supply of Cattleya Mossiæ and there are small lots of gardenias. Greenery only sells moderately.

Various Notes.

Mothers' day is the principal topic in flower circles at present. It looks as though carnations would be forced up in price to a rather dangerous point at the expense of other flowers, and it behooves everyone to insist on white flowers and bright flowers rather than white and colored carnations. Those who in the past would willingly pay 10 cents for a single carnation will naturally hesitate about paying 25 cents for the same flower. If roses, sweet peas, bulbous flowers, etc., were included, it would be far better for business in general. One prominent wholesale firm here considers the present date of Mothers' day a poor one, and thinks the middle of June, with flowers more abundant, would be a vastly better date for it, but would the public favor a change to a date coming so soon after Memorial day?

In the Arnold Arboretum, the Japanese cherries, magnolias, forsythias, benzoins and other early shrubs are now most attractive and visitors are numerous. The pyrus and malus display is now splendid and lilacs will soon follow.

I am glad to report William H. Carr, a prominent salesman at the Flower Exchange, as convalescing nicely from an attack of pneumonia at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Brighton. Mr. Carr was taken sick April 24.

Yellow marguerites are splendidly grown by John T. Gale, of Tewksbury, who has three large houses of them. For the best flowers he secures $4 per hundred and his cut now is a heavy one.

The Budlong Rose Co. at present has a large daily shipment of roses. Among those which are specially fine at this season are Francis Scott Key, Milady, My Maryland, Evelyn, Double White Killarney, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst, Columbia and Ophelia Supreme. The two latter varieties are well liked.

Arnold Janiten, a prominent Arlington florist, formerly of Janiten & Wollrath Co., was among those arrested in connection with a red flag parade in Roxbury May 1. No American flag appeared in the parade and this precipitated a serious riot. There were 114 arrests made and Mr. Janiten received a two months' imprisonment sentence, which he has appealed.

Thomas Roland gets a big cut of roses now from his Revere establishment. May 3 he had over 12,000. Specially fine were Hadley, Columbia, Ward and Ophelia.

The establishment of Henry M. Robinson & Co. is a busy one. They have many Mothers' day orders and look for a big flower demand for that day. They are making big preparations for Memorial day. W. N. C.

Franklin, Pa.—Charles V. Clark recently opened a flower store in this city, to be known as the Rosery Flower Shop.

Auburn, Ind.—C. M. Ten Eyck & Son have opened a branch flower store at Garrett, Ind., of which Mrs. S. H. Ten Eyck will be in charge temporarily.

Every merchant needs accurate store records for two purposes

① At the end of each year he needs a complete, accurate report of store transactions to help make out his Income Tax return.

② He needs these same figures every business day. He needs them to control his business.

He needs these figures to know how much money he is making, and what it costs him to do business.

Every merchant can get a record of his store transactions in two ways—the old-fashioned way, by hand, or he can get them by machinery.

A modern National Cash Register makes accurate, unchangeable records. It classifies, adds, certifies. It saves work and reduces expenses.

No merchant should keep records by hand that can be kept so easily by a National Cash Register.

A post card will bring full information about what an up-to-date National will do to help you.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SAN FERNANDO, CAL.

Alois Frey, originator of the Rainbow freesia, whose headquarters are at Crown Point, Ind., has bought ten acres of land in the frostless district near here and plans to move his entire freesia stock to this location next fall, making his home here. His plan is to transfer to San Fernando all the work connected with the growing of freesia bulbs, continuing to grow cut flowers at his greenhouses at Crown Point, for the Chicago market. His intention is to continue the work of developing colored freesias at the San Fernando place, raising seedlings, selecting those that show an improvement, working up stock for dissemination and subsequently growing stock of the named varieties on contract and for general sale. He is prepared to begin the dissemination of new named varieties in 1920, with Viola, lavender, and General Pershing, pink and white, both distinct sorts.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

As usual after the holidays, stock piled up to some extent, as the demand from outside points fell off considerably. The local retail business has not been particularly good. One large funeral cleaned up a lot of choice stock and there were several social affairs that helped out.

Roses are coming in fair shape, but some mildew is appearing. The price has dropped considerably and the demand is slight. Among bulbous stock, the Spanish iris takes first place and has held up well in price. Tulips are almost gone. Carnations are fine from the field, while the greenhouse varieties are also good. Sweet peas are a mixed lot, some extra good ones coming from the Montebello growers, while a few are coming from the beach section.

Small flowers are plentiful and good. Orchids are coming in better shape and there are more of them. The demand has been good. There is a little valley in the market, but it is of fair quality only.

The Climbing Cecile Brunners are becoming more plentiful and to some extent check the sale of the greenhouse and bush varieties.

In greens, plumosus is more plentiful and of better quality. The northern greens are not so good, the young growths not being fully developed. This condition will not last long. Brake is also of second quality only. In pot plants there are a few baby roses, hydrangeas, pelargoniums and ferns, but the demand is not of the best.

Various Notes.

H. Williamson, brother of W. M. Williamson, of the force of Walter Armacost & Co., was married April 28 to Miss Heacox.

The L. A. Floral Co. is handling the stock of the new double hydrangea in Los Angeles. This is a most beautiful plant and all who have seen it are delighted with it. The flowers are as large as a fair-sized tuberous begonia and of a lovely soft shade of pink. Many compare it to a phalænopsis. The plant is strictly hardy and more or less perpetual blooming, not at all freakish, like so many double flowers. The time is not far distant when this fine plant will be universally grown, as it has all the good points of the old hydrangea and none of the weaknesses of the French varieties.

John Polder, of Polder Bros., is now at home and well on the way to perfect recovery.

Fine stock of all kinds is shown at the store of S. Murata & Co., where shipping business is keeping up well.

H. R. R.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The market is holding its own. A normal supply of everything is taking care of the business, which is good. The rainy weather of the last few weeks has held back stock to some extent, but has been a benefit rather than a hindrance.

Although Easter business seemed a little awkward without lilies, the people had been taught not to expect them and so were not disappointed. There were large quantities of potted roses, a good number of hydrangeas, some azaleas and rhododendrons and many other plants of less consequence, which, taken collectively, made a good showing and helped business immensely. Snapdragons are arriving now in a small way and soon there will be plenty for everyone. The weather now is ideal for the rapid growth of everything and the market will not suffer for want of anything in flowers.

Various Notes.

Plans are rapidly taking form for the rose festival. Collections or contributions are coming in and the management is getting its committee at work on the different departments, so there is no doubt that it will be as great a success as in former years.

Clarke Bros. are showing in their window this week a fine lot of sweet peas and candidum lilies, grown by John Holden; also some excellent gladioli grown in their own houses, as well as other potted plants. They report business a little quiet and stock abundant, perhaps in oversupply.

Chappell's Floral Shop has a fine lot of irises, tulips and peonies this week. Business is good.

John Van Aalst, of the Lakeview Bulb Nursery, Kirkland, Wash., is in town soliciting business from the larger growers.

The Martin & Forbes Co. is making another fine showing of Iris susiana. The stock also comprises some variegated tulips, which are attracting a good deal of attention; also a good supply of lilies, snapdragons and gladioli. This is the only store that made much of a showing of yellow callas and these elicited favorable comment. These flowers do not appear as stiff as the white variety and seem to find a ready sale. This company's showing of orchids this

The Market.

There is an abundance of stock, as is usual at this time of the year, and prices have receded since Easter, but it cannot be said that the market is demoralized. Business has held up fairly well since the holiday and the surplus has not become burdensome on any particular item. Roses easily head the list, notwithstanding the competition of other more seasonable offerings. They are of excellent quality and this helps to maintain their enviable position. Russell is particularly good and cleans up closely, but, on account of the quantities of other flowers available, the top price is only $2 per dozen. Columbia is rapidly gaining popularity in this section, but still unquestionably leaves first place to Russell.

First-quality carnations are scarce, which tends to make these flowers more of a drug on the market than any other offering at the present time. Sweet peas are getting more plentiful and sell well, these being popular flowers for general use here. Tulips are nearing the end of their season and lilacs are in lighter supply the last few days. Miscellaneous outdoor stock affords much variety in the daily supply, embracing quantities of marigolds, mignonette, myosotis, gaillardias, etc. Spanish iris is conspicuous at most of the stores and has a good call. It also is a prominent shipping item, out-of-town orders easily taking care of any threatened surplus. Violets are entirely gone.

Orchids are in heavier supply than they have been for several weeks. There is a surplus of gardenias. The demand for flowering plants has held up well since Easter. This applies especially to rhododendrons, hydrangeas and roses. Greens are in ample supply. There are heavy arrivals of fine cut ferns.

From all indications, stock for Mothers' day will be in splendid condition and ample for all requirements. The outlook for flower buying on this day is more favorable this year than formerly.

Various Notes.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has been devoting practically all his time to the Victory loan drive. The final report on Easter sales at this establishment reveals a substantial increase over previous years and post-holiday business gives no ground for complaint. Mr. Rossi's advice to florists is to advertise—to make flowers appeal to the buying public by attractive presentation in whatever way possible. For instance, if department stores, specialty shops and other business firms will pay a good price for rose arches and other floral decorations, to make their shops attractive, why is it not good advertising for the florists to make use of these special features in their own places of business? If, after an effective Easter display has brought good sales, a rose arch or some other large piece should be left over, charge the cost to advertising and consider the money well spent. As far as Mothers' day is concerned, Mr. Rossi looks for increased sales this year, but he holds that much better results probably could be obtained if the florists here would get together and push. In his opinion a few hundred dollars, spent by the trade as a whole, to advertise Mothers' day would pay big returns in the long run, the idea being to get the custom of buying flowers on that day firmly established here.

J. G. Pagano, buyer for Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has the sympathy of the trade because of the death of his one-year-old baby. Death was due to pneumonia. Funeral services were held April 25.

Mr. Desmond, manager of the Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, Wash., is spending a few days in San Francisco.

N. F. Baldocchi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, reports much funeral work and enough other business to keep the daily receipts up to a comparatively large figure. This house will have a 100 per cent Victory loan flag.

Mrs. C. E. McCoy, of Seattle, Wash., stopped in this city a few days ago on her way home, after touring southern California.

A few plants remained at the store of B. M. Joseph after Easter, but they have found purchasers since, thus affecting a close clean-up.

Henry Avansino, of Avansino Bros., sums up the situation in a few words: "Stock is plentiful; flowers are particularly fine in quality and the demand is seasonably good."

James Jordan, with F. C. Jaeger & Son, has gone to Los Angeles, Cal., for two weeks' vacation. A new man on the Jaeger staff is George Moore, formerly with Mark H. Ebel, Sacramento, Cal. Mr. Jaeger is well pleased with business, having had a banner month in April. He considers the outlook especially bright for Mothers' day.

A wedding decoration which goes down in history as one of the finest pieces ever made by Albert O. Stein, the Stockton street florist, was used at the Moses Heller place, in Menlo Park, April 27, when Miss Ruth Heller became the bride of Richard Shainwald. being used. The Stein force worked two and one-half days arranging the decorations, which necessitated bringing the rose plants in the garden into full bloom by the use of cut roses. From the house to the pergola, under which the ceremony was performed, was an aisle 240 feet long, formed by hedges of heather, pink spiræas, stocks, etc., linked together with garlands of sweet peas and Russell roses. The bride carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and orchids, of special design, while the bridesmaids carried fans of Russell, Ophelia, September Morn and Columbia roses, respectively.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee relaxed after the Easter rush and motored into Lake county on a fishing expedition. She took along complete camp equipment, in order to enjoy outdoor life to the fullest extent. At the store on Hyde street, business is reported holding up well since Easter, with preparations being made for a big Mothers' day.

Enomoto & Co. have a nice lot of Spanish iris for Mothers' day shipping orders and they look for good business.

Mark H. Ebel, well known Sacramento florist, visited the local members of the trade this week, bringing a good report of Easter business from the capital city.

Fred Bertrand, manager of the retail business of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., was pleased with April business. Being new in the place, he had no way to gauge the preparations for Easter sales. For that reason, he is particularly well satisfied, because everything cleaned up closely, justifying the extensive preparations which had been made. His force is new, but Mr. Bertrand says the men handled the rush in fine shape. To them he is inclined to give great credit for the splendid results. Now that building construction and improvement work are going forward again on a large scale, the landscape department is extremely busy with many contracts.

The death of John Brown, well known nurseryman, who died April 25, in Chico, Cal., is reported in this week's obituary column. M. M.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.

Business has been extremely dull. There has been little funeral work and flowers are so plentiful that florists have a hard time finding vases to hold the supply. Lilac, both purple and white, arrived this week. Daffodils are gone. Greenhouse carnations are poor and show signs of thrips. Roses are quite plentiful, both inside and outside. Easter lilies that were too late for Easter are being shown in the florists' windows. Orchids are equal to the demand.

Considerable interest was shown in the twelfth annual rose show of the San Diego Floral Society. Almost 250 varieties of roses were exhibited, mostly by amateur growers. F. A. Bode, a local florist, acted as one of the judges. A notable exhibit was that of the city park, under the direction of J. G. Morley, park commissioner.

Decorations for a farewell banquet, given by the sailors of the naval training station here to their officers, were in the hands of Boyle & Darnaud. The affair was given at the U. S. Grant hotel. Pink carnations and pansies were used. A. D.

AROUND THE BAY CITY.

An Appreciation.

"Welcome the coming, speed the parting guest," should be the slogan of the trade in San Francisco. At any rate, every florist who goes there carries away with him this impression. Among so many good fellows, it is hard to pick out the first, but the first we met was A. Axell, who for many years has handled the fine rose stock of the E. W. McLellan Co., and the writer's advice to any visitor who does not know him is to make good the omission at once. Mr. Axell's heart grows at about the same rate as his avoirdupois, which is rather rapidly.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is constructed along the same lines as Mr. Axell and a whole-hearted welcome is always to be had there.

Another "Good Fellow."

Pete Ferrari—everybody calls him Pete, from the school children up—runs his place more economically than anyone with whom the writer is acquainted and surely gets the trade. The Columbia rose is grown magnificently here. Laddie carnation is wonderful and the writer has on his desk a dozen flowers, shipped to Los Angeles five days ago. The stems are thirty-six inches long, the flowers about five inches across and they are just as good as when they were cut. The color is a delightful salmon-pink. The orchids are in fine shape, big batches of Cattleya Mossiæ, C. Gaskelliana and C. speciosissima being in bloom or sheath. One house is devoted entirely to phalænopsis. After leaving the nursery, Mr. Ferrari took us for a drive, which was extremely enjoyable. The view from Twin Peaks over the city and the Golden Gate is superb and gives one a fine idea of the size of the city and the general appearance of the country. Evidently, southern California has not all the good roads.

An Enjoyable Trip.

Another enjoyable trip was with Donald McLaren through Golden Gate park and along the ocean front. The rhododendrons in the park are magnificent, though not quite at their best yet. Driving for miles along the fine roads among well established shrubbery and trees, it is hard, indeed, to realize that a few years ago there was nothing but drifting sand dunes. It is a monument to the patience and skill of Mr. McLaren, Sr., and it is no wonder that the people of San Francisco speak of "our parks" and "our Mr. McLaren."

Next day, under the capable guidance of Dan MacRorie, the route followed was through the nurseries of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., at San Mateo, and the newer plantations of ericas at the Spring Valley reservoir. Practically all the stock at the nursery that was finished had been sold for Easter, but the propagating houses were full of interest. Erica melanthera is one of the leaders here and there are numbers of others grown in immense quantities.

Some Fine Seedlings.

A sport of E. melanthera, much deeper in color than the type, was found to propagate with difficulty from cuttings and Mr. MacRorie has raised a lot of seedlings that look promising. Young stock of E. persoluta alba is extra fine in 2-inch pots. Another fine thing is the new fern boxwood, of which there is quite a large stock. It is one of the most plumose and Mr. MacRorie says that it does not go down with moisture like some of the older types. The soil at Spring Valley is just right for ericas, as evidenced by the wonderful growth they are making. There is the nucleus of a big thing here. At Domoto Bros.', across the bay, the new double hydrangea was in fine shape, a great acquisition for plant growers. Many other fine plants and excellent rose stock were seen at this large and up-to-date range.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; forty-fourth annual convention, Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 25 to 27, 1919.

ARE you one of those who found April the biggest month in the history of the nursery business?

MANY nurserymen have found this an exceptionally good season, as the weather has been such that planting could be done every day during the winter.

NURSERYMEN'S PUBLICITY.

Educational Campaign.

"Does general educational publicity build business?" It does, according to Manager F. F. Rockwell, of the Nurserymen's National Service Bureau. In support of his statement, he says:

"Every time anybody suggests national publicity for nurserymen and mentions as an argument in favor of it what the California Fruit Growers', or some other association, has done, somebody in the back row is seen to rise up and say:

"'Yes; but our proposition is different. You cannot standardize nursery stock—and without standardization, publicity is not worth a tinker's tink.'

"Well, let us see about that. Let us take the things most nearly like the nursery trade—seeds and flowers. Has anyone ever succeeded in standardizing seeds or flowers?

More War Gardens.

"If you know any seedsmen at all, you know what the demand for vegetable seeds has been the last three years. Any seedsman will tell you that the publicity given to home gardening by the National War Garden Commission and the Department of Agriculture has helped tremendously the sales of vegetable seeds. The point of greatest interest is that the demand has kept up even after the war stimulus has ceased.

"Certainly flowers cannot be standardized. They are, compared to either vegetables or nursery stock, a luxury. However, last year, with the war still on and the Red Cross and war chest campaigns being pushed, the florists' business increased. The leading florists of the country believe the increase was due to their publicity campaign. That they are not merely talking when they say it is proved by the fact that the trade is using more money this year than last year for the publicity campaign. When a man talks with a check, he means what he says.

"This year, though prices are higher than they have been for several years, nurserymen have found a greater demand for their products than ever before. The reason for this is publicity.

Work of the Bureau.

"The work of the Nurserymen's National Service Bureau was not started until the beginning of the year, but during the last several weeks prospective planters have been urged to plant, told what to plant and how, by the series of educational articles which the bureau has supplied to over 500 newspapers throughout the eastern and midwestern states.

"The work of the Nurserymen's National Service Bureau is still in its infancy, but, if the little we have done so far has shown results so noticeable, can any nurseryman who is at all familiar with the part publicity plays in modern merchandising have any doubt that at least a small part of his advertising appropriation can be better expended in a coöperative campaign for general publicity than in individual effort?

"No nurseryman in the country, no matter how much money was spent, could possibly have obtained the publicity which the service bureau has been able to get. If the bureau's publicity had been paid for at advertising rates, it would have cost tens of thousands of dollars."

PERNICIOUS PUBLICITY.

"Here is an example of something that should be stopped," recently stated F. F. Rockwell, manager of the Nurserymen's National Service Bureau, referring to an article which appeared not long ago in a Chicago newspaper. "The right kind of publicity is all right, but some is harmful."

The newspaper printed the following:

"Every variety of barberry—the common, the purple, the bronze-leaved and all the rest—are under fire, and it is hoped that Illinois will soon be comparatively free from the pest. The Department of Agriculture is coöperating with a similar department at the University of Illinois in this work."

"The newspaper, of course, refers to the common barberry, because of the part it plays in the spread of wheat rust," continued Mr. Rockwell. "As every nurseryman knows, the Department of Agriculture has stated frequently that the Japanese barberry is not a host of the wheat rust.

"From information obtained from other sources, I know that other newspapers have been guilty of the same carelessness in remarks about wheat rust and the barberry. Every wide-awake nurseryman should be on the alert for this sort of thing and take the matter up immediately with the editor of his local newspaper when such statements appear, so that the public may be correctly informed. I know of a number of instances in which beautiful hedges of Japanese barberry have been torn out as a result of this misdirected 'patriotism' on the part of the newspapers.

"This information is being sent to 700 newspapers which the service bureau is supplying regularly with educational articles on small fruits, shade trees, shrubs, etc.

"Another 'warning' that has gained considerable publicity is the one which declares that planting should not be done this year because of the seventeen-year locust. More damage is done every year to newly planted stock through careless planting and ignorance than the seventeen-year locusts could do in seven times seventy-seven years.

"The Nurserymen's National Service Bureau, of course, does everything it can to combat this sort of thing, but individual nurserymen should coöperate by watching their local newspapers."

PAINESVILLE, O.

The shipping season for trees, shrubs and perennials is gradually coming to a close, owing to the advanced condition of the stock; but this does not mean that the busy season is over, for the next problem is planting and, although this is well under way, it will take several weeks to complete the job. In the plant order departments of the Storrs & Harrison Co., the shipping is in full swing, but over a week behind, which is an indication of the great demand for this kind of stock.

T. R. Norman & Sons have purchased a large quantity of transplanting stock from Jayne & Baker, who recently dissolved their partnership. One item was 26,000 Berberis Thunbergii.

Robert H. Botley, of the Storrs & Harrison Co., will visit in Springfield, O., in the near future. Mr. Botley has business interests in Springfield.

There probably is no business firm in this locality that has made more rapid strides in such a short time than the Wayside Gardens, of Mentor, O. Not only is the management building up a high-class trade by sending out stock of dependable quality, but is annually increasing the acreage. This year twenty-five acres were added, making a total of sixty-five acres under cultivation, devoted to perennials, shrubs, gladioli, etc.

C. C. Hallinan, florist and nurseryman, says the demand for cut flowers for

LARGEST GROWERS IN AMERICA

Mums and Poinsettias

Our list of Chrysanthemums is composed of the best commercial sorts. We will have a fine lot of young plants established in pots, ready to ship at benching time. $40.00 per thousand.

Last year we declined orders for as many Poinsettia Plants as we delivered. We have trebled our propagating stock this year. So come along with your orders. We root them as readily as Coleus. $8.00 per hundred; $75.00 per thousand.

Have you placed your order for our new Carnation, Ruth Baur, for 1920 delivery? Write us, too, for field-grown plants of standard varieties to bench this summer.

BAUR & STEINKAMP

3800 Rockwood Ave. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Mothers' day is increasing every year, thus bringing about a top-notch price. In this locality flowers are scarce, owing to the prevailing rainy weather.

Painesville is to have a legal holiday and a mammoth parade in honor of the returned soldiers the latter part of May. This late date has been set in order to give a chance for all the ex-soldiers to enjoy the festivities, as they have been returning in small groups. The florists and nurserymen will be well represented in the line of march.

The Carl Hagenburger Co. is growing in pots some fine aquilegia, better known as columbine, which not only sells readily as a pot plant, but also as a cut flower.

A new nursery business started here recently is that of Fred Endress & Son. Mr. Endress says business is good, which goes to show that there is always room for one more.

The firm of Jayne & Baker was recently dissolved and the business hereafter will be conducted by Mr. Baker.

Julius Kohankie has disposed of large quantities of Berberis Thunbergii and hardy phlox through his advertisement in The Review. Mr. Kohankie says it pays to advertise.

S. R. Welch, foreman of the Storrs & Harrison Co. shipping and order department, says that a great many florists are calling for their orders with trucks. This not only saves boxes and packing material, but gives the purchaser the benefit of prompt service. T. J. M.

Plattsmouth, Neb.—E. A. Stanfield, proprietor of a book store in this city, has opened a flower store here. This is Plattsmouth's only florist's business.

Rutherford, N. J.—The Julius Roehrs Co. is another house that is a large importer. Rudolph Roehrs, who recently returned from a trip to Europe, reports conditions much disturbed, particularly in Belgium, though he did not proceed farther than Bruges, hearing such unfavorable reports from Ghent, the seat of the palm, azalea, bay tree and various other plant industries, so that it will be some time before pre-war conditions prevail. Easter business was satisfactory here.

ALBANY, N. Y.

After the Easter rush it seems rather quiet to get down to routine business again and during the ten days following Easter there has been a lull somewhat unusual for this season of the year, perhaps owing to the Victory loan campaign.

The Rosery Flower Shop, of which E. P. Tracey is proprietor, has been showing some fine plants of calceolaria. They sell well. Mr. Tracey said that his April business this year was far in excess of any April since he has been in business.

The Broadway Florists, Kurth & Burke, proprietors, had some nice sweet peas in their window display last week. Business has been good with them since Easter.

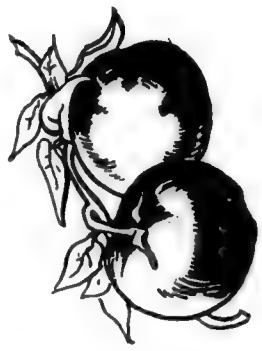
Among our leading florists in the south end of the city is John T. Travison. He is always on the jump with floral work and he knows how to turn it out, too.

W. C. Gloeckner had some fine snapdragon in his window this week, which attracted a great deal of attention from the passers-by. Mr. Gloeckner does a large F. T. D. business, which he advertises extensively.

The monthly meeting of the Albany Florists' Club was held at the rooms of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange May 1. John B. Skinner, one of our Central avenue florists, was elected to membership. The club voted to buy a $100 Victory loan bond. Already the members are talking of having a flower show next fall and it surely ought to be a good one, when it gets under way this early. H. M.

WICHITA, KAN.

Mrs. W. H. Culp, of W. H. Culp & Co., met with an accident recently. She was run down by an automobile and received a fractured wrist and painful bruises about the head. Mrs. Culp is able to be about again, but is still suffering from her injuries. The Culp company reports business exceptionally good, with a liberal supply in sight for Mothers' day.



Charles P. Mueller reports a fine Easter business and a continued call for funeral work. Mr. Mueller has a large quantity of cut flowers, the quality of which is especially good.

The weather here is somewhat unfavorable to growing. J. A. L.

New Braunfels, Tex.—A. E. Mollenhauer, who has been growing and selling plants here on a small scale for some time, is planning to enter the field on a larger scale next fall. He will operate under the firm names of the Rex Plant Gardens and the Rex Floral Co.

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses, 20x300 feet, of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus. These had been in bloom constantly since November.

These beautiful Primroses are still very scarce everywhere and good returns are awaiting those who will grow them. They find a ready sale when bunched like violets. The house may be utilized for other crops from May to November 1, as they are grown outdoors in summer.

Polyanthus this season have averaged 50 cents a small bunch and each plant will, when grown well, produce from two to three bunches.

They are planted 8x8 apart. Does any crop you grow give better returns? Strong divisions in May.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Trade during the last week has been quite satisfactory, a number of small weddings calling for considerable stock, although the principal demand has been for funeral work. Prices have sagged somewhat since Easter, but, from present indications, they will not get back to normal for another month. Many of the local growers cut quite closely for Easter and, with Mothers' day and Memorial day following so close together, prices will undoubtedly remain at least slightly above normal. Already the distress cry is going out for geraniums for Memorial day and a search for a supply has begun.

Various Notes.

Alfred Frye, formerly manager of the Butcher Greenhouses, has returned from military service in France.

Timothy O'Connor was a visitor in New York and vicinity last week.

The Eastern Wreath Mfg. Co., Valley street, is busy filling orders for Memorial day.

Cohen Bros., who recently purchased the Carl greenhouses on Lowell street, are preparing to make extensive changes and improvements this spring. Work has commenced on raising a dwelling on the premises, so as to give room for offices and salesrooms on the ground floor. The greenhouses will be overhauled and the benches rearranged.

Joseph E. Koppelman was a business visitor in New York last week.

W. B. Milliken, 120 Summer street, Franklin, reports heavy bookings for his dahlia bulbs.

Henry Patry, with William A. Bowers, became a member of the Elks recently.

Johnston Bros., Dorrance street, had the decorations for the wedding of Miss Blumer, daughter of Dr. A. Blumer, last week.

Frederick Dietz made a trip to Boston last week.

Henry Max has opened a retail store on Mathewson street, under the name, the Victory Flower Shop, with Harry Oakley as manager.

A new substation of the Providence post office was opened a few days ago in the seed store of Willis S. Pino, 41 Washington street.

M. B. Saunders, 638 Public street, reports many large orders for outdoor and landscape work.

Otto Peterson is to be married in the near future. The bride-to-be is Miss Lottie Dohrin, of Lincoln.

In common with all other lines of business, the florists and greenhouse men of this vicinity are much displeased by the increase in telephone rates, which went into effect May 1. The former unlimited rate for business houses has been eliminated and in its stead a measured service, limited to seventy calls per month on each line used, has been established. All calls in excess of the seventy per month will be charged for at 3½ or 4 cents a call. W. H. M.

The GRIP PLASTIC Glazing Machine

Evenly Balanced in ONE HAND. Controlled by ONE FINGER.

Constant even pressure produces a stream of GRIP PLASTIC, uniform in size, from a drum containing enough material to glaze many feet of glass without refilling. Three nozzles of different sizes that can be attached or removed in a second, are furnished with each machine. These nozzles are to vary the size stream without varying the pressure. The cylindrical handle contains the heavy compression springs that furnish the necessary pressure exerted upon the material in the drum. These springs are easily set or withdrawn for refilling by pulling the wooden grip as far out as possible.

The release of these springs accomplished by the long trigger distributes the glazing compound evenly and produces a neat and uniform job.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

DESIRES HIGH TEMPERATURE.

I would like to know what size of boiler will be required to heat three greenhouses, each 21x76, and the size and number of pipes necessary to heat to 80 degrees. These houses have concrete walls and glass, 12x24, underneath the gutters. The height of the side walls is four feet. The ridge is ten feet high and all three houses have glass on both ends. At present I am using flues to heat. F. F. S—Pa.

As a rule, in arranging the radiation for greenhouses, the minimum night temperature that must be maintained in the most severe weather is provided for. In ordinary winter weather this radiation will provide a temperature at least 10 degrees higher at night, and a still higher day temperature will be available, even in severe weather.

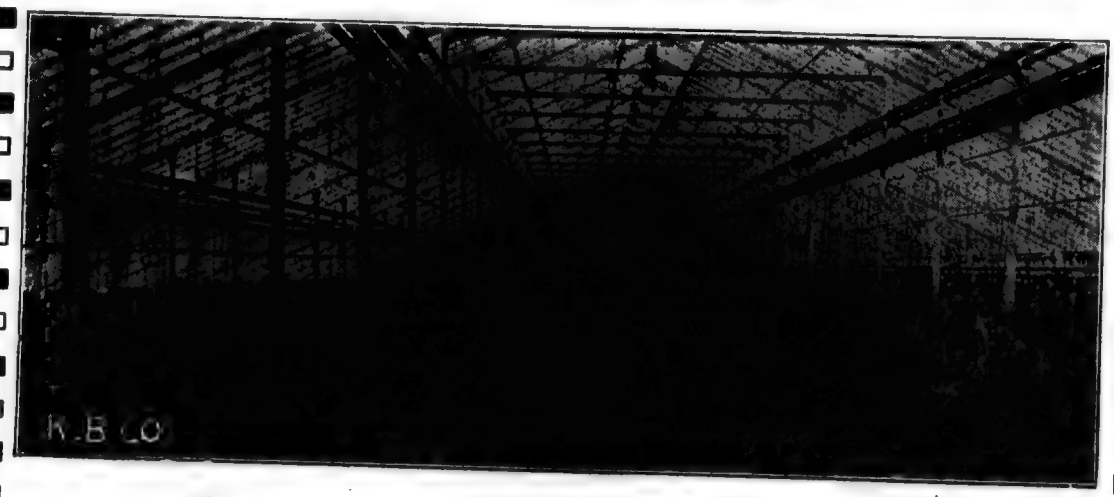
In a great many houses a temperature of 60 degrees is taken as a minimum, while in a still greater number a temperature of 50 degrees is all that is considered necessary. Seldom is a temperature of 80 degrees required in commercial houses. To maintain that temperature, the radiation must be double that required for one of 50 degrees.

If the three houses described have both side walls exposed, with twenty-four inches of glass, about 1,800 feet of radiation will be needed. While it would be possible to heat these houses to 80 degrees with a 30-horsepower boiler, it will effect a saving of both fuel and labor if a 40-horsepower boiler is used.

The number of flow and return pipes will depend upon the sizes selected. Thus, either one 2½-inch flow pipe or three 1½-inch flows may be used. If one flow is used, it should be two or three feet below the ridge, while with three flows, one should be on each plate and the other in the middle of the house, under the ridge.

Either eighteen 1-inch or fifteen 1¼-inch pipes may be used for the coils, placing one-third of the pipes on each wall, or under the side benches, and the remainder under the middle bench.

For a temperature of 70 degrees the number of returns of the size named would be fifteen and twelve, respectively, while for one of 60 degrees it would be twelve and ten, in the same way. Each coil should be joined to one of the flow pipes, if three are used, or to one of three branches taken off the 2½-inch flow pipe.



USE FLOW PIPES AND COILS.

I shall be greatly obliged if you will let me know whether a jacket heater rated to heat 110 gallons will heat a small greenhouse which I am building. The heater has three 1½-inch outlets.

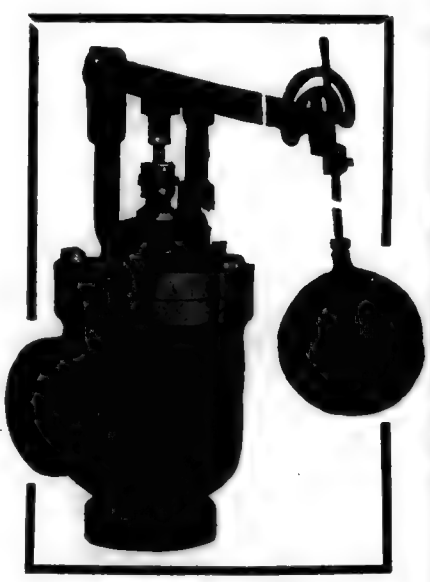
Cross Section View of Fisher Air Trap Type 30, showing how air is relieved.

Get Rid of the Air!

You can't have efficiency—results are bound to be unsatisfactory with air in the mains. It does get in—you can't keep it out. But you can PUT it out—get rid of it instantly with

Fisher Air Trap Type 30

It will relieve an entire system if placed at the high point, and you'll never have any more disturbing, annoying hammering. It responds quickly to the action of air, yet never leaks a drop of water. It's an inexpensive device that's worth its weight in gold to any hot water system.



Fisher Reducing Valve Type 11-A

Where the water supply must be taken from mains which also carry fire pressure this Reducing Valve is a safeguard to your entire system. No matter what the outside pressure may be, only the desired fixed pressure can pass through the valve. The expanded outlet effects a wonderful economy in installation.

Fisher Float Valve Type 17

A sturdy, dependable valve that maintains a fixed level in open tanks. It is automatic and the level is determined by a simple adjustment of float lever. It is designed for pressure of 250 pounds and every valve is air tested for tightness.

The Fisher Greenhouse Economizers shown above and many others are described in our catalogue. May we send it to you?

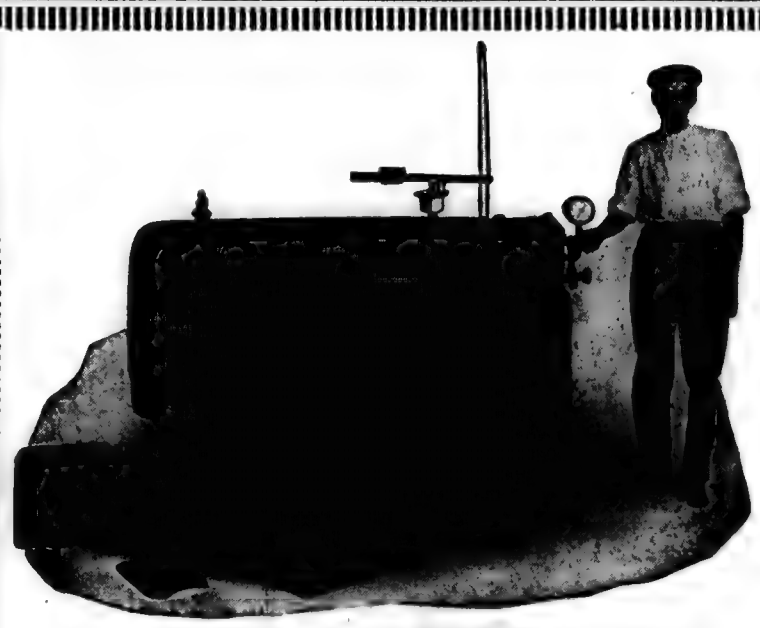
H. MUNSON

1433 No. Wells St. Phone Superior 572 Established 1892 CHICAGO, ILL.

I have been thinking of installing two feed pipes, each 1½-inch, to feed a 2-inch main, which would extend along the roof; then down, returning under a bench; back again to the far end, across the end and back to the heater under the other bench. The house is 10x14 and nine feet high to the ridge. The walls, aside from the glass, are constructed of four thicknesses of lumber and paper. I am enclosing a sketch of the house and piping. You will note that the 2-inch pipe, after running twice to the farther end of the house and back, is reduced to two 1½-inch returns at the heater. Is that the best way to arrange the piping? I wish to run the house at 65 degrees when the outside temperature is 30 degrees below zero. There are ninety square feet of glass.



F. M.—Can.

The sketch shows four feet of glass in the north slope of the roof and six feet in the south slope. We infer that there are about two feet of glass in the south wall, but the amount, if any, in the north wall is not indicated.

For maintaining a temperature of 65 degrees when the outside temperature is 30 degrees below zero, we would suggest the use of one square foot of radiation to two square feet of glass. The letter states that there are ninety square feet of glass in the house, but according to the sketch there are 140 square feet of glass in the roof alone, besides something like 132 square feet in the two ends and south wall. Even if there is no glass in the north wall, we would have to figure the wooden walls as fully equivalent to twenty-eight square feet of glass, making a total of 300 square feet. For this we advise the use of 150 square feet of radiation.

Instead of carrying the piping four times the length of the house and twice across the end, we would use the two 1½-inch flow pipes as feed pipes for the coils. Carry one of these flow pipes upon each of the side wall plates and, at the farther end of the house, connect them with the coils, of which there should be one under each of the side benches, with eight 1½-inch pipes in each coil.

If there were only ninety square feet of glass in the house, it would be possible to heat it with forty-five square feet of radiation and this would be furnished with the arrangement of 2-inch pipe suggested, but it would be far from heating 300 square feet of glass. If, for any reason, the use of 2-inch pipe is preferred, there is no objection to it. In that case we would run a 2-inch overhead flow pipe as suggested and, at the farther end of the house, drop down two 2-inch supply pipes under the benches to supply the coils, each of which should contain six 2-inch returns. In case it would be safe to drop the temperature in the house to 60 degrees when the weather is severe, one pipe in each coil might be omitted.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The market was well supplied with stock last week, with the exception of carnations, which were scarce. Roses arrived in quantity the first of the week and the latter part of the week the market was cleaned. Stock tightened up somewhat. The outlook for Mothers' day looks slim. There are not many plants in the market. Bulbous stock is scarce and few outdoor tulips or jonquils are in the market. Peas are arriving in quantity and clean up well. Calendulas are moving slowly. Easter lilies are plentiful.

Storm Damages Greenhouses.

The greenhouses of the Brookline Floral Co. were badly damaged by the wind storm which struck Cleveland and vicinity May 4. Four houses, which were heavily stocked with carnations for Mothers' day, were completely blown down. Glass was blown for half a mile. A barn on the property was split in two and one section was tossed more than 100 feet. The boiler house was lifted off its foundations and moved about ten feet. A residence occupied by Superintendent John Knorr and his family suffered considerable damage. One of his children was severely cut by flying glass.

The damage to the greenhouses is estimated at $8,000, which was covered by insurance. It is hoped that some of the stock will be saved when the debris is taken off.

Louis Koehl, operator of the plant, intends to rebuild immediately. W. F. B.

Princeton, Ill.—W. E. Trimble says his company had the biggest Easter ever dreamed of, selling out on everything that was in shape to sell.

Meadville, Pa.—George W. Haas & Son were tired but happy, as they did a record Easter business. They were fortunate in having a nice lot of lilies, which went quickly at 50 cents per bud and flower. They also had a number of azaleas and a good quantity of bulbous stock. Even geraniums in flower sold well. "The next thing," say Haas & Son, "is the Victory loan; let's put it over."

Stock will be in fair supply for Mothers' day. A good miscellaneous collection will be available, including roses, carnations, lilies, sweet peas, snapdragons, marguerites, candytuft, centaureas, poppies, yellow daisies, pansies, valley, orchids, Darwin tulips, Spanish irises and calendulas. Plants will be scarce and limited to a meager variety. Rose bushes, hydrangeas, pelargoniums, begonias and calceolarias will be available in this class.

As usual at this time, prices are high. Roses sell from $5 up. Carnations are none too plentiful and bring from $6 to $15. Lilies are available at $2 and $2.50 per dozen. Sweet peas are on the decline, both in quality and number. These, however, are good property at $1.50 per hundred. Snapdragons are one of the mainstays of the market. They range in price from $6 to $12.50 per hundred and are of good quality and various colors. From a delicate pink they shade to a deep red. White and yellow are also offered.

The smaller flowers are in heavy demand for tumbler baskets and corsages. Outdoor lilies of the valley are in good supply and work up well.

Local florists are expecting the largest Mothers' day business in the history of the Indianapolis trade and believe that all stock will be utilized.

Various Notes.

What is believed to be the largest celebration ever held in Indianapolis was staged here May 7. The home-coming of the famous Rainbow Division was the reason for the affair. Flags, bunting and laurel were everywhere. All business houses were closed at 11 a. m. for the remainder of the day. Florists' windows were appropriately decorated for the occasion and most of the flower stores were closed the entire day.

Allen Humason, of Chicago, was a visitor here this week.

Frank Harritt, well known to local florists, recently died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Josephine Harritt. Mr. Harritt had been ill for some time.

Eldon U. Weygandt is back from the south and is residing here.

Permanite

"Can't get along without Permanite"—

Writes Mr. Karl P. Baum, of Baum's Home of Flowers, Knoxville, Tenn. Mr. Baum ought to know; he has used Permanite for years and, like all other Permanite users, found the material far superior to putty, because it is ever-elastic and far more economical. Mr. Baum's letter tells the story—read it.

"We have been using Permanite Glazing Cement for several years and feel that it would be impossible for us to get along without it, particularly for our repair work. We say 'repair work' because we have never used Permanite for any other purpose, as we have done no new building for several years; but you can rest assured that we wouldn't think of using anything but Permanite when we rebuild or construct new houses."

Permanite, that ever-elastic glazing cement, can be used for glazing, re-glazing or repair work of any kind; it is as good for one purpose as it is for another. On new work Permanite does away with the usual bedding—the Permanite on top the glass making an absolutely air and water-tight joint; on old work Permanite is far more economical than putty—doing the work with less material and in less than half the time—and when it comes to mending broken glass, repairs of any kind, etc., Permanite will do the work quickly, efficiently and economically.

Ever-elastic and lasting—guaranteed to outlast putty three to four times—Permanite is the ONE SURE WAY toward better, more economical and dependable glazing; write for our latest four-page folder—it will show you how—and why!

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

did Easter trade and plenty of advance orders for planting out.

Miss L. Doussard, Grimm & Gorly and August Mirring, florists of East St. Louis, Ill., all report a good season's business.

The Alton Floral Co., Joseph Krug and Miss Dietschey, Alton, Ill., who buy supplies in St. Louis, say they are experiencing a busy season in plants and flowers.

The publicity committee, May 2, donated, in the name of the St. Louis florists, several large boxes of cut flowers, to be sold at the Caruso concert for the benefit of the orphan children of Italy. The flowers were contributed by the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., H. G. Berning and the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. J. J. B.

WATERBURY, CONN.

Business is holding up well in this section. We had the best Easter ever.

The interest of the people has been aroused through the use of stereopticon views showing the benefits to be derived from the use of a few plants and seeds and describing their properties.

The F. T. D. business showed a large increase over previous Easters in both incoming and outgoing orders.

Ryan & Powers have added a new delivery car to their service.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Cloudy weather has held flowers back somewhat during the last week, but there has been a sufficient supply for the after-Easter trade. Prices continue high, though not so high as they were during the Easter trade. The sale of seeds is increasing, as is the trade in hardy rose bushes and stock for spring bedding.

Various Notes.

A patent has been issued to Fred J. Mead for a greenhouse bench.

Philips Bros. report considerable wedding work since Easter. The Easter trade was the best they ever had, practically all of their large stock being cleaned out.

Ed Schuerman, formerly with Philips Bros., is at Atlantic City on his wedding trip. He married Miss M. Finter, of this city. R. B. M.

Scranton, Pa.—George R. Clark & Co. have a unique place, on the order of a universal provider, where one may obtain practically anything that is used in connection with Mother Earth. Thus it is not surprising to learn that trade is good.

Plow just the same; the Skinner System is not in the way

NEITHER plowing nor cultivation is interfered with. The posts are easily set up high enough to plow right under.

Or, you can suspend the line on a wire cable with A-shaped supports at the ends.

Right now we are selling a lot of the lines with the pipe included all drilled and equipped with nozzles. It may cost you a bit more to buy it that way, but when you come to figure your men's time in drilling, and tapping of the pipe and the bother there is in doing it right, you'll find it's quite as cheap to buy it all complete.

Send for prices both ways and figure it out yourself.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The supply for Mothers' day promises to be fair. Many heavy orders are coming into the wholesale houses for this day. During last week the market was well supplied with flowers and every call could be taken care of readily. Prices have stiffened this week.

An excellent supply of roses is coming into the market and it promises to be good for Mothers' day. Carnations are fairly plentiful, but the supply is not large enough to take care of the heavy demand. Easter lilies, rubrum lilies, callas and candidum lilies may be had. Sweet peas are in heavy supply. Iris has been finding a good market. Snapdragon sells well. Other offerings are larkspur, forget-me-not, calendula, outdoor lily of the valley and marguerites. Some excellent outdoor lilac has been in the market during the last fortnight. The supply of greens is fair and meets with an excellent call.

Various Notes.

The finance and publicity committee of the S. A. F. met in this city May 1. Besides cleaning up a substantial part of their business, they had an unusually enthusiastic open meeting in the evening at the Hotel Sinton. The meeting was well attended and the enthusiasm that was aroused is attested to by the fact that over $1,900 for the four-year period was subscribed to the publicity fund and many new memberships, including two life memberships, were obtained. Among those who attended and who made addresses were President J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Secretary John Young, New York city; Major O'Keefe, Boston; George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.; Herman Knoble, Cleveland; Henry Penn, Boston; Thomas Joy, Nashville, Tenn., and Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has moved into its larger and better quarters at 14 East Third street.

C. E. Critchell has been getting some excellent gladioli from the Louis Pfeiffer's Sons place at Fort Thomas.

P. J. Olinger has a good cut of carnations for Mothers' day.

The Wm. Murphy Co. has been getting a heavy cut of sweet peas.

L. N. Broadwell, Felicity, O., was in this city last week.

The next meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held May 12, at the H. W. Sheppard place. C. H. H.

PELARGONIUMS

PELARGONIUMS.
It's the "come-back" that builds up the big business and here's a "come-back" on the quality of stock you get when you place your order with us:

Logan, O., Jan. 27th, 1919
C. L. Humphrey, Zanesville, O.
Dear Sir: The pelargoniums shipped us arrived in fine condition, and to say the least, they just suited us. We are enclosing check for which please ship us as before, by Adams Express Co., 200 Pelargoniums Easter Greeting, 2¼-in. pots.
Yours very respectfully,
Gompf's Greenhouses.

We have a lot of fine 2½-in. Easter Greeting, ready to move up in 4-in. pots and will make you big money for Decoration Day, and our price is $12.00 per 100. Cash.

C. L. HUMPHREY,
ZANESVILLE, OHIO.

Don't forget we were the first to offer Easter Greeting in The Review, in 1914. We were so particular with the stock we shipped and the packing, in three years, that a very large trade comes to us automatically without advertising. We are now in the market with an elegant stock of 4-in. E. G. grown especially for Mothers' Day and later. This stock is vigorous, low down, all branched and well set with bud. Not a flower has yet bloomed out—everything ahead—a very desirable feature, and a condition difficult to secure at this season. We offer this stock at 20c each in any quantity, and we know it will make you quick money. S. C. Templin & Son, Easter Greeting Specialist, Garrettsville, O.

WATER ANALYSIS NEEDED.

We have a number of bay trees and for the last two or three years have had considerable trouble because of the trees losing their leaves. They are brought in before the frost each fall and placed in a house to themselves, which is run at a temperature of from 40 to 45 degrees at night and from 55 to 60 degrees during the day. They are not shaded in any way and are in tubs containing rotten peat. We do not allow them to get dry and cannot detect any scale or other disease.

C. J. T.—Mo.

The conditions under which these bay trees are kept during the winter appear to be such as would keep the plants in health, but the leaves submitted for examination seem, in most cases, to have turned yellow from the tips down toward the stem, while the yellow portion finally turns brown and dies. This seems more like a case of malnutrition than disease. This might be caused by some foreign substance in the water. An analysis of the water supply might furnish a solution of the difficulty.

Rutherford, N. J.—The Bobbink & Atkins place is a veritable beehive of activity. To one who remembers it in its early stages, this institution is a most striking demonstration of the possibilities of the business, when worked by men such as form the heads of this firm. Unfortunately, right at the beginning of the rush, the genial Fred L. Atkins was forced to step out for a rest, putting a double load on Mr. Bobbink, who seems equal to the occasion. Mr. Atkins is expected to return soon. Commenting on the embargo, Mr. Bobbink observed that whether or not it is enforced, it certainly has been responsible for large importations, so that the anticipated increase in the planting of estates will be carried out to the satisfaction of all concerned.

For absolutely no good reason—greenhouses are made in eleven Standard Widths.

It's a ten to one shot that the man who has bought a greenhouse doesn't know, when he stops to think it over, exactly why he bought a certain width. As a matter of fact, it's a general rule for people who sell greenhouse material to gauge the width of the house by the stock on hand. And, if overstocked on an item, they push the width of house that will work off the stock.

> And now comes the AGMCO—an exception to the rule—selling scientific houses designed from a practical knowledge of the men who use the houses—not merely so much woodwork, pipe and glass. Unless you buy a house designed with this practical knowledge ever present, you are losing a valuable opportunity and you are undoubtedly losing, not only money expended on the greenhouse at the present time, but you are losing money on the future production of the house.

There are eleven standard widths made by the various manufacturers, but of these the AGMCO builds but five, and of the five we recommend but two as most efficient.

So before you build your next house, find out about the two widths, and why they are proving the most wonderful greenhouses in the world.

And remember—

The AGMCO is blazing the trail for a new day in greenhouse construction. It builds the super-greenhouse—the only greenhouse that fulfills every requirement of the exacting, high-powered grower—the only greenhouse you can afford if you are to be a top-notcher and are to remain one during the next ten years.

When shall we discuss these two widths?

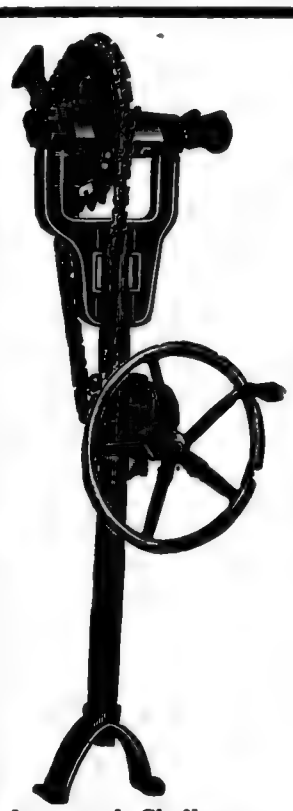
AGMCO

"The Carnations Have Stems On Them As Stiff As Pencils."

The above remark was made recently by a well-known grower. We were speaking of the relative merits of the narrow and wide greenhouses and he pointed to the stock in his wide houses and then showed the Carnations in the narrow houses, which had the same care and attention.

There surely was a difference.

Look over the above cut carefully. It is very wide for a pipe frame house, but with our new style "Bolted-Thru-The-Pipe" steel connections, it is amply strong to stand the winter's snows and storms.



Write for estimate on your greenhouse requirements. Do it quickly, for the season is advancing.

INDEX TO ADVERTISEMENTS AND TABLE OF CONTENTS—PAGES TWO AND THREE

For overhead mains, this group of fittings covers about all you will need, from hangers to expansion joints. Every part fully described on Page 124 of our new Handy Hand Book.

Vacuum Heating Valve. Note its simplicity of construction. Unscrew two bolts and off comes entire top, showing all its working parts to plain view.

Overhead Header for mains. Simple in construction. Positive in action. Easy to connect. Made of cast iron, brass and copper.

Overhauling You About Overhauling Your Heating

THERE are a lot of things about your heating that you could do right now, if only you would do them right now.

After all, a lot of us are quite like the southern darkeys, that as soon as warm weather comes they just plain forget there ever was, or ever will be any cold again.

Some growers, when firing is over, just never seem to give a thought again to their heating until firing time comes.

Then it is we get bunches of orders for all kinds of fittings to be sent by express—and sometimes even by motor truck.

In all good friendliness, allow us to suggest going over your heating now.

Find out what you need.

Order them now.

Be all ready this year when cool nights come.

Send for the new Handy Hand Book.

With it before you, ordering exactly what you want becomes a very simple matter.

Orchid Plants

May 31st Last Day to Import

This fact prompts us to make known the following:—

(1) We have the largest number
(2) The greatest variety
(3) The finest quality of ORCHID PLANTS in America

Cattleyas, Cypripediums, Vandas, Phalaenopsis, Oncidiums, etc.

Over 200 fine varieties, imported direct from all parts of the Orchid world.

Part of Our 1,250,000 Feet of Glass.

An Orchid Specialist from the finest conservatories in Massachusetts, here this week for the third time within six months, making large purchases, on entering our office volunteered the following:

"I am here again unsolicited because I have visited the leading establishments in America and without doubt you have the finest collection on this Continent."

We therefore shed our modesty and for the first time acquaint those interested in Orchid Plants with what we have.

If interested, write. Better still—visit our large range of eleven houses devoted exclusively to Orchids, and judge for yourself that we have, as claimed, THE FINEST IN AMERICA.

Prompt placing of orders necessary.

GLADIOLUS BULBS AND DAHLIAS

for Late Flowering

Here is your last opportunity to provide for late flowers in Gladioli and Dahlias. To have a supply of these cut flowers throughout the season, Gladioli and Dahlias should be planted until early June.

Our prices are reasonable and growers will do well to obtain a stock of these bulbs at the present prices, as next season's supply will naturally be very short, since we will have to depend upon home-grown stock only.

Terms, 30 days net or 2% for cash. Unknown correspondents please send cash with order. Delivery F. O. B. Benton Harbor, Mich. Packing at cost.

GENERAL BULB COMPANY

VOGELENZANG, HOLLAND

NEW YORK OFFICE, 25 Beaver Street

Owing to the fact that we completely filled our orders last season, and on account of the high-grade quality of bulbs shipped, our friends in the trade have entrusted us with a much larger volume of business and the large amount of stock which we grow is practically booked up.

We still have a limited quantity of stock to offer, especially of Hyacinths, and those interested will do well to mail us their list of requirements before our stock is exhausted.

75,000 Potted Cannas American Pedigree Choice Plants

THERE have been a lot of disappointments with potted Cannas, because they had been forced so hard the plants were soft. Also, because of poor packing and bruised foliage.

Our 75,000 potted plants have all been grown normally. If anything, on the cool side.

The risk involved in buying Canna Roots is eliminated in these started plants.

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses, 20x300 feet, of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus. These had been in bloom constantly since November.

These beautiful Primroses are still very scarce everywhere and good returns are awaiting those who will grow them. They find a ready sale when bunched like violets. The house may be utilized for other crops from May to November 1, as they are grown outdoors in summer.

Polyanthus this season have averaged 50 cents a small bunch and each plant will, when grown well, produce from two to three bunches.

They are planted 8x8 apart. Does any crop you grow give better returns? Strong divisions in May.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

FROM NEWSBOY TO MERCHANT PRINCE

Some talented men are unsuccessful because unable to select the business for which they are best fitted. They cling desperately to the wrong occupation or flit unavailingly from one enterprise to another. Not so did Henry Penn; while still a schoolboy, he resolutely chose the path to prosperity.

By CHARLES N. COTTER.

SIR Joshua Reynolds, on being asked to state the attributes of true genius, replied: "Genius is nothing but the intense direction of mind to some intellectual object—the concentration of all our powers to it, which leads to disregard of all toils and obstacles in the attainment of it and, if strong enough, ultimately will bring success."

Many members of the florists' trade today, if measured by such a standard, might rightfully be regarded as geniuses. They have conceived ideals, the attainment of which would tend to the betterment of their vocation. Among such men, Henry Penn, of Boston, Mass., stands forth prominently. Unlike those of our confreres whose ambition in life is to produce two flowers where one formerly was produced, he has assumed the task of making it possible to sell two flowers where one formerly was sold.

The Newsboy.

As a boy, Henry Penn was poor—so poor, in fact, that necessity directed his footsteps into the pathways of commerce at an age when most boys are giving much proud attention to the manliness of appearance that they have attained in passing from short trousers to long. The natural playtime of his youth was spent selling newspapers on the streets of Boston. Competition was stiff and strong-arm methods frequently were used in restraining members of the craft when their ambition led them to seek business beyond understood territorial limits. This fact did not deter Penn in the legitimate extension of his business. So his ready smile, with the unconscious use of the principles of psychology in creating a favorable impression on the public, soon won for him a clientele that afforded remuneration in excess of that earned by his most persistent competitors.

Natural thrift caused him to set aside a reserve from his meager earnings, and an inherited commercial instinct kept him alert to take advantage of opportunities wherein a dollar invested might earn a dollar.

The Street Vender of Flowers.

The florists' business in those days was of uncertain standards. The demand for flowers was centered among a few of the well-to-do of the community, and retail stores were few and far between. Wholesale stores were conspicuous by their absence and the prevailing custom was for the growers either to carry their flowers from store to store, or, as memory recalls, to congregate in the back of a saloon, where the buyers for the stores would come and select the flowers they needed for the day's business.

The popular rendezvous of the growers was located in the center of Henry Penn's newspaper area and a tremendous love for flowers would attract him there whenever a lull in his newspaper business permitted. His pleasing personality soon won him a warm spot in the hearts of the florists who daily met there, and a strong friendship between them and the smiling newsboy came into being.

Business with the florists was not always what it might have been, and loss of stock, through inability to market it, was a frequent occurrence. This fact loomed up in Penn's mind as a wonderful opportunity for gain. "Why wouldn't it be possible to buy such stock and exploit it among my newspaper customers?" was his thought. With characteristic promptitude, he put the idea to a test. The result was startling to him in the extent of the success achieved, and from then on flowers became his business and his hobby. The profits soon became large enough to suggest the advisability of opening a store.

Penn was President of the Class of 1892, Eliot Grammar School, Boston.

In preparation for this class picture, Henry Penn (in circle) bedecked himself and two of his chums with white carnations left from his previous night's sales, for he had already embarked in the florists' trade.

The Merchant.

He consulted some of his friends among the growers as to the advisability of such a plan, and their enthusiastic encouragement swept away the doubts in his mind regarding the logic of so important a step.

A location was secured in the heart of Boston's financial district, and the former newsboy made his debut as a responsible merchant.

Business was slow at first, painfully slow, and there were times when optimism was at a low ebb and the grim specter of failure haunted his vision. Loss of stock, occasioned by lack of opportunities to sell, cut heavily into the meager capital he had to commence business with, and for a while it appeared as though the end of Penn as a business man was but a matter of days. As the darkness of night becomes most intense at the hour preceding dawn, so the darkness of failure takes on its gloomiest hue at the hour when the sun of success is about to rise.

Business suddenly began to pick up. Penn's perennial smile and consistent courtesy, which the darkest hour of impending failure failed to extinguish, proved his greatest asset, for its effect on the men of finance who stopped occasionally to buy a buttonhole bouquet was so pleasing that they retaliated by diverting a portion of their business from the established bon-ton florists farther uptown to the smiling chap who would not quit when things where breaking badly for him.

Penn's First Publicity Campaign.

A short while after this turn in the tide of fortune, Penn first conceived the idea of advertising. A customer walked into the store one morning and, as Penn smilingly greeted him, said, "Penn, what are you going to soak me for a dozen carnations today?" This question set Penn to thinking and he asked why the man expected to be soaked. The answer received convinced Penn that in order to disabuse the minds of the people of the idea that flowers were a high-priced luxury, it was necessary to advertise.

Now, to some of the florists then existing such a departure from the accepted methods of merchandising appeared unethical—something to be eschewed as undignified and unbefitting the calling. Penn's faith in its efficacy as a business-getter, however, was such that he laid plans for an advertising campaign that called for a fixed charge against the business for maintenance. He recognized the fact that spasmodic attempts to attract public attention would prove abortive and he determined to keep his name and his merchandise continually before the public eye, so that eventually the thought of one would give rise to the thought of the other.

The Results of His Advertising.

His faith in advertising was soon vindicated. Customers, instead of being separated by intervals of hours, became numerous enough to necessitate the hiring of help and the securing of delivery facilities and larger quarters, for it was apparent that persistent advertising would result in business far in excess of that thought possible by most retail florists of that time.

A location was secured on Bromfield street and it was there that Penn built up his business to an extent that entitled him to claim the leadership in point of volume of retail sales in New England. Billboards, street car signs, newspapers, both secular and religious, were the principal mediums that he used in keeping his goods before the public eye. "Penn service," "Penn value," "Penn quality," were the slogans continually used, until by force of repetition they became indelibly imprinted on the public mind.

In order to accommodate the rapidly growing business, a change to larger quarters again became necessary several years ago. An opportunity to obtain a lease on one of the most desirable locations on Tremont street, Boston's popular thoroughfare, was offered Mr. Penn and, despite the enormous yearly rental, he was quick to secure a lease for a long term of years.

A Palatial Store.

He decided that the largest retail flower business in Boston should have as its home the finest store, and money was spent with lavish hand in interior decorative work. Completed, the store was a wonder. From the lighting fixtures to the automatic refrigerating machinery, it represented the best that money could purchase and stood as a fitting monument to Penn, publicity and progress.

Not content with attaining the heights of his own aspirations in developing a business that brought him from obscurity to prominence, from penury to opulence, Mr. Penn has been glad to lend his experience and knowledge in an endeavor to make easier his fellow florists' progress over the same road that he traveled on the way to success. As chairman of the S. A. F. publicity committee, he is giving freely his time and talent in spreading the gospel of advertising. As he expresses it himself, he is willing to go anywhere or do anything to convince the florists of the country that the ultimate possibilities of the trade can be reached only through the magic power of advertising.

Penn's Work for the Trade.

In response to an invitation from the Buffalo Florists' Club, he recently addressed that body on "Advertising as a Means to Develop a Bigger and Better Business." As a tribute to his fame as a publicity expert, delegations from Toronto, Ont., Rochester, Cleveland and intermediate towns were present. He approached his subject in a direct and convincing manner, holding the unwavering attention of his audience. He imparted enthusiasm and inspiration to every one present and the applause that greeted the conclusion of his speech augurs well for the success of individual and coöperative advertising in Buffalo in connection with the national campaign.

An opportunity was had the following day to get an insight into Mr. Penn as a man, when, as guests of Emil Brucker, Jacob Wiese and Charles Cramer, Mr. Penn and myself were taken on an auto trip to Niagara Falls. The chief point of interest to me was his utter lack of pretentiousness. He modestly underrated his own accomplishments, stating that what he has done anyone can do. Yet, judging from views he expressed, his real work is just commencing. Greater returns to the grower, more sales and consequently more profit for the retailer, all made possible by the increased demand that will result from continued national advertising; also the complete solidarity of the florists, manifested by every florist in the country having membership in the S. A. F.—these are Mr. Penn's present ideals. If ability may be judged by past accomplishments, it is safe to say that his labors toward the attainment of these ideals will aid greatly in placing floriculture on a higher plane.

FUTURE OF THE INDUSTRY.

Penn Optimistic.

If events of the present are any criterion of what our profession has in store for us, then we can live in a contented state of mind as to the future and its developments.

In the last few months it has been my privilege to ramble to various parts of the country, to attend our recent meetings, and to have the pleasure of visiting various greenhouses and retail and wholesale florists' establishments. I must give the highest praise to those with whom I have come in contact, both from a standpoint of liberality of business ideas and generosity of heart in looking after the inner wants of the various members of the several committees that have gathered at our business meetings.

Coöperation Everywhere.

Genuine praise is due the members of our craft in such cities as Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, New York and Cincinnati, who have always been on the job, ready to assist our committees in their various undertakings and to make our work as easy and pleasant as possible. This must be a result of the new idea of general coöperation by all, for the greater development of broader contact, following a better understanding of the unselfish task our publicity campaign is performing for the trade generally. This means more sales for florists throughout the country.

The way in which we of the committees have been received, as a body and as individuals, proves that the national publicity campaign has a wonderful future ahead of it.

Cincinnati's Record.

The florists certainly are realizing the possibilities of publicity. At a gathering just held in Cincinnati, where only a few days' notice had been given, practically every man in the room gave a voluntary subscription and became a member of the S. A. F. Incidentally, some became life members. This is only an incident to prove the encouragement our publicity campaign is getting from the florists generally.

Now a word of thanks to the Buffalo Florists' Club for the invitation to address a meeting of the organization held at the Statler hotel. The banquet tables were decorated with flowers and flags. The occasion shall not be forgotten—at least not by me—for a long, long time. The attendance was fine and the interest shown in the cause of publicity was a source of genuine pleasure and satisfaction to me. The Buffalo Florists' Club should be proud of the fact that it was one of the best meetings I had the pleasure of attending.

Praise for Buffalo.

President W. M. Palmer and his working committees, of the Buffalo club, have the right idea of what ought to be the making of one of the best florists' clubs in the country. On with the good work!

Then, besides all this, is the personal contact with members of the trade that my duties as a member of the publicity committee have made possible. I have met many members of the trade and everywhere I have found them big, broad, generous-hearted business men, which makes me feel like voicing an optimistic prophecy regarding the future of the flower industry. One of the big things that will help build our business to greater and more reliable proportions is publicity.

This is my small tribute to the men connected with the finest industry on earth, who have toiled these many years to bring it to the position which it deserves. May our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," bring all of you the reward which is so slowly but surely coming.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The May Meeting.

A regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held May 12, with a large attendance. Among out-of-town members present were: R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., and Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I. Prof. Geo. W. Fraser, of the Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs, Conn., was a visitor.

A. M. Henshaw, chairman of the committee on club quarters, reported progress. A. L. Miller, chairman of the transportation committee, reported as to arrangements which could be made for travel to the Detroit convention. Two routes were laid before the meeting. The route via the D., L. & W. railroad to Buffalo, which permits a stopover in Buffalo to allow a side trip to Niagara Falls, resuming the journey to Detroit by night boat, was most favored, but the entire matter was left in the hands of the committee. The bowling committee, through Chairman John Miesem, reported progress.

Chairman Totty, of the flower show committee, reported progress. The preliminary schedule for the 1920 show will, he said, be issued in a few days and, from information at hand and the intense interest shown in the matter, he predicted that it will be the largest and best show yet held under the auspices of the club.

The following were elected to membership: Frank Golsner, College Point, N. Y., and Clarence Peterson, 491 Fifth avenue. Mr. Golsner was present and was introduced.

The following were nominated for election at the next meeting: Derrill W. Hart, 58 West Fifty-first street; F. F. Rockwell, 220 West Forty-second street; F. E. Betheuser, 43 Barclay street, and Edward Koenig, 148 East Fifty-ninth street.

President Kessler reported for the Victory loan committee that its quota in the drive just completed was exceeded by $68,000, the total subscriptions, as far as it was possible to ascertain, amounting to $318,000. The announcement was received with applause.

Lecture on Perennials.

Henry Wild, of Greenwich, Conn., gave a most interesting talk on "Perennials, from the Florists' Standpoint." Mr. Wild is well known as a specialist in perennials and an expert in planting. In the course of his lengthy talk he described many beautiful plantings, many of them in combination with shrubs. He told of many combinations which would allow certain subjects to overlap and practically replace other subjects after their blooming season had passed, doing away with the necessity for replanting and keeping a bed in continuous bloom. He pointed out many uses for perennials in florists' work not generally observed. In this connection he spoke of the value of the campanulas as decorative flowering plants. In his opinion they are particularly valuable as house plants, lasting from a month to six weeks in flower; arranged with foliage plants they make beautiful combinations, and are splendid for use in porch or pergola work. Campanula pyramidalis he considers best for this work. For this variety in pot or vase work, he suggested that when the buds begin to open the plants should be given some shelter, in which case the flowers will open practically all together. While flowering in an open bed might often be found unsatisfactory, plants in pots or tubs usually receive better care as to watering and this is to their great advantage. He spoke of the trouble many florists have with the phloxes, many fine varieties appearing to revert to the objectionable magenta tints of the older varieties. This, he said, is due to carelessness, in allowing the plants to self-seed, the seeds falling between stems and the young plants becoming incorporated with the older clumps, with the result that when divisions are made florists do not get the varieties they thought they were propagating. The lecturer held the attention of his audience for over an hour, and at the end of his talk was accorded a hearty vote of thanks, all rising. An interesting discussion followed.

George Schlegel, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, N. Y., S. G. Milosy gardener, exhibited two splendid plants of Cattleya gigas and was awarded a cultural certificate.

Roman J. Irwin, New York, exhibited a collection of pansies, gaining the award of highly commended. J. H. P.

HOW TO CONTROL ROSE MIDGE

TOBACCO WILL DO IT.

Says U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Midge, one of the most destructive pests the rose growers of America ever have had to contend with, and one which becomes more widely distributed and devastating each season, may be controlled by such simple means as the use of tobacco dust and stems, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, which has just published the results of a series of experiments conducted by E. R. Sasscer and A. D. Borden in an infested establishment at Colgate, Md., near Washington.

"It is evident," says the report, "that a severe infestation of the rose midge can be controlled, if not entirely eliminated, in a comparatively brief period by the careful application of tobacco dust on the soil and by persistent nightly fumigation with tobacco in the form of stems, nicotine papers, or one of the volatile nicotine extracts. Where earth walks are present it is advisable to spray the walks with a five or ten per cent kerosene emulsion."

History and Distribution.

This rose pest was first collected in New Jersey in 1886. It was collected later in New Jersey in 1889, in New York in 1890, in the District of Columbia in 1891, 1894 and 1896, in Massachusetts in 1894, and in Chicago in 1897. In 1903 specimens were sent to the Bureau of Entomology from Cleveland, infesting the Meteor variety, with the report that as many as thirty-five larvæ had been taken from a single bud. Apparently the same insect was received from Cincinnati in 1905, where it was seriously damaging the buds and tips of the La France and Duchess of Albany. Notwithstanding the fact that in the houses containing both varieties the heat was turned off throughout the entire winter, the correspondent reported that the hibernating midge was not killed.

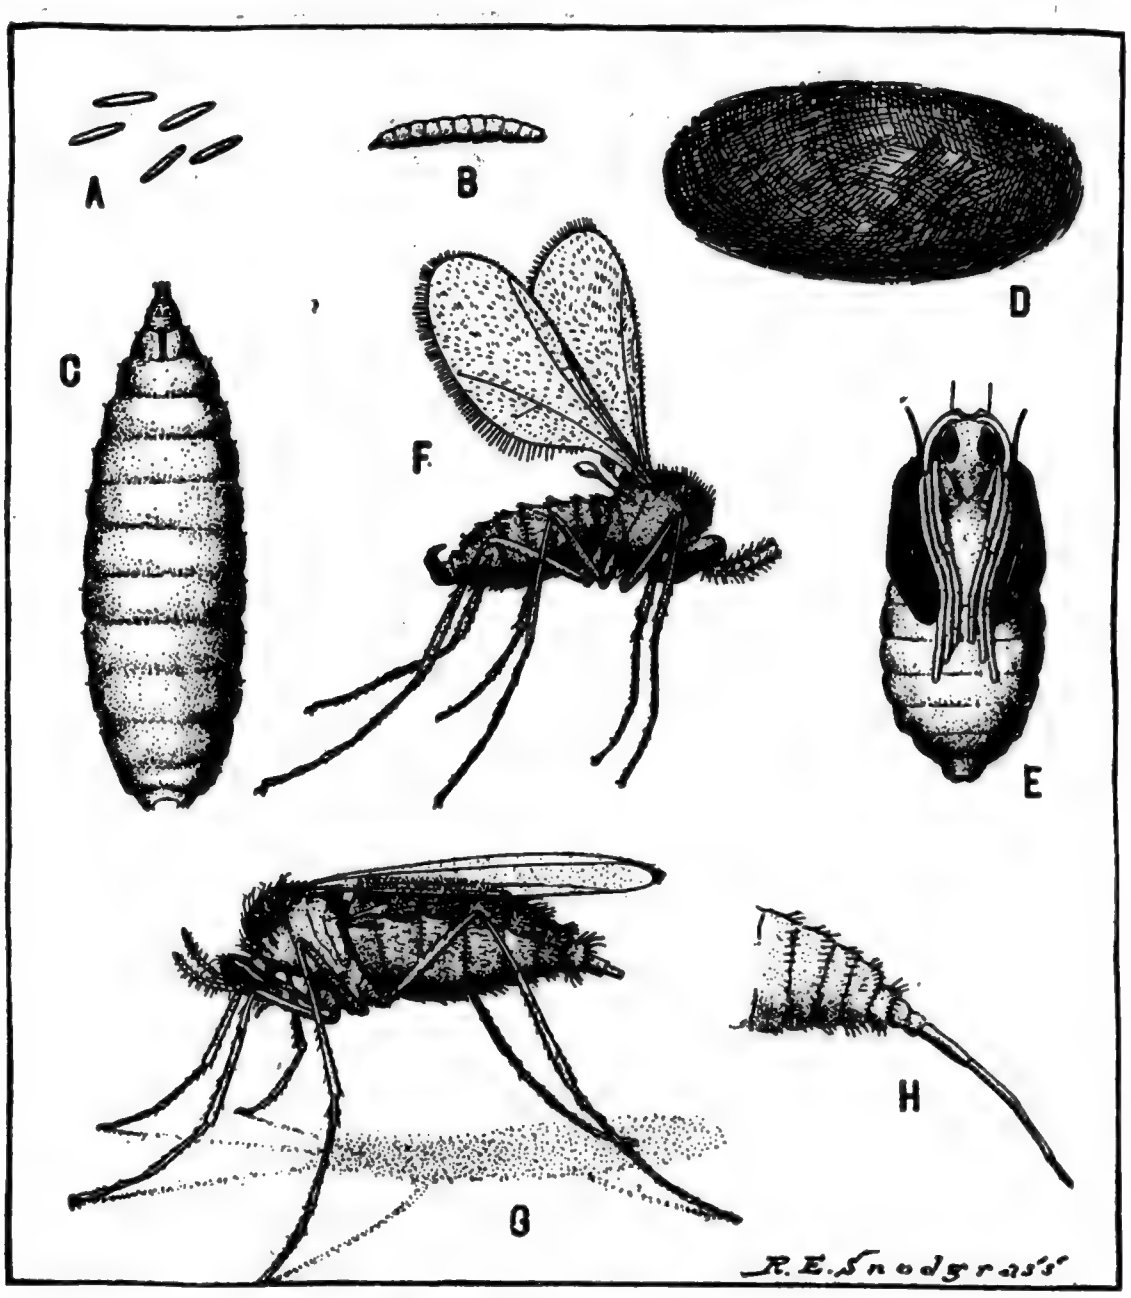
In 1911 a heavy infestation of the variety My Maryland was reported from Rhode Island, and in 1915 Hewitt recorded the occurrence of this midge in a garden at London, Ont., infesting shoots of the variety Mrs. J. Laing. In 1916 Gibson reported it from the same locality and also in greenhouses at Toronto. Snodgrass includes the rose midge among the important insect pests of Indiana, and Crosby and Leonard state that it attacks roses grown in the open in New York.

Although the rose midge has been reported frequently from several states, it does not necessarily follow that these infestations are still in existence, since some of the varieties subject to infestation have been given up for more resistant and profitable varieties, and in others the insects may have been exterminated by the use of insecticides.

Much Damage Done.

The rose midge, Dasyneura rhodophaga (Coq.), an insect related to the Hessian fly, is often the cause of considerable injury to roses grown under glass. In 1912 Davis estimated that the loss due to this pest in two Chicago greenhouses would approximate $10,000 annually. Subsequently this insect was reported by various entomologists as being especially injurious to the flower and leaf buds of the rose, distorting their growth and eventually causing them to turn brown and die.

In the fall of 1916 an infestation was located at Colgate, Md., which, according to the owner, caused an annual loss of from $4,000 to $6,000. Although the house was generally infested, the infestation was limited to the following varieties of roses: Radiance, Hadley, Russell and Killarney. Hadley and Radiance varieties were most severely infested, scarcely a leaf or flower bud escaping attack.



This infestation offered an excellent opportunity for determining a satisfactory means of controlling this pest in a commercial greenhouse, and, in collaboration with Prof. E. N. Cory, entomologist of the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, the investigation was begun in October, 1916.

Life History.

It was found that the female midge, with her long ovipositor, places small yellowish eggs just under the sepals of the flower buds or between the folded leaves of the leaf buds. Under favorable temperature conditions these eggs hatch in two days, and the young larvæ, or maggots, immediately attack the buds, extracting the sap and eventually causing the petals and leaves to dry up and die. They grow rapidly, reaching maturity in from five to seven days and, when full grown, work their way out of the buds and fall on and enter the ground, where they construct small silken cocoons (fig. 1, D) in which they pupate. Adults appear in from five to seven days, and shortly after deposit eggs for the next generation of larvæ or maggots. In confinement, the life of an adult is from one to two days. The total cycle, therefore, under greenhouse conditions, is from twelve to sixteen days. About eighty-five per cent of the adults reared in cages were females.

Seasonal History.

Although larvæ or maggots have been observed injuring buds as early as February 22, under normal conditions they do not appear in injurious numbers until June or July. In Washington adults were reared in early May from larvæ which pupated in November. During the warm summer months the generations may mature every two weeks and overlapping of broods probably takes place. Larvæ were especially injurious at Colgate, Md., during two periods of the year, namely, from the latter part of May to early July and from early September to November 1. On the approach of cold weather the stages are slightly prolonged and about the latter part of November the larvæ enter the ground and construct overwintering cocoons. No injury has been reported during winter.

Experiments in Control.

Roses, especially the hybrid teas, are apparently the only plants attacked by this insect. It has been recorded as infesting the Radiance, Hadley, Russell, Killarney, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer, Milady, American Beauty, Uncle John, Joe Hill, Kate Moulton, Bridesmaid, Liberty, Richmond, Mrs. John Laing, Meteor, Mme. Chatenay, Ivory, Golden Gate, Wootton, La France, and a sport of the latter, the Duchess of Albany.

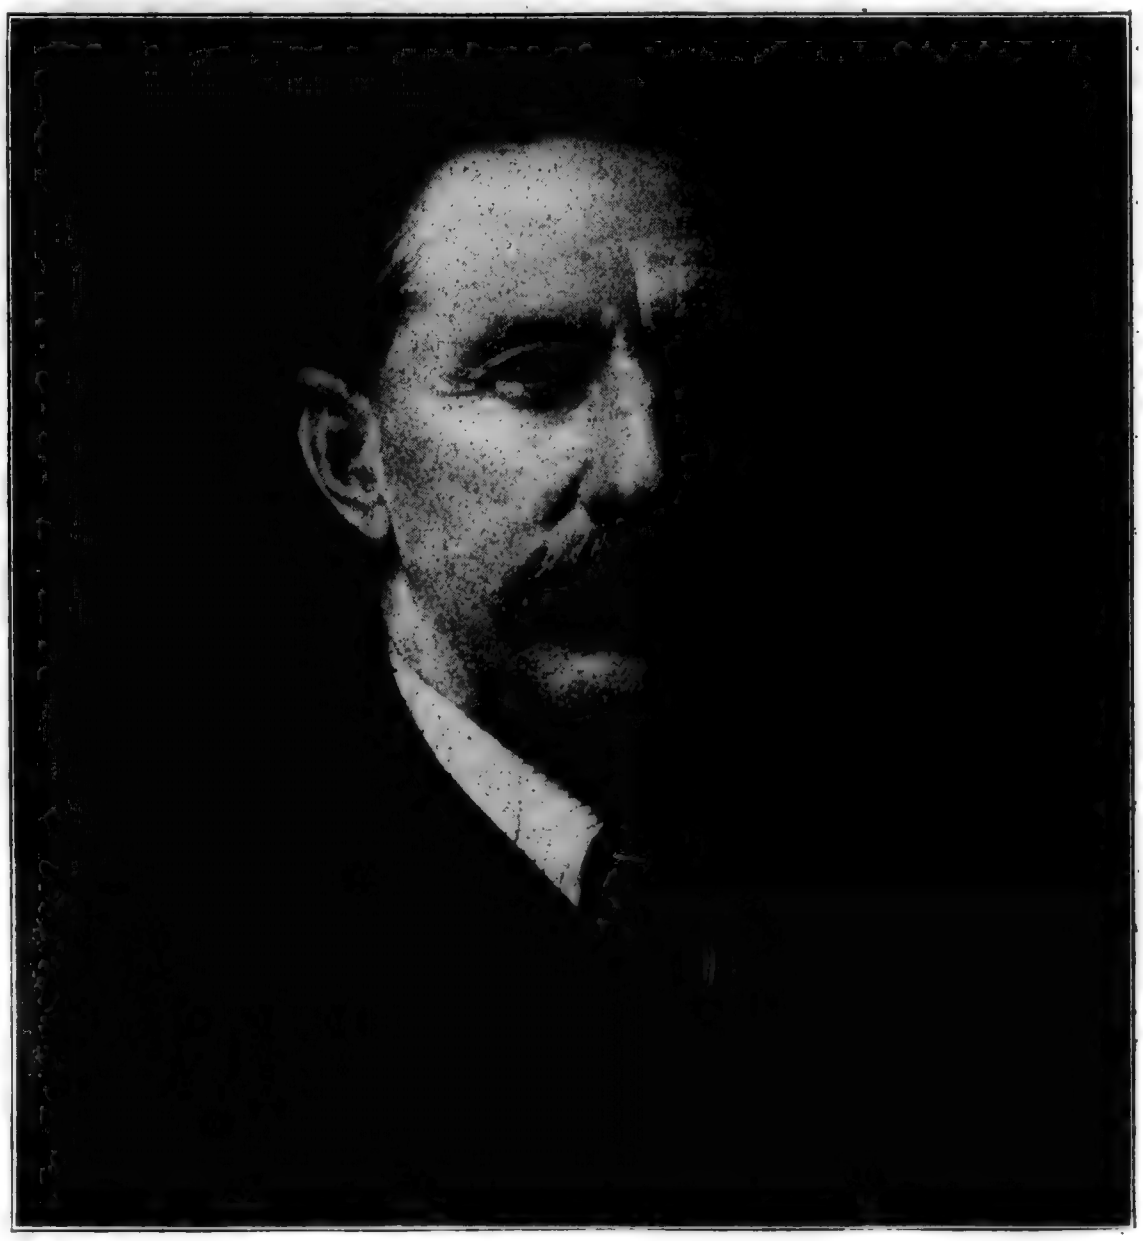
A series of experiments were conducted to determine the value of molasses in catching the larvæ. The sprays were various combinations of molasses, nicotine extract, lead arsenate, fish-oil soap, Bordeaux mixture and water. All of the experiments were conducted in a commercial greenhouse and each test represents a 50-foot bed of roses. For the most part the killing results of all the experiments were satisfactory. Unfortunately, however, the molasses served as a medium for the development of sooty mold and, moreover, where lead arsenate was used an objectionable white deposit developed. The presence of either on cut flowers necessarily would reduce their value and in some instances would eliminate them from the market.

Use of Tobacco.

To determine the value of tobacco dust in preventing the full-grown larvæ, or grubs, from entering the soil, the following cage experiments were conducted: (1) Soil around caged plants was covered with dry tobacco dust; (2) same as former except that the dust was wet. Full-grown larvæ which were placed in the cage containing dry dust were active for twenty-four hours, but did not go below the surface, whereas the larvæ similarly placed in cage 2 were exceedingly active upon coming in contact with the wet dust, acting as if they were burned, and after from five to eight hours they were all dead. All larvæ used in the check immediately entered the soil.

The Colgate Test.

Having determined a satisfactory method of preventing the entrance of the full-grown larvæ into the soil, all of the rose beds in the infested houses at Colgate, Md., were covered, October 12, 1916, with tobacco dust averaging from one-fourth to one-half inch deep. To prevent the larvæ from entering the dirt walks of the houses, all walks were sprayed with five per cent kerosene emulsion. Simultaneously, nightly fumigation with tobacco stems was inaugurated and continued until October 30, inclusive, and from that date until November 8 the houses were fumigated every other night. The object of this fumigation was to kill all adults before eggs were deposited.



Although this control work was not undertaken until October 12, its effectiveness was soon apparent, and by the latter part of October it was difficult to locate an infested bud. Not only was the midge under control, but the owner was enabled to bring on his fall crop earlier than was the case in 1915. May 7, 1917, these houses were carefully examined, and only six larvæ were located, two in the buds of Hadley and four in the buds of Radiance. All plants at this time were in excellent condition and gave promise of producing a full crop of flowers. These houses were again carefully examined June 19, and no injury was to be found on any of the plants which had been infested so severely during the fall of 1916. Moreover, the owner reported that up to June 19 more than twice as many blooms had been cut as during the entire previous year.

The rapid elimination of this pest was due no doubt to two causes, (1) nightly fumigation, which killed off the adults before egg-laying took place, and (2) the application of tobacco dust, which prevented the larvæ from entering the soil. Moreover, the tobacco dust served a dual purpose, since it prevented the larvæ from entering hibernating quarters and at the same time fertilized the soil.

When First Detected.

In the case of light infestations, the midge can be controlled by systematic nightly fumigations with tobacco fumes, which should be continued until all adults disappear; or by a careful application, at the proper season, of tobacco dust. Inasmuch as the broods probably overlap during the summer, there is a possibility that frequent syringing of the plants would cause much of the dust to wash down into the soil before all larvæ matured; hence there is a chance that some would fall on and enter earth where the dust had lost its effectiveness. It would seem, therefore, that the most opportune time to apply the dust, if not accompanied with nightly fumigation, is during the latter part of October or the first three weeks of November, at which season the last generation of larvæ leaves the plants, enters the ground, and constructs overwintering cocoons. If dependence is placed on the dust alone, it is imperative that the application be so timed as to be on the soil before the larvæ seek winter quarters. No hard and fast rule governing the date of this application can be recommended for all localities, since temperature naturally influences the final disappearance of the larvæ.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

E. B. MORGAN.

THIRTEEN years ago E. B. Morgan left his home on a farm near Loda, Ill., and took charge of the retail end of a florists' business in Paxton, Ill. That was the beginning. The business grew and prospered, as Mr. Morgan modestly remarks, "beyond expectation." He has bought out his two original partners, W. J. West and C. J. Addems, and has taken in his son, H. H. Morgan. Their 30,000 feet of glass are the pride of Paxton. A wholesale as well as retail business is done and the plan is to increase it at once. That Mr. Morgan is well-known and highly esteemed throughout his community is attested by the various offices of honor and trust to which he has been elected by his fellow-citizens.

The rose midge can be kept out of greenhouses if proper precautions are exercised. Under no condition should infested plants be taken into a house free from this pest.

MONTGOMERY'S ROSES.

It is much to the regret of the distributors of novelties that they did not foresee and provide for the conditions which have existed this season. The high state of prosperity and the numerous empty houses have created an ideal condition for the dissemination of novelties, but nobody was ready. There is a disposition, however, to repair the error next season.

This spring the wise ones have been visiting the Montgomery establishment near Boston to look at the seedling roses. Crusader is the new red rose which will next season make its bid for popular approval and Pilgrim, pink, will undertake to carry the banner of the Massachusetts growers far afield. These two varieties are illustrated in this issue.

While no announcement has been made, it is understood that A. M. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., has secured the stock and will disseminate both these varieties in the first part of 1920.

WIND INSURANCE

INSURANCE IS CANCELED?

Indiana Mutual Serves Notice.

James F. Hildebrand, signing himself secretary and treasurer of the American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Co., of Muncie, Ind., threw a bomb into the ranks of the members of that company May 1, when he sent an imitation typewritten letter to those outside the state of Indiana. Several copies of the letter have been forwarded to The Review, either for its information or with requests for advice. The letter was as follows:

> As secretary and treasurer of the above named company, both now and in the past, I am compelled to inform you that your certificate of membership is of no more value to you as protection on your greenhouses, for the reason that so many members or certificate holders failed to pay their assessments and we can no longer levy assessments outside of Indiana, and are compelled to close up our business and confine our operations to Indiana exclusively. As officers of the company, we very much regret this action, but are in no way to blame, it being the fault of your fellow members, as stated above, and as a matter of safety to you, I would suggest that you procure your protection in some other company.

The American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Co. has been operating in the trade for a number of years. It was chartered under an Indiana law which provides for local coöperative insurance companies. This law contemplates neighborhood operations only, but this did not prevent the organization soliciting members and issuing policies to greenhouse owners in many other states. The policies provided that losses were payable within a specified time after receipt of proofs, but as a matter of fact the payment of losses had to wait upon the collection of assessments, the amounts of which increased rapidly.

Florists Take Management.

A few months ago Dillon Myers, of Bluffton, Ind., announced in The Review that the company had been reorganized with a board of five directors, all of whom are Indiana florists. They are: William Bettmann, New Albany; W. H. Pollett, Terre Haute; Charles Hafer, Indianapolis; Dillon Myers, Bluffton, and Adolph Schilling, Fort Wayne. Mr. Myers is president and Mr. Schilling is vice-president. Mr. Hildebrand, secretary and treasurer, was retained from the former administration.

President Myers announced that the company would thereafter confine its operations to the state of Indiana and the secretary's notice of May 1 appears to be an attempt to put that policy into effect. How it operates is shown by the letters of some of the policyholders. The Detroit Greenhouse Co., by R. Y. Leslie, wrote under date of May 11:

> We are enclosing a letter from a hail insurance company in which we hold a policy for $2,000, for five years from March 14, 1917, to March 14, 1922. The membership fee was paid in advance and all assessments have been paid as due. Have we any redress for the balance of the time our membership is to run? As they are a going concern and still doing business, are they in no way responsible? We should like to have your advice.

Stephen Hyde, proprietor of the Fairview Greenhouses, Carthage, Mo., is in a similar position. He writes:

> I am, or was, insured in the American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Co., of Muncie, Ind. The company has notified me that my insurance is no good and I wonder if they intend to return my assessment for this year. I paid $290 February 6, 1919. Any information you can give me will be greatly appreciated.

It is assumed that such florists as Messrs. Myers, Schilling, Bettmann, Pollett and Hafer are not treating the members of the trade otherwise than in accordance with legal and moral right. Probably a perusal of the membership contract will show that all assessments collected have been to pay losses previously sustained by members and that assessments have not been collected in advance of losses. Probably the only claim a member could have would be for the return of a pro rata part of the membership fee. It is a matter for legal opinion as to an individual member's right to bring suit to recover a loss sustained during the term on which the membership fee was accepted.

There is another phase of the situation. Undoubtedly a study of the application each member probably signed would show that if he does not pay his assessment he may be subject to suit.

It is probable that if the company were to be wound up under the jurisdiction of a court, the court would direct that such suits be brought, if the legal standing of the organization will permit, as a matter of equity for the members who have paid the assessments. It may be that some of the members will consider that it is not a misfortune to have the company relieve them of such a liability.

TEXAS FLORISTS TO MEET.

President W. J. Parker, of the Texas State Florists' Association, has called a meeting of the association to be held in Austin, Tex., July 9 and 10. The Austin florists have already begun preparations to entertain the visiting florists and an interesting meeting is expected.

The Texas florists have not held a regular meeting for two years, on account of conditions brought about by the war, and the July meeting is expected to put things in order and get the association back into working trim. Provision will be made to give all the space necessary to those who wish to make trade exhibits at the convention and just as many as can arrange to bring or send exhibits of stock, supplies, building material, or anything else used by florists, are invited and urged to do so. Space will be furnished free to exhibitors. The florists of the state and adjoining states will be urged to come to the convention to place their orders for supplies for next season, so this meeting is going to be an excellent opportunity for the trade to get in touch with the florists of the southwest.

The exhibition hall will adjoin the assembly hall and ample time will be given to all visitors to examine the exhibits and place their orders with those in charge. All who intend to make exhibits are requested to write at once to Secretary Louis J. Tackett, Austin, Tex., so that choice space may be reserved.

This convention is expected to be one of the largest meetings of florists ever held in the southwest and no one can afford to miss it. Do not wait for the secretary to write you to make an exhibit, for if you do, you may be overlooked. Write him at once that you will be on hand with a display and a sharp pencil, and be ready to book orders.

FOR CUTWORMS AND SOWBUGS.

Judging from the numerous inquiries on the subject that reach the office of The Review, many florists have difficulty in subduing those common but unwelcome greenhouse tenants, cutworms and sowbugs. The exterminator generally recommended for both these pests is what is known as the bran mash, the formula for which is given by Bailey as follows: "White arsenic, one-half pound, or Paris green, one pound; bran, fifty pounds. Mix thoroughly and then add enough water to make a wet mash. Sugar or molasses may be added, but is unnecessary."

According to some growers, however, many of these worms and bugs, being fastidious in their appetites as well as gluttonous, refuse to be allured by the bran concoction as long as plenty of young, succulent plant growths are available. One florist, at least, thinks he has discovered just what cereals the two kinds of pests prefer. He prescribes corn meal for cutworms and rye for sowbugs. These are his directions for the destruction of the cutworms: "Use corn meal; mix it with Paris green, just enough to color; at nightfall scatter among the infested plants; don't water for six or eight hours before or after and you will have no further trouble from cutworms."

For the sowbugs, otherwise called wood lice, he uses two parts rye flour, two parts sugar—he evidently believes that the sowbugs have a sweet tooth—and one part Paris green, preparing only enough of the repast for immediate requirements, as it deteriorates if it stands any length of time. He scatters the mixture along the top of the edge-board of the bench in the evening, being careful to see that the board is dry, else the mixture is liable to become lumpy and unpalatable to even the most voracious of sowbugs.

Another grower describes a process by which he annihilated an army of sowbugs after vainly trying the ordinary remedies. "I mashed a few potatoes," he says, "and rubbed the pulp on the surfaces of boards. The boards, which were about a foot in width and four feet in length, I placed on the ground under the benches, leaving a space between the boards and ground of about the thickness of two pot labels. In a remarkably short time the sowbugs collected by thousands on the under side of the boards. I then took a sprinkling can filled with boiling water and fitted with a fine rose or cap. I tipped over the boards, one at a time, and turned the hot water on the pests. In this way I killed multitudes of them, and within a week saw the end of them. A few of the bugs collected on the inner boards of the back benches. These I exterminated by cutting slits between the soil and the boards with a knife, and then pouring in the boiling water, after removing the rose from the can."

RETURNING THE MONEY.

If there is any one thing more than another which wearies the average grower, it is to write letters in which he returns money to would-be customers; it isn't the work that brings fatigue, but the thought of sending home money already in hand. But a large number of users of Classified ads in The Review have had to send back many checks this season. Like this:

> Please discontinue my sweet potato plant ad. I have had a deluge of orders and am remailing many checks, as I could not keep half.—C. W. F. Erdman, Bushy, Va., May 9, 1919.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

A PLEASING MOTHERS' DAY!

In accord with The Review's request for newspaper clippings of Mothers' day ads, I feel it is my duty to take a little time and send a few, inasmuch as I feel that the managing editor of the one lone paper in our city (McKeesport, Pa.), of about 45,000 population, is deserving of the booby prize for the infinite ignorance displayed in his paper last Saturday. "It pays to advertise" is a slogan he uses quite frequently. Two of us, Mr. Johnston and myself, were led to believe that it did pay to advertise, and I am enclosing a copy of each of our ads, five inches, two columns. Mine ran three days and Mr. Johnston's a day or so longer. After we two poor fish had been caught on this bait of "It pays to advertise," we find in the little newslets on the editorial page of the Saturday evening issue the following cleverly worded booster: "No mother will feel badly if you do not buy flowers for her tomorrow, especially since the flower trust has boosted the prices sky high just because there is a sentimental reason for many wanting to buy flowers tomorrow." I am enclosing a copy of this also. Surely it takes brains to edit a newspaper.

The joke to my mind was so good that I begged the other boys to go along with me to the newspaper office and thank the editor for using such mild terms in denouncing us as a bunch of robbers. I am enclosing also another clipping from the next issue of this brilliantly edited little sheet, wherein you will note that we florists were reaping a harvest because the flower is used by the majority as the symbol of Mothers' day.

Things were certainly coming our way thick and fast in this little burg and we had to dance to the music when the notes were rasping at the highest pitch.

And now I wish to say just a few words along the line of self-defense, as it were. This editor seems to think that we retailers get our flowers for a song, and sing the song ourselves, but the truth is we were compelled to pay 15 cents per flower for our carnations, then 25 cents for each and every packing box and from 35 to 40 cents per box express charges. On top of all this we have the breakage and loss otherwise to stand. I will admit that our price of 25 cents each or $2.50 per dozen was too high, for, as Brother Franklin P. Adams says in "Open Letters" last week, "There is a limit to everything," and the public knows when that limit has been reached. Personally I feel that if any person was robbed it was the retailer.

In The Review of May 12, 1910, I had an article on this line of killing the goose that lays the golden egg, to which The Review replied that the law of supply and demand was to blame for the prices. Now, to me it would be interesting to know just who did do the skinning in this matter. I contend that if a carnation costs the retailer 15 cents he should get 30 cents to come out on top, and of course the public will not stand for this. So I think it would be a good idea to get to the bottom of this matter and try to hold the price within the reach of all before the greatest day the florist has to boost is turned into disrepute or the ribbon makers reap the harvest instead of the florist.

This much from a retailer. Now let us hear from the grower and the commission man. Charles Dougherty.

CITY FLORISTS—AN EXAMPLE!

"My business is growing flowers," insistently asserts Frank A. Volz, of Cincinnati, O. Insistently, because, from his frequent advertising, one can see that he is determined not to let his community forget that fact. Week after week his advertisements appear in the moving picture theater handbills that are distributed to all the homes in his vicinity. Then, when big occasions come along, like Easter, Mothers' day, etc., which demand more attention and enlargement, he has handbills of his own printed and distributed by the paper carriers of his locality to all the homes in his district. Mr. Volz uses about 2,000 circulars of each issue. Incidentally, "Say It with Flowers," the slogan of the S. A. F., is constantly used by him in his advertising.

PUSHCART TO AUTOMOBILE.

From pushcart to automobile is a long way, but H. R. Fisher, of Marysville, Kan., has traveled the distance. He recently purchased a handsome Dodge delivery car. When he started in business here ten years ago he had a pushcart for delivery purposes and his entire capital was $40. His accomplishment in the florists' business is made the more remarkable by the fact that Marysville is a town of only 3,000 inhabitants.

"We have been extremely busy," says Mr. Fisher, "and have broken all records during the last year. Prices have been wholly satisfactory. When we read of some florist who seems to be unable to realize on his stock, our sympathy goes out to him, though we can not help but wonder if he is not still a back number in the trade."

The new delivery car of Mr. Fisher will be kept busy, the owner believes, as he expects to use the machine in making deliveries in the country surrounding Marysville, as well as in the town. Prospects for spring trade are excellent, according to Mr. Fisher.

CULTURAL DIRECTIONS.

Can you give me a few general instructions on how to grow orchids?

F. C. B.—Fla.

It is not necessary to have a special house to grow orchids successfully. Many do well in ordinary greenhouses, and I have seen cypripediums and other varieties well grown in a steam-heated dwelling house. For cattleyas, remember that they like air and must not be grown in a hot, moist and stuffy house, although these conditions suit some East Indian sorts well. In summer, some air should be given night and day and, even in the most severe winter weather, there are few days when ventilators cannot be opened for an hour or two. Plants succeed best if grown in pots, pans or baskets of osmunda fern fiber and suspended close to the light. In midwinter no shade is necessary, but from March until December 1 some shade is needed. After flowering, the plants in their native habitats have a period of rest, which should be copied here in a modified way. Any repotting or top-dressing should be done before new growths start up. Be sure to use plenty of broken crocks or charcoal as drainage.

Watering in winter will not be needed more than once in four or five days. Much depends on the weather. In extremely hot weather it may be required daily, but, even in summer, every other day, as a rule, suffices. Syringing once or twice a day is beneficial and can be done on clear days even in winter. A night temperature of 55 degrees in winter is ample. Cypripediums like more water at the roots than cattleyas and have no resting period. C. insigne will grow in any greenhouse and in summer will do under the shade of trees outdoors, or in a frame, where the glass is shaded. Dendrobium nobile, when its bulbs are made up, should be kept comparatively dry until the nodes on the stems develop into buds; then afford more water. When growing, following the flowering period, it likes plenty of water and enjoys heat, but can be successfully grown in a carnation temperature. Orchids are not at all difficult of culture and you will not find it hard to grow and flower them. C. W.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Mothers' day business succeeded in cleaning up the market extremely well. Everything that was good sold readily. The demand from out of town was quite heavy. Stock was somewhat scarce the early part of this week, but it was expected that by the middle of the week receipts would be normal again, and that the market would become easy.

Roses are in good supply. All the rose growers shipping into this market appear to be in crop and local wholesalers are having a good supply of excellent stock. Carnations were scarce the early part of this week, after being cut closely to take care of the demand for Mothers' day. Easter lilies and callas are in good supply, while some excellent rubrum lilies may be had. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful. Snapdragons are almost a drug on the market. The receipts of this flower are so large that it is impossible to move all of them.

The first peonies have made their appearance. Some excellent gladioli and miniature gladioli may be had. Cape jasmines are in the market. Other offerings are stocks, irises, calendulas, marguerites and forget-me-nots.

Greens are in fair supply and are finding a good market.

Various Notes.

William Niehaus has opened a new retail flower store at the corner of Montgomery pike and Clarion avenue, in Evanston.

Miss Mary Stockley, who has opened a retail flower store at Portsmouth, O., was in this city on a buying trip last week.

C. E. Critchell has received his new delivery truck and has put it into commission. The business of May 9 established a record for Mr. Critchell. It was the largest day's business since he opened his establishment.

Among recent visitors were H. Cheeseman, representing Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York city; H. G. Haverkamp, of Rising Sun, Ind.; G. W. Frisch, Jr., of Dayton, O.; Karl W. Heiser, of Hamilton, O., and Martin Weber, of Brookville, Ind. C. H. H.

Meeting of Trade Interests.

There was an enthusiastic meeting of the florists of Cincinnati and vicinity at the Hotel Sinton, Cincinnati, on Thursday evening, May 1, with a splendid attendance. Director C. E. Critchell opened the proceedings with a rousing address of welcome, putting the audience in a good humor which lasted for the remainder of the evening.

Addresses were made by President J. F. Ammann; Chairman George Asmus, of the publicity finance committee; Chairman Henry Penn, of the publicity committee, and Major P. F. O'Keefe, of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Boston. The latter outlined the program for magazine publicity to be followed until the opening of the fall campaign.

Director Joseph H. Hill, Herman Knoble, of Cleveland; T. H. Joy, of Nashville, Tenn.; Guy French, of Morton Grove, Ill.; Secretary Young and others also took part in the proceedings. The main topic discussed was, of course, the publicity campaign and in the end annual subscriptions for four years amounting to $450 were forthcoming. Several applications for membership in the S. A. F. were received, including two life memberships.

Director Critchell assured the publicity committee that a much more generous financial support could be counted upon from the Cincinnati interests in the near future. The meeting adjourned at a late hour.

The success of this meeting and the meeting of the publicity committee, held during the day, was remarkable, as showing the intense interest taken in the campaign. John Young, Sec'y.

PLANTS FOR LETTERING.

What is the best red, low-growing, bushy plant for letter work? I have used coleus and alternantheras. How many plants should be used for eleven letters four feet long on a terrace with a rise of 45 degrees. The terrace is seventy-five feet long. How much space should be used? I am going to use barberry for a background and santolinas in front of the shrubbery. I have several landscape books, but fail to find how to figure the number of plants and the space to be used for the letters.

P. S.—Mich.

For the eleven letters forty-eight inches in length, which should have a width of twelve inches to be effective, you should use three rows of plants set four inches apart in order to make an effective show from the start. You cannot use anything in red more effective than alternanthera. The varieties rosea nana or brilliantissima would be excellent for your purpose, and the number of plants to be used if spaced as suggested would be 950. To be liberal, you might call it 1,000. Coleus could be used instead of alternanthera and they would go wider apart, so that half the number of plants would suffice, but they require a great deal more pinching and are not so good for formal lettering as alternantheras. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Kennedy & Ledoux, of St. Albans, Vt., are fortunate in having enough material on hand, purchased when it was lower, for two houses. These will go up this summer, if the favorable conditions which now exist continue. Funeral work has been heavy.

• • • •

It is a healthy sign of the times when the craft gets together and agrees upon prices to be asked at special occasions. Baker Bros. and George E. Hunt, of Rutland, Vt., have decided upon a slight advance while their own stock holds out. Afterward they will be governed by the market. Baker Bros. report a good season, both in seeds and flowers. Mr. Hunt has considerable land planted to nursery stock. This branch of the business is gradually increasing and is healthy, but before long the ground will be too valuable for this purpose, as a real estate boom has started.

• • • •

A. J. Binley, of Glens Falls, N. Y., notes a big increase in the business and attributes his success to keeping prices as near to normal as possible. For instance, his customers are aware of the fact that they will not have to pay more than $2.50 per dozen for 3½-inch geraniums and, this being a leader, it gives them confidence to proceed further down the list of bedding plants. In having a base, there is something to build upon and usually one is fortunate enough to have a class of patrons who are willing to pay an advanced price for selected stocks. The Binley plant and buildings are being thoroughly overhauled. "A continuation of prosperity is assured," observed our sanguine confrere.

There was not so large a call for carnations on Mothers' day, only about what could easily be filled, according to W. E. Peters, of Burlington, Vt., who reports a steady demand through the entire season. Memorial day is expected to create big business in plants. The dull, cold weather is holding back blooming stock.

• • • •

Describing his recent visit to Washington at the special invitation of the authorities, relative to the embargo on orchids in particular, John E. Lager, of Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., observed that "while it is true grandmother increases her stock of geraniums by taking slips, this method is not applicable to the increase of cattleyas, for instance. Nor by following along the lines adopted by the free seed distribution plan would the production of seedlings be facilitated. I was amazed at the unfamiliarity of the authorities with the subject, but what gets my goat is the fact that, while many members of our craft are supposed to be holding up our hands, they are really butting us from the rear. The old proverb, 'United we stand, divided we fall,' is a true one, and unless we do hold together, nothing will be accomplished. We are not worrying about the sale of plants while the flowers are bringing the prices they have of late." At this point in the conversation, Mr. Hurrell announced his determination to do his bit by using every practical means to increase the present stock. Another item of news was the information that Leslie H. Hurrell, a member of a medical corps, was en route to Cologne. W. M.

CLEAR the decks for action! There will be plenty around Memorial day.

IF all businesses were as prosperous as that of florists, there would be no unemployment problem.

THERE no doubt will be a world-wide celebration when peace is proclaimed. Why not find a way to make popular the use of flowers in connection with the celebration?

THE sign, "Sold Out," on a flower store door does not, these days, mean that the florist has gone out of business, but that he has for the moment more orders than he can fill.

How does it make you feel to learn that coal in Germany which sold for 13.50 marks per ton before the war commanded 58.85 marks last January and now is quoted at 88.85 marks?

Do you remember when carnations were 5 and 6 cents for Mothers' day and how some retailers protested at the "extortionate" prices? They were glad to get them at double, or more, this year.

MEMORIAL day is one on which all kinds of flowers are used. Without the white carnation problem of Mothers' day and the Easter lily problem of Easter, the trade should be able to make the most of the occasion.

WHY not suggest to the public that Esperanto, Volapuk and other aspiring universal languages are not necessary? The language of flowers is much more expressive and simple, and already is used all over the world.

A GOOD many growers have planted out the lily bulbs from which they have been cutting flowers this spring. The probability is that a year of this practical test will accomplish more than anything which has yet been done toward the growing of lily bulbs in America.

A GREAT improvement, both in business done and in the general attitude, is noted in the coal industry. According to the Black Diamond, this is due to the realization that there is bound to be a coal shortage next fall and winter. Mines have been running from one to three days a week. Miners who have been working have not been producing their limit.

As observant readers are aware, The Review has carried more advertising this spring than ever before. It has become, during and since the war, more than ever the trade's market place.

A WELL-KNOWN retail florist made the statement, the other day, that the telegraph delivery department of his business represented as much to him as his four largest local customers, and is still growing. Is it any wonder he thinks it worth pushing?

IS BUSINESS GOOD WITH YOU?

He is the wise man who can profit by the experience of others, more is the marvel, for the path frequently is plain, like this:

> The largest lot of dracaenas we ever grew has been exhausted by the orders produced by the little ad in The Review.—Frost Greenhouse, Greenville, O., May 9, 1919.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you may be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

MOTHERS' DAY.

Mothers' day has become an accepted and established institution; even the United States army recognized it this year by a general order for the display of flags. And a flower is the badge of Mothers' day; in the program for a parade in Chicago it was stated that "custom calls for bright blossoms in honor of living mothers and white for those passed away."

How greatly the times are changed will be realized if it is remembered that, when Mothers' day first came to attention, the trade welcomed it as dated at a time when we had been having a surplus of flowers, as providing a means of lightening the load carried between Easter and Memorial day. But this year the shortage of stock was such that prices in many instances were close to the highest of the year. It was not possible to push the business of the day as it should be pushed because stock was not available to take care of an increased demand.

It was an undesirable condition, but one not likely soon to be met again.

MAKING THEM THINK.

Of the many benefits directly attributable to the S. A. F. publicity program, perhaps none has been of greater value than that which has come from turning each individual florist's thoughts toward the means by which the sale of flowers could be increased in his community. Flowers have been advertised locally, as well as nationally, to a greater extent the last few months than ever before.

To this day, however, few florists have any thought-out plan of pushing their sales. The advertising is spasmodic.

Only a few of the leading florists have determined on the expenditure of a certain sum of money, representing a percentage of their sales, and have figured out how it should be done.

The big department stores in the cities usually set aside about two and one-half per cent of their enormous sales, the money to be used in printers' ink. In stores where the turnover is not so large, a higher percentage is set aside for this purpose. Some florists now use for advertising as much as six or seven per cent of their sales and find that the expenditure of the money in printing carefully considered advertisements has the result of increasing the business each year.

It would be a mistake for any florist to spend the money merely to use up an appropriation. The plan should be carefully thought out to see that the right mediums are used and that the offers made are such as will appeal to the people reached.

CUSTOM.

It was only a few years ago that the Mothers' day demand centered on white carnations, with the result that white carnations were unobtainable at a time there was no extra demand for other flowers. To meet this situation, The Review coined this couplet:

> For Mother at home, flowers bright;
> For Mother's memory, flowers white.

It was suggested that these lines be included in every Mothers' day advertisement and the trade almost unanimously adopted the idea, with this result:

Under a display head, "White for dead, pink for living, flower symbol of day," the Chicago Tribune said:

> Chicago, through the efforts of the women who wear the gold star, will have a large and unique demonstration in honor of mother. A monster parade will march up Michigan avenue and through the loop. Flowers will be worn in coat lapels and in corsages. Custom calls for pink blossoms in honor of living mothers and white for those passed away.

Thus easily did The Review and its readers make "custom" for the 110,000,000 Americans.

TO PAY EXPRESS CLAIMS.

The Adams Express Co., faced by an accumulation of 100,000 loss and damage claims on shipments made prior to July 1, 1918—when it was included in the American Railway Express Co. merger—has announced a plan to expedite the payment of a great number of these long-standing claims by offering 60 cents on the dollar and immediate settlement. C. W. Stockton, of Stockton & Stockton, general counsel for the Adams Express Co., stated recently that he is making this offer on claims where it is shown that the company received the goods and there is no record of delivery, or where the investigation to show delivery has not been completed.

The greater number of the 100,000 claims that have accumulated are held by shippers in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Boston, as the Adams Express Co. engaged largely in the short-haul express business, serving the Long Island, New Haven and Pennsylvania railroad systems.

The express companies which were merged into the American Railway Express Co., July 1, 1918, with a capitalization of $33,000,000, are now succeeding in getting upon their feet again, according to officials of the various companies. However, it is admitted that the big combined express company, which is operating under an agreement with the government, is losing money constantly. The rates have been increased twenty per cent over the prewar charges, but only the other day another advance in wages was announced by the authorities. This increase, one prominent figure in the express business estimated, will add $25,000,000 a year to the running expenses of the American Railway Express Co., and another advance in rates probably will follow.

OBITUARY

Michael Weiland.

Roses, to the cultivation of which he had practically devoted his entire life, indirectly brought death to Michael Weiland, 41 years old, of Evanston, Ill., May 13. He died of the effects of nicotine fumes, which he inhaled three weeks ago while spraying roses in the greenhouses of the Weiland-Risch Co., in Evanston. He was the rose grower for the concern and a brother of Champ Weiland, one of the proprietors.

Edward Freis.

Edward Freis, a well known florist of Cincinnati, died May 7 at his home in Fort Thomas, Ky. He lacked seven days of reaching his fiftieth year. He was one of those who were born and raised in the business, having started as a florist with his father, John Freis, even before he left school. In 1899 he built his own place on Grand avenue in Fort Thomas. He operated this place with success for eight years, when he sold it and took over his father's business. He was married November 24, 1898. Mr. Freis was industrious and thrifty and had built up an excellent business. He was well liked by all who knew him. He is survived by his wife. C. H. H.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There was no dearth of flowers for Mothers' day as far as everything outside of white carnations was concerned. The buying started on the Friday preceding, with the result that by noon on Saturday white carnations were on the scarce side, with 10 cents top price, inferior flowers bringing a cent or two less. Many shipments showed the effect of long keeping of flowers, but, all in all, there was not so much evidence of a held-over cut as usual on this day. Colored flowers did not move much better than ordinarily, due to the immense quantity on the market.

The market was sluggish all the week, buying being light and spasmodic. A big parade May 5, which paralyzed business for a few hours, and the activities of the Victory loan drive in its last week are responsible for the poor business. A pouring rain all day May 10, with a prospect of its continuance over Sunday, did not encourage heavy buying for Mothers' day.

The supply of roses has been considerably heavier in proportion to the demand and prices have toppled to values about normal for the time of year. American Beauty specials have moved at as low as 15 cents, good quality at that. Other roses in special grades have changed hands at 6 to 8 cents, excepting Hadley and one or two other varieties, the supply of which was not particularly abundant. Carnations are in good supply, the best bringing 6 cents. The quality is deteriorating, the bulk of arrivals being made up of small flower heads.

Orchids are in fair supply only, but their movement is not active and at times clearances are difficult. Good gigas brings as high as 75 cents per flower. There is a fair demand for lily of the valley, especially in the best grades. Lower grades are in competition with outside-grown stock, which just now is unusually fine in quality. Easter lilies drag somewhat, the demand being chiefly for funeral work.

Lilac from local outdoor sources is flooding the market, but cleans up pretty well at prices which are fairly remunerative. Bulbous stock continues in good supply, much of the cut being from coldframes. Darwin tulips are plentiful and when of good quality bring 50 cents per bunch. Spanish iris is particularly noticeable, and at times is in such quantity as to make clearances difficult. Some fine Golden Spur narcissi are coming in, the best of which sell for 75 cents per bunch.

There is an abundance of miscellaneous stock, for which the demand is limited in character. The movement is slow and much stock goes to waste. The variety is excellent and includes pansies, delphiniums, calendulas, sweet peas, snapdragons, stocks, primroses, myosotis, candytuft, wallflowers, mignonette and daisies.

Various Notes.

In many of the churches on Sunday, reference was made to Mothers' day and the custom of wearing flowers on that day. It was especially observed by the convalescent soldiers from the hospitals, most of whom wore flowers in spite of existing military orders prohibiting their use with uniforms.

New York is in the throes of a strike of express drivers and other employees. It has been impossible to obtain delivery of incoming shipments over any of the express lines and the employment by wholesalers of local express service has been attended with difficulty, many of the wagon drivers having to seek police protection. It has been almost impossible to fill orders for outside shipment, perishable goods being barred at the depots. An enterprising dealer from up state, in order to get home with a heavy shipment of carnations, obtained two large trunks, which he packed and shipped on his ticket as passenger's baggage. There is a possibility that the strike may be brought to an end this week, but since its inception it has seriously hampered the flower business.

While figures are not obtainable at this writing, there is every reason to believe that the Victory loan committee in charge of the florists and allied trades section has reached its quota of $250,000. The Manhattan florists on the closing afternoon were over the $175,000 mark and Brooklyn was expecting to more than make up the difference.

Max Rosen is a newcomer in the wholesale district, having opened for business in the basement of 54 West Twenty-eighth street.

Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., is in the city to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society.

J. H. P.

The fall exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York will be held from October 30 to November 2, at the American Museum of Natural History. The announcement is made thus early so that those desiring to exhibit may have ample time in which to prepare. Schedules will be ready shortly and may be had by addressing the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York city.

ALBANY, N. Y.

Mothers' day was ushered in by much and attractive advertising on the part of the florists. The Albany Retail Florists' Association placed a big ad in the daily paper, which was greatly enhanced by a cut representing father, sisters, brother with his overseas helmet and mother, around whom the four were grouped. Several florists advertised individually in the newspapers. The result was the best Mothers' day business on record.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The business for Mothers' day was the most remarkable in the history of this special flower event. It was a repetition of Easter. The demand considerably exceeded the supply, with the result that prices were practically on the Easter level, even higher on carnations, and the market sold out even cleaner than at Easter. It was a notable feature that the high prices were paid with greater good will than at previous holidays, perhaps because the retailers realized that any wholesaler who wanted to cut down the orders of his regular customers could get more money from transients.

This has been a most unusual season, the supply of flowers being reduced, as compared to other years, at a time when the demand was considerably increased. This condition was more apparent on Mothers' day than at Easter or Christmas. Usually the market is well supplied with flowers at this time of year, but last week the receipts, taken as a whole, perhaps amounted to two-thirds the quantity of flowers which came in during the corresponding week of last year. There was no slump between Easter and Mothers' day, good prices being obtainable for all the flowers received in the interim. The anticipated prices were in force a week before Mothers' day and when the special buying for that day began prices were carried above the advance quotations. This was particularly true of carnations.

In a general way the supply was most nearly normal on roses and shortest on carnations. The demand did not run to the special grades of roses, and of these there were enough for all who were willing to pay the price. Of medium and shorter roses the supply was considerably short of requirements, because large numbers of buyers turned to roses when they found they could not get carnations.

Carnations brought more than on any previous Mothers' day. When this day was young, carnations were thought well sold at $50 to $60 per thousand. This year they brought $120 per thousand early in the week and, as Mothers' day approached, the price of first-class stock advanced to $15 per hundred. Many wholesalers say they might have obtained more, but that they did not feel like charging regular customers as much as transients bid for the stock. Of course these prices applied only to first-class stock, but the average quality of carnations was much better than usual, and even the small proportion of splits and soft flowers sold at good prices.

The wholesalers were disappointed in the small receipts of peonies. They had expected a rapid increase in the arrivals, but the weather was such that these failed to materialize. The stock received sold at the best prices peonies ever realized in this market.

Just the opposite was the experience with sweet peas. It had been figured that there would be few of these, but considerable quantities arrived. The quality was not so good as before the long stretch of dark weather, but the stock sold clean at fine prices.

There was a considerable supply of snapdragon, not too good in quality, for the end of the season is near. All miscellaneous flowers sold clean because of the shortage of the first-choice items, and on the whole the market had a much larger week than last year, probably nearly double in money value.

The present week opened strong. Monday, May 12, was one of the most active days the market has seen. The supply of stock was not large. All the buyers were clamoring for flowers and prices held up close to the Mothers' day level. It is figured that a sharp increase in supply and a reduction in demand is due any day. That the change toward normal May conditions has been so long delayed is credited to the cool weather, which seems to be general over the central part of the country. Peonies were expected to be in full crop by now in the southern fields. Usually they are going into cold storage in large quantities at this date, but this year the arrivals have not yet equaled the daily demand. Word has come from Tennessee, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, of damaging frosts May 10, but the extent of the loss has not yet become apparent. Decoration day is near and orders are being offered, but wholesalers are in doubt as to prices and most of them have not booked any business except at open prices. A big demand is expected.

Mothers' Day in Retail Stores.

Perhaps the best feature of Mothers' day was the satisfaction the retailers got out of it. Practically every retailer was back in the market the next morning with his face illuminated by a smile of content. The only complaint was that there had not been enough stock and that trade was lost by the inability to supply flowers. The prices paid were lost sight of; nobody cared, because the stock had sold out clean. It was a quite general report that the public paid this year's Mothers' day prices with less complaint than the much lower prices were paid a year ago, and with less complaint than was heard at Christmas or at Easter. The inference seems to be that the flower consuming public is becoming accustomed to the higher prices now in vogue.

A Cemetery Suit.

An interesting lawsuit was started last week in the Circuit court. It is a bill for an injunction against Concordia cemetery, to prevent that organization leasing ground or buildings in the cemetery to A. H. Schneider, the well known Oak Park florist. The bill was filed by an attorney ostensibly in behalf of certain lot owners in the cemetery, but is understood to be actually in the interest of Ernest Oechslin, who has an establishment across the street from the entrance to the cemetery. Mr. Schneider has for some years had greenhouses and store inside the grounds near the main entrance and recently had started another place near an entrance on the other side of the cemetery provided for people who come on the elevated railroad. The suit to keep Mr. Schneider outside is based on the cemetery's charter, which authorizes it only to conduct a burial place. The Review has published a number of court decisions in which it was held that maintenance of the grounds and graves was part of conducting a place of burial, and that a cemetery might exclude others or delegate its rights in such matters.

Various Notes.

L. R. Bohannon, president of the Retail Florists' Association, and chairman of the trade's Victory loan committee, made the statement May 13 that the trade's total subscriptions to the loan would exceed $300,000, although he was not then prepared to give the exact figures. The credit to be given Mr. Bohannon and his workers will be realized when one stops to think that the committees were organized in the midst of the Easter rush and that the drive closed the night before Mothers' day. Could there ever be a more difficult time to take florists away from their business?

It is reported that J. B. Deamud is in a sanitarium at Traverse City, Mich.

Frank M. Johnson and Henry Niebuhr, of the A. L. Randall Co., left May 12 for a trip to New York.

Paul Klingsporn says last week's sales of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association were considerably more than double those of the same week last year.

John Ziska was 35 years of age May 13.

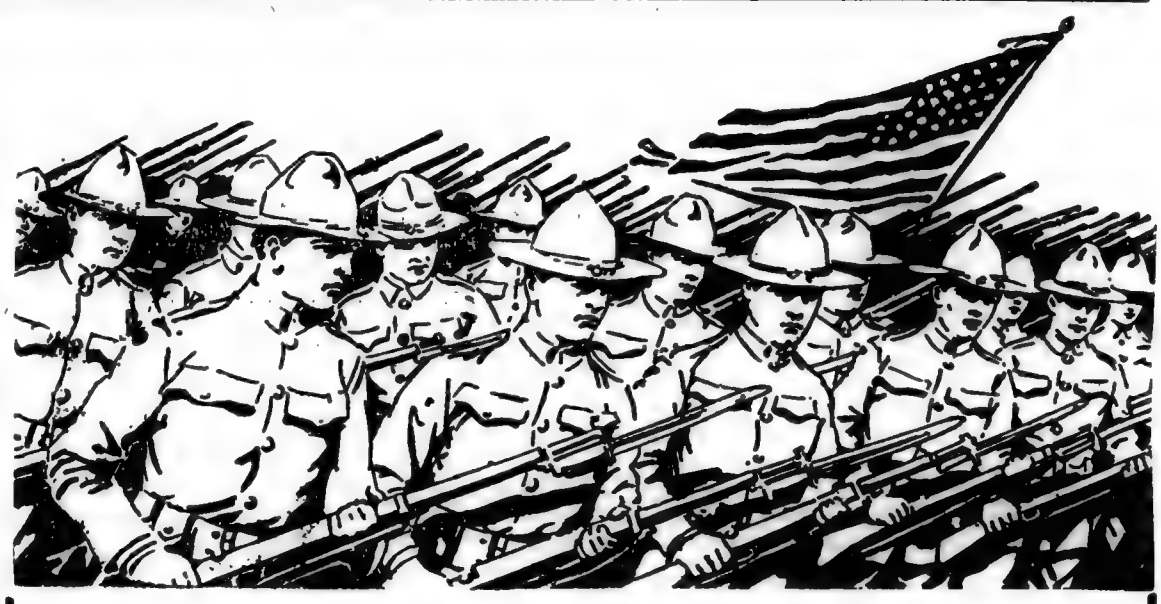
Not content with having reliable representation in Japan and having bought and paid for a large quantity of lily bulbs in advance of the digging, A. Miller has started for Japan to look over the situation there. The American Bulb Co. believes there will be a great scramble for this year's small crop of bulbs and intends to be in on the ground floor. Mr. Miller left Chicago May 10 and will sail May 20 from San Francisco, on the Korea Maru, for Yokohama. He expects to be away for two or three months.

George A. Kuhl, of Pekin, Ill., who has been on the Pacific coast for several months, is back at the Presbyterian hospital, but he is improving steadily and hopes soon to be able to go home and resume active business.

John Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., left May 12 on a two weeks' business trip through the south.

A. G. Pruyser, of the Michigan Bulb Farm, who has made his home here for some time, has removed to Benton Harbor, to be at the scene of active operations.

At Crystal Lake Frank Schramm has given one-fourth his space to Rose Premier. Five thousand plants have been benched, occupying one house.



Friends of P. J. Foley offered congratulations May 12. It was his fifty-second birthday anniversary.

Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, report having contracted for their next season's coal supply at a price 45 cents a ton less than they paid last season. However, it is one of those elastic contracts which permits the seller to change the price at his pleasure and permits the buyer to cancel if the price is raised.

This has been the best season in the experience of Peter J. Schumer, who has been growing at Evanston twenty-two years. He has space for about 35,000 carnation plants, but gives part of it to sweet peas and calendulas.

W. K. Partridge, of the W. W. Barnard Co., is in the County hospital with blood poisoning and is in a serious condition. He has been catalogue man for the Barnard Co.

Among this week's visitors was Henry E. Saier, of Lansing, Mich. He was accompanied by Mrs. Saier.

Miss Berger, of Chas. J. Cherry Co., of Rockford, was in the market May 12 to buy stock to take back immediately, as they sold everything they had in the place at Mothers' day.

The Market.

Carnations were scarce for Mothers' day and higher in price, one wholesale house charging $10 to $12 and another, $15. All carnations were of fine quality. Roses were the general substitute, these blooms having increased to $6 and $20 over the previous week's $4 to $12.

Red Cross Tulip Show.

The opening date of the Red Cross benefit tulip show at the country seat of J. Wilkinson Elliott was changed from May 9 to May 12. Characteristic of grand opera stars and other temperamental public performers, the tulips, one and all, declined to be in readiness for the first-named date; hence the change. Mr. Elliott coached a number of young women in tulip lore so that they might be in readiness to point out the different varieties of the Holland blooms. Arrangements were made by the Motor Corps of the Pittsburgh chapter to carry at least 100 wounded soldiers from the Parkview hospital to Cheswick, while tulips were sent to the boys who were unable to come.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Gustav Ludwig returned May 7 from a five weeks' sojourn in Chicago, where she was called because of the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Victor Bergman. The same day Mrs. Ernest C. Ludwig returned from a visit with relatives in New Galilee, Pa.

John Hellstern, of Pleasant Valley, W. Va., was a recent visitor. Among the commercial travelers during the week were P. Vandekamp, representing H. De Graaff & Sons, of Leiden, Holland, and S. A. Kost, representing William F. Kasting Co. and the Quality Brands Co., of Buffalo, N. Y.

Arthur James, who moved to Oneco, Fla., from Wilkinsburg, Pa., last October, is expected in the city next month.

W. P. & S. L. Gallagher will enlarge their store quarters early in July. They have just erected a small greenhouse for the growing of palms in West Liberty, expecting to enlarge that also, next autumn. Lewis Whitley is in charge of the greenhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. De Forest W. Ludwig left May 7 to spend a week in New York and Philadelphia. They went to meet Mr. Ludwig's brother, Sergeant Edward Earl Ludwig, who returned on the transport Mongolia.

The Market.

The week opened badly. An oversupply of roses brought down prices on Monday and Tuesday. After that the supply decreased, influenced by dark skies and cold rains, while the demand steadily improved as the week drew to a close. Friday and Saturday saw brisk trading. Carnations advanced sharply under the influence of Mothers' day. White brought $12 to $15 per hundred; colored, $10 per hundred. All flowers sold well. The retailers seemed unable to distribute the demand enough so as to prevent carnations from jumping to a price that was out of all proportion to the prices paid for sweet peas or for snapdragons. The wholesalers did little plunging on white carnations, but the street men were not so conservative. Rumor had it that at least three of them bought heavily in New York and got badly singed in doing so. The weather was against the retailers; a wet Saturday and dark Sunday were discouraging to transient business. Curiously enough, the wholesalers were not affected. Production was much diminished, making prices firmer. By Friday night they had little stock left for Saturday's business except the coming shipments.

The loan has been successful, the circus has gone, so have the three weeks following Easter Sunday, so that, with the possible exception of the present week, a month of business activity may reasonably be expected.

A Twenty-Foot Wreath.

Did you ever hear of a wreath measuring twenty feet in diameter? Neither did I. Yet that is the dimension of a wreath displayed in this city May 15, in honor of the parade of the Iron Division. It was made by J. J. Habermehl's Sons for Strawbridge & Clothier and displayed in front of their building, together with six other wreaths of unusual size. Four of these wreaths were twelve feet each in diameter, while the remaining two measured five feet each in diameter. The wreaths were all made of palm leaves, colored oak sprays and other foliage. No flowers were used.

The Latest Style.

The writer who attempts to describe what he or she fondly believes to be what one of my friends delights in describing as "something new and novel" runs no small risk of a rude awakening. It usually takes the form of a hearty thump on the back and a voice of derision saying, "Well, old chappie, you're a good 'un, all right. That new thing you described last week we have been using for ten years." Nevertheless, I am going to risk the thump and the derision by telling you something "new and novel" in the hope that those of you who have not been using it for ten years may be interested.

It came about in this way: The government restrictions have made wire scarce and high in price. Furthermore, wire designs have a look that is not wholly artistic. So a prominent firm in this city conceived the idea of cutting out wire frames and using substitutes wherever possible. Their chief obstacle was the pillow. After some thought a member of this firm hit on the idea of using a long, narrow handle basket. These baskets range from eighteen to forty inches in length. They are about six inches wide. They are square at the four corners and have tin receptacles, generally known as liners. They are also handsomely finished outside, usually in green. When made up, the flowers are arranged on a slope so that they closely resemble a pillow. The low handle of the basket is often partly hidden by flowers. The firm using these baskets affects bright colors in funeral arrangements. The firm will use white flowers when asked to do so, but recommends colors as less cold; brightness as a suggestion of life hereafter.

The Race.

The rose exhibits at the Florists' Club last week were of unusual interest. The show tables arranged in the banquet room of the Adelphia hotel, not on the roof garden as incorrectly stated in last week's report, showed the wisdom of an exhibition of indoor-grown roses in May. Not only was the stock of high quality, but opportunity was afforded for comparison between the old and new sorts. Probably the chief point of interest to most of those present was comparison between Premier and Mrs. Charles Russell. So similar are these two varieties that one of the experts who saw the box of Premier being unpacked thought they were Russell. When both varieties were arranged and staged the difference was more apparent. Russell had the advantage of a winter's rest and a short journey. With these advantages Russell had the best of it that night. The growers believe that Premier is the better rose from their point of view. The sellers want to be convinced that Premier will equal Russell from their point of view. The race has begun.

The Market.

The market continues quiet. The demand is fairly good, but there is a flood of all sorts of stock to take care of it. There is plenty of first-class stock on hand. Roses are especially good. Sweet peas are beginning to run poor. Good carnations are plentiful, but there are many inferior ones on the market. The usual supply of all kinds of outdoor stock is to be had at almost any price and where cheap funeral work is wanted this comes in well. To sum up, the market is just what it always is at this season of the year. Business is fast getting down to pre-war conditions.

Various Notes.

One of the busiest places about the city is that of the I. H. Moss Co. This firm has fine landscape business and never in its history has it done more business in ornamental nursery stock. Its orders for bedding plants are better than ever this year. Every establishment with a nursery connected with it is experiencing about the same conditions.

Fred Bauer has all the work he can handle. The same holds good at the Towson Nurseries, where William Price, the manager, is busy night and day, endeavoring to keep up with the work. There have been a great number of improvements, both public and private, about the city and all the florists seem to have received a fair share of the business. Good bedding stock is scarce this spring and those who are fortunate enough to have it are reaping a rich harvest.

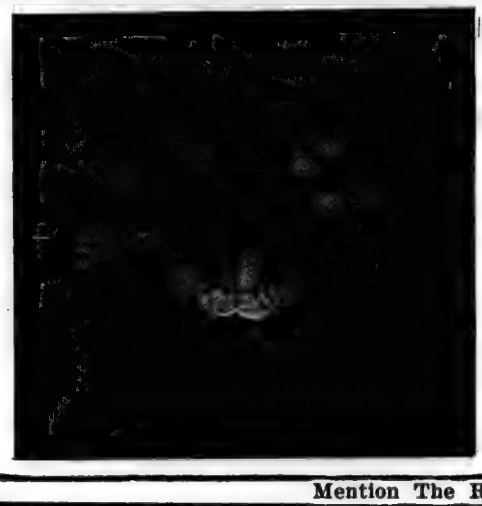
Many of the boys, owing to uncertain conditions last fall, ran their ranges short, while others did not continue business. In a recent trip the writer saw three ranges that were absolutely empty. There is nothing more depressing to an old florist than to see a range of good houses that have lain idle all winter.



Owing to the scarcity and high prices of bedding stock, the public is this year turning to seeds and the seed houses are on the job with large advertisements in the daily press. Bolgiano & Son, while they have always done much advertising, are surpassing themselves this spring. It is a common thing to see a full-page advertisement of this progressive firm.

Some idea of the growth of the cut flower end of the business can be had from the fact that Baltimore now supports five commission houses. Not so many years ago one was enough to take care of all the trade of the city. This was the old Florists' Exchange, which was absorbed by the S. S. Pennock Co. and is still located on the old site at Franklin and St. Paul streets. J. J. Perry, who is in charge of this firm, has devoted his entire business life to making a success of this business and he is justly proud of his efforts.

The Leo Niessen Co., while it is not such an old establishment, has made great strides under the able management of William McKissick and now does its full share of business.

James Towner is the manager of the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. Wholesale cut flowers are a comparatively new venture with Mr. Towner, but he is an experienced salesman in the trade and since taking hold of this new enterprise has been making good.

The new Florists' Exchange has G. J. Muhly for general manager. Mr. Muhly is a young, aggressive business man and he has surrounded himself with a fine organization. Mr. Smyth, the secretary and treasurer of the firm, is a man of mature years, with rich business experience. Tate.

The Market.

Mothers' day business was extremely good and all retailers were kept busy. On the wholesale market, carnations, as usual, made the most pronounced advance. Prices May 9 and 10 varied from $8 to $12 per hundred. Attempts of some growers and salesmen to reach $15 met with complete failure, as retailers refused to pay that price and substituted roses, which were in abundant supply and at more moderate prices. Carnations ruled strong all the week. Many growers held back flowers too long, with the result that these had a jaded appearance. There were, however, plenty of flowers of good quality May 10 to go around. Lily of the valley, pansies, sweet peas and other flowers sold well, as did roses and carnations, and the day has now been set down as one of the important flower days, in spite of the efforts of some to deprecate the holiday, owing to florists "commercializing the day."

The present week's business opens encouragingly. With the end of the Victory loan campaign, people can now turn once more to flowers. Roses are of excellent quality. Some nice Kaiserins are now coming in and American Beauties are selling quite freely. Hadley continues in demand, but the growers seem unable to produce it in sufficient numbers. Carnations hold up well, as do sweet peas. Narcissi and tulips are about over, but gladioli, such as America, Mrs. F. King and Peach Blossom, of splendid quality, are arriving, and there is an ample supply of Spanish irises, as well as good ixias and tritonias.

Yellow marguerites are in large supply and sell better than the white Mrs. Sander. Snapdragons are of excellent quality, but do not sell particularly well. Callas have sold better than lilies. Ten weeks' stocks come from a number of growers, while Gypsophila elegans is in good supply and demand at 50 cents per bunch. The supply of cattleyas is ample for the demand. Lily of the valley is arriving of a little better quality. Local flowers, grown in coldframes, will be available in a few days. Demand for asparagus and adiantum has been rather listless of late. Hydrangeas, roses and other flowering plants continue to sell well. Herbaceous calceolarias are seen in considerable numbers. Pansies, forget-me-nots and daisies in baskets meet with a large sale.

Various Notes.

Penn had a handsome window for Mothers' day, which attracted a great deal of attention. The store did a big business and most of the staff worked nearly all the night of May 9 getting abreast of the orders. Roses, sweet peas, pansies, carnations and valley sold especially well.

Arnold Janiten, who acquired the major portion of the Rawson greenhouses on Warren street, Arlington, last winter, has his houses remarkably well stocked already, although he did not take possession until January 6. Mr. Janiten had a splendid lot of hybrid perpetual roses for Easter and now has two large houses of stocks, just right for Memorial day, bedding plants in quantity, as well as large batches of cyclamens, begonias, etc., all in the best of health.

J. Seaver & Son, of Framingham, are sending in fine Ward, Matchless and Beacon carnations, as well as sweet peas.

Andrew J. Mitchell, who last summer sold out his interest in C. T. Beasley & Co., of East Milton, when called under the selective draft, has now located in North Sudbury, Mass., and is at present specializing in carnations.

The National Association of Gardeners will hold a conference of New England members in Horticultural hall, Boston, May 16. Quarantine No. 37 again will come up for discussion. The association takes an uncompromising stand against this measure.

William H. Elliott is cutting an exceptionally good lot of Kaiserin roses at his Brighton establishment. His Miller, Hadley, Ophelia and White Killarney are extra fine.

Heights, at one time editor of Suburban Life, when it was published in Boston, succeeds the late William J. Stewart as editor of Horticulture.

A. P. Peterson, of Saxonville, has a nice cut of Gypsophila elegans, sweet peas and callas. His carnations are good this season, especially Alice, Roper, Matchless, Benora and Beacon.

William R. Nicholson is cutting heavily of gypsophila, of which he is the local king, and marguerites. His carnations are in heavy crop and he has fine gladioli. For Memorial day he will have a heavy cut of ten weeks' stocks and double feverfew.

A meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be held May 20. The special attraction will be F. E. Palmer's talk on "Accounting for Florists." Coming from a successful, practical grower and retailer, and one who is a ready speaker, this talk is sure to contain many valuable points. There will be other business of importance and interesting exhibits.

There will be a prize exhibition at Horticultural hall May 17 and 18 of Darwin tulips, narcissi, pansies, lilacs and other flowering shrubs, wild flowers and vegetables.

John A. Nelson, of Framingham, has a heavy cut of handsome white, yellow, pink and red stocks. His carnations were in excellent crop for Mothers' day. Especially fine were Ward, Pink Delight, Matchless, Benora and Beacon.

Everything at this time points to a tremendous Memorial day demand for flowers and a supply considerably below normal. A number of houses which were vacant last winter are now planted with such crops as sweet peas, candytuft, feverfew and stocks, but the supply will be inadequate. At this time it is uncertain how outdoor supplies will be, but, if such weather as we now have continues, plenty of lilac, deutzia, German iris, etc., should be available.

In the Arnold Arboretum some of the rhododendrons and azaleas are now in good bloom. The malus display is at its height and many interesting shrubs are flowering. The white, sweet-scented, bouvardia-like Viburnum Carlesii is worthy of special note.

shows a tremendous increase over last year. Hardy roses are, and have been for some time, unprocurable, except for a few ramblers. Dealers are turning away numerous orders daily.

Mothers' day was more generally observed in the churches here than ever before and many flowers were worn. The weather was cold, wet and cheerless, with a northeast wind blowing. The storm, starting at noon May 10, hurt retail business and late sales of Victory loan bonds considerably, but Boston went "over the top" with both.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report a splendid Mothers' day business.

Peter Pederzini, of Medfield, is planning to build another greenhouse 150 feet long this summer. He located in Medfield in the fall of 1917 and his business has grown steadily. W. N. C.

Detroit Convention Plans.

Before starting on a trip in the interests of the national publicity campaign, the secretary, April 23, visited Detroit for the purpose of laying out a floor plan of Arcadia auditorium to cover the requirements of the convention and trade exhibition. In this work he was rendered material assistance by Vice-President E. A. Fetters and William Dilger, the latter of the Breitmeyer Landscape & Nursery Co.

The preparatory work in connection with the housing of the convention and its auxiliaries is well under way, while the various details necessary for the success of the meeting and the comfort and enjoyment of the visitors are in course of arrangement by Vice-President Fetters, Philip Breitmeyer and others among our Detroit enthusiasts.

Arcadia auditorium is an ideal building for the purposes of the convention, as it presents an opportunity for holding the meetings and the trade exhibition on the same floor, without interference of one with the other, yet at all times connecting. It may be necessary, however, to locate the cut flower exhibits and the offices of affiliated organizations on the second, or balcony, floor.

Floor plans showing available spaces in the trade exhibition will be issued this month and the outlook at present is that every square foot will be reserved long in advance of the time of opening.

The Toledo florists evinced considerable enthusiasm over the large Easter business accomplished, much credit for it being given to the work of the campaign. In Columbus next day the secretary was in charge of H. Wilson and Carl O. Detroit Convention Plans.

Before starting on a trip in the interests of the national publicity campaign, the secretary, April 23, visited Detroit for the purpose of laying out a floor plan of Arcadia auditorium to cover the requirements of the convention and trade exhibition. In this work he was rendered material assistance by Vice-President E. A. Fetters and William Dilger, the latter of the Breitmeyer Landscape & Nursery Co.

The preparatory work in connection with the housing of the convention and its auxiliaries is well under way, while the various details necessary for the success of the meeting and the comfort and enjoyment of the visitors are in course of arrangement by Vice-President Fetters, Philip Breitmeyer and others among our Detroit enthusiasts.

Arcadia auditorium is an ideal building for the purposes of the convention, as it presents an opportunity for holding the meetings and the trade exhibition on the same floor, without interference of one with the other, yet at all times connecting. It may be necessary, however, to locate the cut flower exhibits and the offices of affiliated organizations on the second, or balcony, floor.

Floor plans showing available spaces in the trade exhibition will be issued this month and the outlook at present is that every square foot will be reserved long in advance of the time of opening.

Trip for Publicity Fund.

On leaving Detroit, the secretary, April 24 and 25, was in Toledo in the interest of the campaign fund. The genial Thomas Magee, of the Scottwood Greenhouses, gave generously of his time in escorting the secretary to the establishments of various growers in the vicinity, all of whom subscribed to the fund. Calls were also made on all the retail florists of the city, and were entertained at lunch by Director Critchell, the repast being served in the same room, so that the proceedings were unbroken by adjournment. At the conclusion of the meeting all present were guests at a dinner given by Director Hill at the Hotel Gibson.

In opening the proceedings, President Ammann announced that the meeting had been called at the suggestion of Chairman Asmus and himself. As far as the publicity work itself was concerned, he said, it was well organized and was working splendidly, but, in his opinion, organization on the matter of procuring subscriptions to the fund was weak and the meeting was considered necessary in order that some plan might be devised whereby this part of the work could be advanced. All knew of the variety of ideas which had been presented looking to this end, but, it seemed to him, there were big enough men available to formulate a plan that could be worked out either from the executive headquarters or through committees, tending to bring about greater uniformity in the soliciting of funds. The publicity work was a great thing and, he said, none need have any hesitancy in approaching anybody in reference to it.

The president's remarks started a lengthy discussion, in which all took part. Of many suggestions made, a few were held for further consideration. The chair proposed that the proper way to get definite action in the matter would be to designate a committee of two or three to formulate a plan on a percentage basis, such as had been repeatedly suggested during the discussion, particularly by Mr. Knoble. There being no objection, he appointed Messrs.

trips. This plan appealed to the meeting for the reason that if successfully carried out the 1919 fund would be completed and any other plan formulated could, if found acceptable, be put in operation for another campaign. Mr. Asmus was particularly earnest in his support of this plan, which, he said, he had anticipated to an extent sufficient to warrant him, as chairman of the publicity finance committee, to enlist the services of two capable representatives for this purpose.

pense. The details in regard to this work were placed in the hands of the chairmen of the two committees, Messrs. Asmus and Penn, in connection with the president and secretary.

The committee on apportionment, through Herman Knoble, chairman, presented a report which showed careful thought on its part on the business entrusted to it, and its adoption was, on motion, unanimous. The figures, however, are considered to be tentative until the committees report at the Detroit convention.

The meeting then took up the matter of a continuance of the magazine advertising, and an appropriation was voted to cover a series of advertisements in the magazines to keep the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," constantly before the public during the summer months. The meeting then adjourned.

It may be added that the calling of this meeting should in no way be considered as a reflection on the work of the publicity finance committee, which has been most ably conducted and carried out. Chairman Asmus' idea in urging the holding of the meeting was to accelerate the collection of the fund by more intense work, the scope of which must necessarily be decided by the committees jointly.

John Young, Sec'y.

May 10, 1919.

Morristown, N. J.—E. A. Holton is well pleased with the way things are going floriculturally. A fine display of tulips and spring flowers around the place was noted. Many of the excellent displays seen in the private gardens around town were supplied from this establishment.

Scranton, Pa.—George R. Clark, of this city, uses a remedy for the tree borer which he has never known to fail in his many years of experience with nursery stock. Take cow manure, wood ashes, lime and land plaster, and mix in equal proportions. Apply in paste form at the base of the tree to the height of six inches up the stem, during April, May and June, one application each month. If the season opens early, as was the case this year, begin earlier; it acts as a preventive.

The Market.

During the last week the wholesale market had its ups and downs. In the early part of the week there was plenty of stock; then came cloudy weather and plenty of rain, which shortened up shipments and made stock scarce. As the demand for Mothers' day became heavy prices shot upward. By Saturday noon every market was cleaned up, which showed that the retailers must have had a heavy demand for Mothers' day. Some of the leading retailers say that the exceedingly low prices of the week previous and the sudden change to high prices hurt in some cases. Still, the public wanted flowers for this day and they paid the prices.

Carnations were in great demand all the week and the price went up as high as 12 cents for fancies; 8 to 10 cents in other grades. The supply was not large enough for the demand. Roses were in better supply and these, too, advanced a few cents in all grades. Fancy grades cleaned out early on advance orders and all other grades cleaned up nicely before noon.

pense. The details in regard to this work were placed in the hands of the chairmen of the two committees, Messrs. Asmus and Penn, in connection with the president and secretary.

The committee on apportionment, through Herman Knoble, chairman, presented a report which showed careful thought on its part on the business entrusted to it, and its adoption was, on motion, unanimous. The figures, however, are considered to be tentative until the committees report at the Detroit convention.

The meeting then took up the matter of a continuance of the magazine advertising, and an appropriation was voted to cover a series of advertisements in the magazines to keep the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," constantly before the public during the summer months. The meeting then adjourned.

It may be added that the calling of this meeting should in no way be considered as a reflection on the work of the publicity finance committee, which has been most ably conducted and carried out. Chairman Asmus' idea in urging the holding of the meeting was to accelerate the collection of the fund by more intense work, the scope of which must necessarily be decided by the committees jointly.

John Young, Sec'y.

Morristown, N. J.—E. A. Holton is well pleased with the way things are going floriculturally. A fine display of tulips and spring flowers around the place was noted. Many of the excellent displays seen in the private gardens around town were supplied from this establishment.

Scranton, Pa.—George R. Clark, of this city, uses a remedy for the tree borer which he has never known to fail in his many years of experience with nursery stock. Take cow manure, wood ashes, lime and land plaster, and mix in equal proportions. Apply in paste form at the base of the tree to the height of six inches up the stem, during April, May and June, one application each month. If the season opens early, as was the case this year, begin earlier; it acts as a preventive.

The Market.

During the last week the wholesale market had its ups and downs. In the early part of the week there was plenty of stock; then came cloudy weather and plenty of rain, which shortened up shipments and made stock scarce. As the demand for Mothers' day became heavy prices shot upward. By Saturday noon every market was cleaned up, which showed that the retailers must have had a heavy demand for Mothers' day. Some of the leading retailers say that the exceedingly low prices of the week previous and the sudden change to high prices hurt in some cases. Still, the public wanted flowers for this day and they paid the prices.

Carnations were in great demand all the week and the price went up as high as 12 cents for fancies; 8 to 10 cents in other grades. The supply was not large enough for the demand. Extra fine gladiolus spikes had a good demand, especially the fancy varieties, of which there were many. Sweet peas, snapdragons, calendulas, daisies, irises, valley and orchids all came in for heavy demand.

In greens the heaviest demand was for asparagus. It can be safely stated that this year's Mothers' day will go over the top as the best ever experienced by the local florists.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club took place in the offices of the publicity committee, 1316 Pine street. The attendance was better than expected, twenty-five members braving the rain to be present. President Hummert presided. The trustees and publicity committee made encouraging reports.

President Ammann, of the S. A. F., was present and gave the members an interesting talk on S. A. F. matters and the work that is being done by the national publicity committee. Victory loan speakers and salesmen sold an additional number of bonds to the members.

Resolutions on the death of Emmett McDonald were read by Chairman H. C. Irish, of the resolution committee.

The trustees were instructed to arrange for the club's annual picnic for some date in the month of July and report at the next meeting of the club.

H. C. Irish spoke about the Missouri state fair and asked the coöperation of the members for displays of cut flowers and plants. This matter was placed in the hands of Chairman Bourdet.

The feature of the meeting was a lecture illustrated with lantern slides by George H. Pring, of the Missouri Botanical Garden. The subject was "Plants of Other Countries."

For the next five months all club meetings will be held outdoors at the various greenhouse establishments.

County Growers' Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the County Growers' Association May 7 at the Eleven Mile House proved to be the most interesting and largest attended of the year. The annual election of officers took place. It resulted as follows: President, Charles Meier; vice-president, George Hartmann; secretary, Joseph Deutschmann; treasurer, August Hartmann. The last two were reëlected.

Publicity Committee Meeting.

At a special meeting of the publicity committee May 6, Chairman Bourdet presided. Eleven of the twelve members were present to hear the report of the first month's collection on the new plan of raising funds. The report showed that among the growers nearly 100 per cent had contributed their one-half of one per cent and the retailers' percentage was nearly seventy-five per cent.

Strong Mothers' day advertisements were approved, to be placed in the five daily papers to create a great deal of new business for the local trade.

President Ammann, of the S. A. F., was present and was much pleased with the workings of this committee and the great good it is bound to accomplish. He told the members of the recent meetings of the national publicity committee at Cincinnati, which he attended.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held an exceedingly interesting and largely attended meeting May 7 at the Forest park greenhouses. It was the last indoor meeting of the association until fall. Philip Giebel and L. Baumann led a discussion on "Outdoor Bedding," which was most interesting. L. P. Jensen presided over the meeting.

The Food and Household show which opened May 12 at the Coliseum was handsomely and attractively decorated by Vandervoort's floral department under the supervision of Julius Schaeffer.

Additional growers who reported loss by hail May 4 were Oscar May, Sappington, Mo., and Mrs. Eigenbrod, who had losses of fifty per cent each. Others with losses not so heavy were A. P. Scheidegger, Joseph Hauser and John R. Steinicke.

Recent visitors to the trade were Ove Gnatt, of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; J. J. Karins, representing H. A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia, Pa., and P. L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.

H. C. Irish has been made superintendent of floriculture at the Missouri state fair, which will be held sometime in August. The appointment came from the Missouri state board of agriculture.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. is manufacturing attractive illuminated signs in colors with several slides: "Say It with Flowers," "Mothers' Day," and "Memorial Day." Local sales have been heavy on these.

The W. A. Rowe Floral Co., of Kirkwood, has purchased the Erker greenhouse range in South Kirkwood, which consists of 24,000 square feet of glass and one and one-half acres of land.

The Missouri state representatives at Jefferson City, Mo., by a vote in both houses, named the crab apple blossom as the state flower. This was recommended by the State Horticultural Society. J. J. B.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

A big advertising boom by some of the larger concerns brought a rush of orders for Mothers' day. The big demand caused a slight tightening in prices and a noticeable shortage in blooms, especially in carnations and roses, whites particularly. As Memorial day approaches it becomes more and more evident that the shortage of potted plants will be the worst ever known here. Already, potted plants that usually bring 15 to 25 cents are held at 50 cents and higher. Magnolia, galax and ivy leaves made up into wreaths, crosses and other designs, trimmed with wax and other artificial flowers, are being sold in quantities that are simply astonishing.

The florists of this city are beginning to realize the efficacy of local advertising, and in consequence they are getting a swing such as they never experienced before. Until recently any notices concerning the florists' trade have been con-the day pass without any recognition, merely because the people who would buy flowers either did not know about it until too late or forgot about it. This year the effects of the public announcements became evident early in the week through the increasing number of orders for Saturday and Sunday morning delivery.

Various Notes.

Florists are anxiously watching and waiting to see some movement for relief in regard to the excessive and almost prohibitive telephone rates.

Parker Fraser has opened a store at River Point for Memorial day, with potted plants and a large line of artificial designs.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius J. Hartstra had a narrow escape from serious injury May 4, when the automobile in which they were riding was crashed into by another machine. Mrs. Hartstra was badly shaken up and cut and bruised.

The garage of William S. Sword, Valley Falls, was broken into the other night and his automobile stolen. Later it was returned by the police.

Alexander Macrae, of F. Macrae's Sons, is building a handsome new dwelling for himself on Smith street, near the greenhouses.

Frederick H. Cole is to build a small greenhouse at 228 Warwick avenue, Cranston.

Michael Regault has commenced the erection of a greenhouse on the corner of Payan and Gough streets, Arctic.

S. L. Booth, manager of the greenhouses at Seven Oaks Farm, Bristol, has a large quantity of vegetable and bedding plants ready to be set out.

William Bland has resumed his old position with Joseph Koppelman & Co., after about fourteen months' service in the navy.

Frederick McKenna is back with T. O'Connor after several months overseas with the army.

D. Pasquale has opened a new retail store on Atwell avenue.

J. E. Koppelman has six extra men working for him until 10 o'clock every night, filling orders for Memorial day.

One decorating firm used 25,000 yards of laurel roping last week on decorations for the welcome-home demonstration.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, was in the city last week placing orders for Memorial day supplies. W. H. M.

Manager: "Here is a rush order for a $7.50 Eastern Star for the 4:10 train—just 20 minutes to make it in, too."

Designer: "We have no yellow flowers and are out of immortelles and we used the last star frame yesterday for Mrs Snow. We have had them ordered for a week, and how I wish the government officials had to EAT all the delayed shipments."

(Door opens and in steps Bayersdorfer's man from Philadelphia He notes that all is in confusion, and offers his help---Manager explains, and he offers real help.)

Traveling Man: "I can help you. Get me about a foot of 6-inch white chiffon." It is produced, and he simply attaches an Eastern Star Frat-M to the chiffon and places it in the center of a pillow which was already made up, and Bob gets a box, packs it and makes the train. Figure the saving to the florist.

Manager: "For heaven's sake send us some of those Frat-M's; they saved our life today, and will do it again. What are they worth?"

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

There was a splendid supply of cut flowers on hand for Mothers' day trade. Snapdragons and roses were in abundant supply and of good quality. Sweet peas, carnations, calendulas, marguerites, pansies, violets, lilacs, callas, etc., also were offered. The local florists were prepared for a large trade, but one of the worst rain storms of the season struck Bridgeport the day before Mothers' day and this hurt business to a great extent. There were telephone orders, but counter trade was poor. Among the potted plants were cinerarias, spiræas, hydrangeas, geraniums, mountain daisies, etc. Prices had dropped somewhat from those asked at Easter time, but had advanced again for Mothers' day.

Weddings during the last few weeks called for many flowers. Funeral work also created a demand.

Various Notes.

Many war gardens are being planted again this year, which call for quantities of seeds and vegetable plants. There is a splendid lot of bedding plants on hand at the various greenhouses, but there has not been much demand for them yet, as the weather has been cold. Some of the florists report that the orders they have booked are smaller than last year. People are buying fewer geraniums, etc., because they object to the high prices.

The beds of tulips at the city hall green and on Broad street are in their prime and make a splendid showing. They look better this year than they ever did before.

Victor Carwedean reports that business has been good during the last few weeks. He had a splendid lot of carnations, sweet peas and roses for Mothers' day.

James E. Beach says that there is much funeral work. He had trouble getting enough flowers to fill his Mothers' day orders. Bedding stock is in good shape at these greenhouses.

Robert Hawkins announces a brisk call for bedding plants, but on account of the high prices says that people are not buying as many as usual.

John Reck & Son intend to move to their old site this week. A splendid new building has been erected and their new store will be unusually attractive. Rain injured their Mothers' day trade so much as to make it the worst on record.

Julius Reck is well stocked with bedding plants. His carnations are off crop. His son, John Reck, who is stationed in Paris, writes that the florists' windows over there make a beautiful showing. George Reck, another son, is to be married in the near future. A cottage is being erected on the place for him.

James Horan & Son have purchased a new Dodge delivery car. "Say It with Flowers" is painted on the side of it. This firm had several weddings recently. They are displaying some splendid snapdragons.

The Park Garden & Flower Shop says that tomato and other vegetable plants are going well. This company is cutting some splendid callas. I. L. B.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

After an unusually wet week, the day before Mothers' day was dry, but cloudy, and the weather on the holiday was fine. Business for Mothers' day was immense. Everybody cleaned up on cut flowers of all kinds. Plants were next in demand and went fast. Roses and carnations were sold out by Saturday noon and no more could be had.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.; thirty-seventh annual convention, Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 24, 25, 26, 1919.

SOME of the Holland houses have called their salesmen home ahead of time and there are those who predict that the orders for tulips will not be filled over fifty per cent on the average, even at prevailing high prices.

THE end of the season finds the Chicago market with a heavier load of surplus onion sets than last year, when large quantities were dumped. There is no market price. Indications are that dealers in other sections also are stuck.

IT is said by those well informed on the subject that forty will cover the number of Holland bulb salesmen who have visited the United States this season, where there have been as high as 125 here in a year of large supply and unrestricted travel.

THE Michigan Bulb Farm, which is the personal business of A. G. Pruyser, of Westerbeek & Klyn, recently acquired a near-by dairy farm of 177 acres at Benton Harbor, Mich. The planting of gladioli is progressing and seventy acres will be out soon.

THE R. & S. Flower Store, Missoula, Mont., has added a bulk seed department and changed the name to the R. & S. Flower & Seed Store. In addition to the vegetable and flower seeds handled this year, grass and field seeds will be put in for 1920. F. X. Scully is proprietor.

THE onion set acreage around Chicago, the country's great producing center, is considerably reduced this season because of two consecutive years of low spring prices. The crop has been planted under difficulties, because of much rain, and germination has been irregular because of flooded fields.

THE Food Administration prohibited dealing in futures during the war and the canning trade is having difficulty in getting the jobbers to resume the old methods. There is a similar tendency in the seed trade, and it may be that the system will change, making the growing of seeds even more speculative than heretofore.

THE Gurney Seed & Nursery Co. is one of the biggest industries in Yankton, S. D. It employs 150 persons and daily fills orders for an average of thirty-seven states. The firm has customers in every state of the Union, and in many foreign places. The concern started in Iowa in 1866, moving to Yankton in 1892. Its present capital is $160,000.

MADSON'S REORGANIZED.

A reorganization of the M. G. Madson Seed Co., of Manitowoc, Wis., was completed recently. The Madson interests have sold their stock in the company and retired from business, though the company will continue to operate under its old name and on a much more extensive scale than formerly, going into all branches of the seed trade. The capitalization of the company has been increased to $150,000. New buildings are to be erected.

Charles L. Kunz has been elected president and general manager of the new company, while Frank A. Miller, general manager of the William Rahr Sons' Co. and the Cereal Products Co., is vice-president. W. L. Hamilton, who for the last five years has had charge of the seed case department of the Hamilton Mfg. Co., Two Rivers, Wis., is secretary and treasurer. The directors are as follows: Charles A. Kunz, F. A. Miller and W. L. Hamilton.

Branches will be established in Minnesota, according to the plans of the new president and general manager of the company, who has been with the Madson company for twenty-three years.

Cornelius Madson died a few weeks ago and M. G. Madson is retiring. The firm has been known in the trade for many years as a large contract grower of seed peas and it has been a considerable factor in the bulk seed business and, more recently, in the commission box trade.

ONION SEED IN CALIFORNIA.

The California onion seed crop is affected by mildew in some sections, which makes the size of the yield uncertain at this time. As far as can be ascertained, the damage is heaviest in the Santa Clara and San Juan districts and to date the crops of the Sacramento delta section are not much affected. Spraying has been resorted to in some instances to offset the mildew as much as possible, but it would seem many of the growers are much discouraged over the present outlook. In view of the developments of the last fortnight, some of the growers have ceased to book contracts until the size of the crop can be judged with some degree of accuracy. M. M.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Riverside, Cal.—The California Association of Nurserymen meets here May 26 and 27 and the largest attendance on record is expected.

Boise, Idaho.—The Bayhouse Floral Co., which has a store on Main street and a range of glass on O'Farrel street, is adding another house 50x104 feet.

Watsonville, Cal.—H. A. Hyde, local grower, shipped over 15,000 Godfrey callas during the week preceding Easter. He found æthiopica a drug on the market, but Godfrey sold well. Most of the flowers in one field of Godfreys came from bulbs one-half to five-eighths of an inch in diameter.

Walla Walla, Wash.—Clarence F. Jones, who recently returned from France, where he served as a Y. M. C. A. worker for over a year, has purchased the business of the Blossom Floral Co., located here. He is well pleased with conditions. His store is known as the Jones Flower Shop.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Each year the business for Mothers' day improves and the call for carnations was especially good. The publicity given the carnation for this occasion is not an unmixed good, because it leads everyone to think that this flower is the only one and it creates a run on this stock to the detriment of other kinds. Shipping business was fine and the extra facilities given by the express companies helped considerably. Greenhouse carnations were especially scarce and the dull weather kept the outdoor crops down in number, though the quality was good. Roses took a little finding towards the last—that is, stock fit for shipping, but there were few orders unfilled.

The demand from the east and the middle west for statice and other "everlastings" was a surprise to the local market. Probably to some extent this was in preparation for Decoration day rather than for present use, but immense numbers of flowers were cleaned up. Orchids were about even with the demand, the plentiful supply of Cecile Brunner roses cutting this down a little. Sweet peas were of medium quality only, but in fair supply. Spanish iris has been plentiful and good and small flowers generally about up to the demand. Greens are plentiful, but of medium quality, the plumosus being hardly ripe enough for shipping. The brake is the poorest seen in the market for a long time. Plants of all kinds are scarce.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Hills have just returned from a motor trip north and report having an extra nice time. They took the route via Bakersfield and Fresno to Oakland and San Francisco, calling on friends and members of the trade en route.

It is pleasing to note that E. B. Washburn has quite recovered his health and usual activity and is around the nurseries again. Mr. Washburn says they will begin to ship some kentias this season, but it will be another year before they will ship them in large quantities. In the meantime they are building a greenhouse for propagating purposes and considerably enlarging the lath houses. Large quantities of seeds are being imported again this year.

Roy F. Wilcox is getting encouraging reports back from New York on his carload shipments of kentias and reports another big middle west order. The nursery at Montebello is already showing signs of activity and the signs are for development. Mr. Wilcox intends specializing in certain lines of nursery stock and to this end is making attractive offers to the trade in other lines.

F. Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., returned from a short trip to the mountains just in time for the Mothers' day trade. It was a big rush. Most of the staff worked several nights to get shipments off in time. The refrigerator service on the Salt Lake Line helped out these and other wholesalers for the day.

Big shipments of nursery stock are leaving the Beverly Hills Nursery and the landscape department is working full time. J. J. Reeves, superintendent of the nursery, is in far better health than he was. Ted is back into harness again after his service. He was made lieutenant during the time he was in the army.

Friends of J. Gordon, manager at Darling's Flower Shop, are glad to note his improved health. Apparently he will soon be the "same old John."

Wright's Flower Shop is adding another greenhouse to the establishment at Moneta. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Flowers are plentiful, but they are either not in so heavy supply as usual for this time of the year, or business is a little more brisk than usual. At no time between Easter and Mothers' day was there any great accumulation of stock and prospects are considered favorable for the remainder of May, at least.

The heavy shipping demand for flowers for Mothers' day brought the price of roses up to about the same as prevailed at Easter, which reflects an extremely large call for this particular flower, as receipts have been increasing steadily since the April holiday. The quality was never better, on the whole, there being an abundance of good roses of practically every variety grown extensively in this section, including Russell, Columbia and Ophelia. The American Beauties leave little to be desired. Irish Elegance is plentiful and good, and the demand was never better for this rose.

A much different situation prevails in regard to carnations. Carnations are on the short side of the market and the quality runs to medium and poor, rather than to first-class blooms. Many inquiries for these flowers, especially for white ones, were received on shipping orders for Mothers' day, but few of the shippers saw fit to risk the limited supply of good blooms by shipping any considerable distance, past experience having shown that good condition upon arrival could not be guaranteed in the case of carnations. Locally, there was a strong tendency to get away from the white carnation idea, but good white carnations were considered good property and were being held for high prices as Mothers' day drew near.

Next to roses, the two items most in evidence just now are peonies and irises. The quality is excellent in both cases and the demand brisk. Besides, there is a wide variety of other flowers, such as snapdragons, mignonette, myosotis, delphiniums, daisies, gaillardias, pansies, stocks, lilacs, etc., which manage to clean up in fairly good shape from day to day. There is a heavy cut of gardenias and the same may be said of orchids.

In flowering plants, there are still many hydrangeas and rhododendrons, which were left over from Easter and are now past their prime. Greens are sufficient for requirements.

NEW PENTSTEMON SIERRA MADRE

(A Giant Gloxiniaeflora)

Produces from 40 to 50 flowers on a spike, the individual flowers from 2½ in. to 3 in. across; grows 3½ ft. to 4 ft. high, the flowers a beautiful deep red, with pure white throat.

It is a perpetual flowering variety and at Christmas we sold the cut flowers at $2.50 per dozen. The flowers are fine keepers, lasting from 7 to 10 days in water when cut, and it is a magnificent herbaceous plant for the border.

Certificate of Merit and highly recommended at Pasadena Flower Show, spring of 1918 and 1919. One of the finest Pentstemons ever grown.

Various Notes.

Among the special features arranged by the Francis Floral Co. for Mothers' day was an assortment of pastel hampers, filled with flowers to harmonize in color, and bowed up with ribbon in a distinctive manner. Old-fashioned bouquets were made up in large numbers for the occasion. Mr. Francis, for the last ten or twelve years, has shipped a great many flowers each year to the Rocky mountain section for Decoration day and this year will be no exception, judging from the inquiries and orders already received.

Fred C. Jaeger & Son are preparing to lower the floors of their display windows and otherwise remodel the front of their store on Powell street. Mr. Jaeger made extensive preparations for Mothers' day. James Jordan is back on duty at this establishment after a short vacation, which, unfortunately, he had to spend taking care of members of his family, who were ill.

C. F. Gutting, of Los Angeles, Cal., was a recent visitor here. He came by motor.

Luke Uzick, until recently with Julius Eppstein at the St. Francis hotel, is now buyer and manager for the J. B. Boland business on Kearny street. He reports stock plentiful and business up to expectations for this time of the year.

Charles Shellgrain, of Shellgrain & Ritter, has just recovered from a slight attack of the "flu," which kept him at home for three or four days. He says the sale of cut flowers has been quiet since Easter, but that decorations and funeral work keep the force fairly busy.

Robert Maguire accepted a position with B. M. Joseph when he was discharged from the army. He was in the aviation service overseas for eighteen months and only recently returned to this country. Another recent addition to the Joseph staff is Miss M. de Armand, who has charge of the bookkeeping and other office work. Here a big demand is reported for small table decorations and other decorative work.

L. H. Elmer, of the Elmer Bros. Nursery, San Jose, Cal., was a recent visitor in this city.

V. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, finds there is a great deal of red tape to unwind in getting a passport for Europe, but he does not intend to give up his proposed trip to Italy on that account. It is his intention to sail as soon as he can get passage. Business, he says, leaves no ground for complaint.

Mrs. Bartlett has resumed her duties at the store of Julius Eppstein after being ill a few days. Mr. Eppstein says hotel trade holds up well and he thinks it will do so all the summer, as more tourists are expected to visit San Francisco this year.

Fred Bertrand, manager of the retail business of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., is on the committee arranging for a welcome for the Masonic ambulance corps when it returns from France. He will have charge of the floral decorations at the reception and will make garlands of flowers to be thrown around the necks of the returning soldiers.

Many pedestrians along Powell street halted in front of the window of the Art Floral Co. a few days ago to admire a special orchid display, which was somewhat out of the ordinary. Mr. Matraia, head of this business, made heavy purchases for Mothers' day in anticipation of an increased demand.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is confined to his home with rheumatism. This, with A. J. Rossi devoting practically all his time to the Liberty loan drive, has made it rather difficult to handle the business.

TIPS TO TIP-TOP GROWERS

Every seed we sell, we grow. Every packet shows who grew it, where it was grown, WHEN it was grown and how much seed it contains. No waivers, no conditions and no "I don't knows" in the transaction. Do you like that way of doing things in the seed line?

Mothers' day and is looking forward to much activity for Memorial day. This store has undergone a thorough renovation, including a new coat of paint, which makes the place much lighter and more cheerful looking.

B. M. Joseph and bride, nee Miss Gladys Dean Rule, have just returned from their honeymoon, which was in the nature of an automobile tour of the southern part of the state. They are now at home to their friends at the Clift hotel, in this city. The wedding took place April 21. M. M.

WINTER COURSES AT CORNELL.

Now that the country is emerging from war-time activities and we are again resuming a normal life there is a large call for experienced men in commercial floriculture and gardeners on private estates. The Department of Floriculture of the College of Agriculture at Cornell University is endeavoring to equip men to meet the call by offering unusually attractive short courses next winter, beginning November 5 and closing with Farmers' Week in February.

This is a rare opportunity for young men, especially the sons of florists who have had considerable practical experience, to get a scientific training at comparatively low cost. For these men especially interested in commercial floriculture there are given courses in greenhouse construction and heating, the general principles which govern greenhouse practice and the methods followed in the best cultural practices in growing florists' crops. Those students who desire a certificate of proficiency are required to take in addition to the courses mentioned, courses in agricultural chemistry, soils and plant diseases. Courses in plant breeding, injurious insects, extension work and rural improvement may also be elected. Certificates of proficiency are not given, however, until the student has subsequently spent a full year in floricultural work.

For outdoor gardeners there are special courses in gardening and garden flowers, as well as a large list of general courses which are necessary for proficiency in work in parks or on private estates.

Now is the time to make plans for next winter and the secretary of the College of Agriculture at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., or Professor E. A. White, of the Department of Floriculture, will be glad to give any information desired regarding the courses.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Mothers' day was made more of a success here by the big advertisement inserted in one of the daily papers by a number of local florists. The advertisement was plain, but effective. It gave the correct significance of the day: "White flowers for mothers' memory; colored flowers for living mothers—any flowers are appropriate."

The firms that got up the advertisement were J. D. Blackistone, Z. D. Blackistone, C. E. Brooks, Dupont Flower Shop, Gude Bros. Co., F. H. Kramer, Louise Flower Shop and George C. Shaffer.

Mothers' day for Z. D. Blackistone was about fifty per cent ahead of last year. He had no trouble in selling colored flowers and opines that in a year or so bright flowers will be more in demand than the white.

Mount Vernon, N. Y.—Arthur Dummett, Inc., reports excellent business, both here and at White Plains. There is much planting going on. The late cold snap was beneficial in this, that it has warned the over-anxious early planter of bedding plants to hold up for a while.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; forty-fourth annual convention, Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 25 to 27, 1919.

THE Earl Ferris Nursery Co., of Hampton, Ia., suffered a severe loss by fire April 25. Practically all the buildings were destroyed, together with much stock that was awaiting shipment. The loss is placed at $50,000, with partial insurance. Spontaneous combustion in some packing material caused the fire.

CHARLES W. HOWARD, of the Howard Rose Co., Hemet, Cal., has no doubt about the result of the quarantine insofar as it affects rose plants. "California will supply hybrid teas for the whole United States," he says, "and other states can take care of the demand for hardy varieties." "It will take a little time to bring about the desired result," Mr. Howard predicts, "and no doubt in some quarters there will be some hardships to undergo, but it will work out to the best advantage of all and the time will be surprisingly short."

PROSPERITY IS AHEAD.

The few lean years of the war will be followed by unprecedented prosperity, according to Thomas I. Ilgenfritz, secretary and treasurer of the I. E. Ilgenfritz' Sons Co., proprietor of the Monroe Nursery, Monroe, Mich. He believes that nurserymen are now about to receive some of the rewards of which they are worthy.

Business has been good for the Monroe Nursery this spring, states Mr. Ilgenfritz, and it is his opinion that all marketable stock will be cleaned up. Prospects for a further increase next year are bright, says Mr. Ilgenfritz.

"There has been an exceptionally strong demand in both fruit and ornamental lines," says Mr. Ilgenfritz, "and, although prices have advanced materially, which was made necessary by a short supply and overhead expense, few complaints have come in from customers because of the advance in prices, as they seemed to expect to pay more for nursery stock, as well as for all other commodities."

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Weather conditions during the last week were not particularly good. Much rain fell, and on the day preceding Mothers' day there was a steady downpour. This did not interfere greatly with the day's business, for, according to reports gathered from the uptown stores, business was up to the usual standard and in some cases exceeded all expectations.

Cut stock was plentiful with the exception of carnations, which were not in large supply and the prices of which went as high as $15 per hundred. However, the quality was excellent and although high-priced there was no difficulty in selling them. Excellent snapdragons are arriving daily and meet with ready sale. Some of the best of the season are seen at this writing. They are particularly well flowered and strong-stemmed. Yellow callas are selling exceptionally well both as cut flowers and also in pots. Considering the lateness of the season, there is a good quantity of bulbous stock on hand, the bulk of which is in good shape. It continues to sell well. There undoubtedly will not be the large supply of outdoor bulbous stock this season, owing to the recent frosts and heavy rain and hail storms.

Roses are in abundance and the demand is good. The medium grades are most in demand, although there has been much call during the last few days for short-stemmed stock for design work. Funeral work has kept up steadily since Easter, thus clearing out all stock daily. Sweet peas are plentiful and are of good quality, the long-stemmed and better grades selling in preference to the other stock. The market is well stocked with daisies, delphiniums, stocks, pansies, Spanish irises, forget-me-nots, lilacs, schizanthus, primroses, calendulas, mignonette, wallflowers, alyssum and anenomes, all of which sell well. Violets continue to arrive, but are showing the lateness of the season, being small and minus much of their fragrance. There is a rather large supply of Easter lilies arriving daily, but they are not in large demand. Calla lilies are not much in evidence. Peach blossoms are seen in some of the stores and are used for display purposes to good advantage. Good potted hydrangeas are seen and they sell well. Other potted stock includes tulips, primroses, baby ramblers, fuchsias, lilacs and deutzias.

Greens are plentiful and in good demand. Pansy plants in good bloom are seen and sell readily. Other hardy bedding stock is making its appearance.

Various Notes.

Considerable damage was done to shrubbery and trees in the northern part of the city May 4, by a terrific hail-storm followed by heavy rains. In some sections lilac bushes were stripped of their buds and large trees suffered in like manner. Large quantities of daffodils and jonquils were ruined.

Among the visitors to the trade last week were Julius Berg, of Lion & Co., New York, and Ed Sithins, of the Bowen-Dungan Co., Philadelphia, Pa. Both men report business as exceptionally good and many orders are being turned in to their houses.

Felix Alberts, formerly with H. P. Neun, has opened a flower store under the name of Alberts the Florist. For Mothers' day a pretty setting of a large picture of a mother and babe surrounded by flowers and ferns was arranged in the window.

The store of James Vick's Sons is kept remarkably busy with the heavy demand for seeds and hardy plants. They report business much in excess of any previous season. Their sales force has been greatly increased.

We are glad to report that Hubert B. Stringer is making satisfactory recovery from his recent attack of pneumonia and expects to be back at his work within a week or two.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held in the Musicians' Headquarters May 9. The ladies and friends of the members were invited. An attractive musical program was given. Refreshments were served at the close of the musical.

Much advertising was done by the Rochester Florists' Association in the local newspapers for Mothers' day.

Have you placed your order for our new Carnation, Ruth Baur, for 1920 delivery? Write us, too, for field-grown plants of standard varieties to bench this summer.

BAUR & STEINKAMP

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The business for the week preceding Mothers' day was greater than ever this year and it was impossible to fill half the orders that poured in. Roses and carnations had not picked up since the Easter cut, owing to the continued dull weather. Besides, some of the older buildings here are being demolished to give place to new greenhouses. The supply in all lines was limited. Orchids were off crop and considerable filling in had to be done with antirrhinum and schizanthus.

Several orchid lovers from the United States have visited the Dale Estate recently in an endeavor to procure some of the fine orchids that have been brought on by this firm. No doubt their interest has been aroused by the decision of the Federal Horticultural Board to bar orchid plants from importation after this month.

Local working hours have been revised. For the summer season it has been decided to adopt a policy of fifty hours per week, with increased wages. This permits the men to have Saturday afternoon for themselves each week.

W. G. P.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Mothers' day business was good. Carnations were the first flowers to be disposed of. Roses met with a good demand and everybody had enough. Poet's narcissi, sweet peas and snapdragons all helped out. Plants were not much in demand, although plenty of cinerarias, spiræas, hydrangeas and primroses were to be had. Boston ferns sold well. In fact, all flowers sold well, even though people were advised by the lady originator of the day—through the local press—to buy Victory bonds instead of flowers.

The Market.

The week was a bad one for production. There was little sunshine and both the day before and on Mothers' day it rained continually. The supply of roses, which was ahead of the demand during the first part of the week, continued so until Mothers' day. The surplus at this time was taken up on account of the dark weather. The week went badly with carnations. A limited cut was brought in and it is safe to say that the supply was only about one-fourth the demand. A medium grade of sweet peas was plentiful but the best sold readily.

Much of the Mothers' day trade was spoiled on account of the miserable weather; nevertheless, nearly all the shops sold clean. On account of the announcement that Liberty bonds should be bought instead of flowers, some of the churches did not buy, but the day is well rooted in the public heart, as was seen by the sales.

ALABAMA NOTES.

Although Florence, Ala., and nearby towns connected with it by trolley have a population of 20,000, there is no florist's establishment located there.

The City Park Greenhouses, of Albany, Ala., have an ideal location near the heart of the town, where they maintain a rose garden. The roofs of the greenhouses operated by this concern recently were raised to give more head room for growing stock.

John Scott, of Huntsville, Ala., grows some especially fine carnations and snapdragons, besides Columbia, Russell and Ophelia roses, for his extensive trade in cut flowers. He found a bench of sweet alyssum extremely valuable last winter, when flowers were scarce.

It was necessary for the Tri-City Floral Co., of Gadsden, Ala., to lock the doors of its retail store for two hours recently because of the rush of funeral work.

L. F. D.

Richmond, Ind.—Jos. H. Hill Co. has installed the Kroeschell refrigerating system in the cooling room at its greenhouse establishment.

An Invitation

To see the Best Scarlet Bedding Geranium in existence today

HELEN MICHELL

At present, a house that we are reserving for our stock of this variety is a wonderful sight—a mass of bloom.

Considering the plant and the marvelous blooms, if you are not acquainted with this Geranium, it is well that you be so as soon as possible. You are losing money by not growing it.

Each year we have been obliged to decline orders, as the demand is invariably greater than the supply. On this account, during the coming season, we will grow HELEN MICHELL only, discarding all other varieties of Geraniums.

Everyone is cordially invited to inspect this wonderful variety at our Nurseries, Andalusia, Bucks Co., Pa., which is easily accessible from Philadelphia.

Orders are booked now for delivery early next winter.

The price of strong, 2¼-in. pot plants will be as follows:

$ 1.25.....per dozen
6.00.....per 100
50.00.....per 1000

This price may seem high, but when you realize that you can get more for this variety than any other, it will prove to be low.

The Market.

Excepting carnations, which were held back by cloudy weather, stock this week was fairly plentiful. The market offered roses at 6 to 20 cents; carnations at 8 to 10 cents; sweet peas, 75 and $1 per hundred; lilies, $1.50 per dozen; peonies, 6 to 8 cents; outdoor lilies of the valley, 4 and 5 cents.

Wholesalers cleaned up everything for Mothers' day. They did not have enough carnations to go around, but dealers showed a good spirit in taking other stock. Roses were in good demand.

Firm Distributes Bonuses.

The William L. Rock Flower Co. distributed $5,000 in bonuses to its employees May 5. Forty-six persons shared in the distribution and the checks ranged from $60 to $300. The custom of thus rewarding faithful and efficient service has been followed by this firm for several years. Any employee who has been with the company a year is eligible for a bonus.

William L. Rock, president of the company, says he believes it is only fair to the men and women who have worked with him and helped to build up the business to its present plane that they should have a share in the results of their labors and efforts. Mr. Rock is one of the leading business men of the city, as well as one of the most successful and progressive florists, and no one of his force works harder than he does, or than he has done in the twenty-two years he has been in business in Kansas City.

The firm was incorporated some time ago and will eventually pass on to those employees who remain faithful to their work, several already having stock. Mr. Rock believes that it is only a matter of time until all business concerns will be conducted on these lines.

Various Notes.

Carl T. Hansen, an employee of the William L. Rock Flower Co., who was a member of the 110th Sanitary Train, has returned from France. Mr. Hansen was gassed and spent some time in a hospital in France. He is well now and expects to return to work after a short visit with relatives.

H. J. Scheuer, of the Hamersley Mfg. Co., called on the trade this week.

An attractive flower show poster is being displayed as an advertisement of the fourth annual spring show of the Amateur Flower Gardeners' Association, which will be held in the Muehlebach hotel May 17. J. E. K.

Spend $10.00

and settle the glazing compound question forever

Spend $10.00 for a five gallon can of Grip Plastic, and prove to yourself its unusual merits. Our claim is that Grip Plastic is the BEST commercial glazing compound for greenhouses. Buy the 5 gallon can from your jobber—see list below. If you don't find it all that we claim, return it to him any time before June 1, 1919, and get your money back. We will do the same for him.

For $10.00 you can test the best. You will never use any other.

GRIP—PLASTIC

A Permanently Pliable Glazing Compound.

What It Is

GRIP PLASTIC is a glazing compound manufactured especially to overcome the annoyances so common in putty.

The pure asphaltum oil makes it weather and waterproof. The short fibered asbestos serves as a binder and gives a firmness to the material without hardness.

Grip Plastic will not harden, chip or crack. It holds your glass with firmness, but allows for expansion and contraction.

Can be applied with a glazing machine many times faster than putty.

Three gallons will cover 1000 square feet of glass.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

NOT ENOUGH RADIATION.

I am enclosing a sketch that shows the layout of our greenhouses, which are not completed, owing to the death of the former owner. Having had no previous experience in greenhouse work, I shall be pleased to get your advice. There are four houses, each fifty feet long. Nos. 2 and 4 are each eighteen feet wide and Nos. 1 and 3 are each twenty feet wide. The side walls are four feet high, and consist of two feet of glass and two feet of wood. The gables at the exposed end have two feet of wood, except in the case of house No. 2, which has four feet of wood.

We have a 10-horsepower steam boiler, made by James Leffel & Co., of Springfield, O., but we are using it for hot water. There are two 3-inch outlets, one from the steam dome and the other from the top of the rear end of the boiler. These are joined about three feet above the boiler and continue as one 3-inch flow. The overhead pipes and the return pipes in the houses are all 2-inch. The main return is about ten inches below the center of the boiler, which is three feet in diameter.

We are compelled to force the boiler to keep from freezing when the temperature outside drops to 15 degrees above zero, while the return pipe to the boiler is so hot that it is impossible to hold the bare hand on it. We wish to pipe No. 4, which has not been completed, and provide for benches at the side and a bed in the center. Our business is the production of cut flowers and our crops are carnations, chrysanthemums and calla lilies, with sweet peas following the mums. Please tell us how to pipe to maintain the proper temperature when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. N. F. C.—O.

We are not familiar with the boiler mentioned, but it should have a grate about thirty inches square, and even then will require careful attention if it is to heat the four houses to 50 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero.

The sketch shows two 2-inch overhead flows in each house, with five returns in houses 1 and 3 and four returns in house No. 2. This amount of radiation is altogether too small for the purpose, and accounts for the failure to keep the houses from freezing even in comparatively mild weather. While the uniting of the two outlets to one 3-inch flow pipe might answer when only three houses are to be heated, even then we would prefer to connect each outlet directly with the main flow pipe and this will certainly be necessary when an additional house is to be heated. Instead of connecting the outlets, run a 3-inch pipe from each outlet directly to the main flow pipe. In a similar way, two 3-inch main returns should connect with the boiler, although if there is only one inlet it will answer if the two returns are connected close to the boiler.

Since houses 1 and 4 each have two feet of glass in one exposed wall, each of these houses should on this account have one additional 2-inch return. The present arrangement of two 2-inch overhead flow pipes need not be changed, but we would use nine 2-inch returns in house No. 1, eight returns in houses 3 and 4 and seven returns in house No. 2, merely adding one pipe to each of the return coils, if needed in order to give the stated number of returns.

Unless the flow pipes in each house now run so as to give a slight fall, such a change will be helpful. If graded carefully, so that air pockets are avoided, a slight fall in the returns will suffice, and if they can be raised slightly it will improve the circulation. The fact that the main return became excessively hot showed that the circulation was poor. When the returns are above the top of the boiler, there is seldom any difficulty in securing a good circulation, provided the flow pipes are of ample size. Even when it is necessary to run them below the top of the boiler, the higher they can be carried the better will be the circulation.

The Market.

Mothers' day business was far beyond expectations this year and the florists all report a heavier call than in any previous year, with just about double receipts. The only drawback was the scant supply of nearly all kinds of cut flowers. Carnations were completely sold out at $10 and $12 per hundred long before Mothers' day and roses also were far short of the demand. The cold weather of the last fortnight had held back some of the stock intended for the Mothers' day trade. Roses arrived in all varieties, but American Beauties, Russell, Shawyer, Richmond and Ophelia were the strongest. Miniature varieties were in good supply and sold readily. Thousands more of both roses and carnations could have found a ready market had they been obtainable.

A large quantity of snapdragons, calendulas, yellow and white daisies, sweet peas, double violets, swainsona, gypsophila, sweet alyssum, valley, forget-me-nots and pansies helped the trade considerably. Many baskets of the smaller flowers were sent out in place of the usual carnations or roses. There were some fine orchids on the market and these found excellent sale. Plant combination baskets also were specialized in by some of the stores. Some grand rhododendrons, azaleas of the Chinese variety, pink and white hydrangeas, pelargoniums, American Beauty plants, Dorothy Perkins and Tausendschoen roses, begonias and pansy plants were offered and quickly bought up. Orchids had a good sale and were of splendid quality. There was a good call for marguerites.

The florists' club used large, quarter-page advertisements in the daily papers and several firms also advertised individually. Had the supply been greater, the receipts for this popular flower day would have been much greater. As it was, it far outclassed other years. Business has been normal since then, with a moderate call for funeral work and a few weddings. Florists are planning for Memorial day. The weather is slightly warmer at present and it is hoped that seasonable temperatures will prevail until May 30, in order to produce a good supply for Memorial day, which promises to be a big flower day this year.

Various Notes.

The Knecht-Freese Co. had an enormous Mothers' day demand. They were almost completely sold out of plants and entirely sold out of cut flowers. They received an excellent lot of roses from their greenhouses.

Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor, O., shipped some handsome blooming plants to this market for the Mothers' day trade. They included pink and white hydrangeas of unusual size and beauty and rambler rose plants.

Mothers' day business was overwhelming at the store of Edgar Wenninghoff. Owing to the shortage of roses and carnations, this florist specialized in made-up baskets of smaller flowers and plant combination baskets.

A. J. Lanternier & Sons had a large assortment of stock for Mothers' day, including peonies, snapdragons, daisies and a fine line of plants.

The Flick Floral Co. has plans under way to remodel and add to the present greenhouse range to the extent of $5,000. The business has increased so much that they are obliged to enlarge the growing area. Work on it will begin in a short time. They will make a specialty of rose growing. R. F. B.

The Market.

The market was quite favorable under the circumstances. The bright days of last week brought forth a maximum of flowers and, while the supply did not equal the demand, the quality of all the stock offered was extra fine. Carnations were in most demand.

Mothers' Day Advertising.

The craft is unanimous in expressing its opinion of Mothers' day business, the retailers reporting twenty-five to 100 per cent increases in sales over those of last year. A great deal of this is attributed to the community advertising done in nine daily papers (three languages) the week preceding Mothers' day. The street cars, with which the florists have a yearly contract, carried an ad suggestive of Mothers' day, also heralding the fact that flowers could be delivered anywhere on short notice.

Every florist had a poster in his store window which served as a connecting link between his establishment, the street cars and the newspapers. The result of this concerted action was a volume of business far ahead of anything anticipated. It also made many stanch supporters of the advertising club.

There was a great call for flowers to be wired to distant cities, as well as many orders received via the telegraph. The F. T. D. is proving its worth more and more every day. It is a real convenience to the public and a profitable channel of work for the florist.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Ida Baumgarten had an attractive Mothers' day window. A wax figure of a mother, borrowed from a department store, was seated in the window, opening a box of flowers. The background was made up of pretty arrangements designed to please mother.

Walter Maas had all the business he could care for. Mr. Maas is again at the store after a long illness.

W. C. Zimmermann was forced to close his doors during the evening before Mothers' day. He hung out a sign, "Sold Out," but he opened again when he had filled his orders.

Owing to the Mothers' day rush, the Milwaukee Florists' Skat Club did not hold its usual game May 11. It will meet with August Kellner May 18.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club held its annual May ball May 15 in the ballroom at the Calumet Club. It was well attended and everyone had a good time.

Permanite

"Far Superior to Putty."—

That's Mr. Burgevin's opinion of Permanite, that ever-elastic Glazing Cement. Burgevin, Inc., of Kingston, N. Y., have used Permanite for a number of purposes, on their entire range of houses, and have always found the material entirely satisfactory, far superior to putty. Mr. Burgevin's letter tells the story.

"In reference to Permanite Glazing Cement I wish to say that we are now using it under the bottom row of glass in all our houses and find that for this purpose Permanite is far superior to putty; Permanite stays put, while putty crumbles and freezes out. This especially applies to the houses that are connected, or ridge and furrow houses, where the ice has a very deteriorating effect on putty, but does not harm the Permanite.

"It is with pleasure that we recommend your Permanite."

Permanite, that ever-elastic glazing cement, can be used for glazing, re-glazing or repair work of any kind; it is as good for one purpose as it is for another. On new work Permanite does away with the usual bedding—the Permanite on top the glass making an absolutely air and water-tight joint; on old work Permanite is far more economical than putty—doing the work with less material and in less than half the time—and when it comes to mending broken glass, repairs of any kind, etc., Permanite will do the work quickly, efficiently and economically.

Ever-elastic and lasting—guaranteed to outlast putty three to four times—Permanite is the ONE SURE WAY toward better, more economical and dependable glazing; write for our latest four-page folder—it will show you how—and why!

Yours for a tight house

The Market.

There is no doubt that Mothers' day is now one of our biggest flower days. There was a big supply of everything in the cut flower line. Everything was cleaned up by 11 o'clock excepting snapdragons and Darwin tulips. It was impossible to get a white flower after 9 o'clock.

A misstatement in the leading daily paper May 9 had much to do with the tremendous call for white carnations and the refusal of many customers to take any other flower. The paper stated that the white carnation was the only flower proper for Mothers' day, no matter if the mother was living or dead.

Various Notes.

Carl Gross has tired of being a "knight of the road" and has again become associated with Mr. Kennedy in the Alpha Floral Co.

Mr. Lewis, of the Columbine Floral Co., had so much funeral work on the morning of Mothers' day that he could not sell cut flowers of any kind.

Boldt & Lundy were busy taking F. T. D. orders. Counter trade was so brisk that two extra clerks were put on for Mothers' day.

The two stores of the New York Floral Co. were sold out of white carnations by 9 a. m. and the other colors soon after.

A Glazing Putty of Real Value

In all our experience and investigation we had never found a preparation for bulbing over the outside of a greenhouse that was quite satisfactory, until we ran across PERMANITE. This was about four years ago. At that time we set about investigating the merits of PERMANITE and proceeded to watch the results of its application to greenhouse roofs.

Last year we were entirely convinced of its high quality and durability, and accepted the western agency for the sale of their goods.

We applied PERMANITE to hundreds of greenhouse roofs, over almost every part of the United States.

The results obtained were highly satisfactory indeed. Glass roofs of all kinds, both old and new, were made water-tight and air-tight, saving thousands of plants from being spoiled by water dripping on them and saving many hundreds of tons of coal by making the roofs proof against the wind and storms of winter.

We give PERMANITE our unqualified endorsement and recommend it highly for all kinds of glazing.

We have a very large stock on hand in our warehouse and can ship immediately.

The Market.

The market is loaded with snapdragons. Carnations are in ample supply, ranging in price from $3 to $10 per hundred. Roses have changed but little. A few gladioli and Shasta daisies have appeared. Outdoor iris is becoming plentiful.

The general line is about the same. Outdoor lilies of the valley are plentiful. Darwin tulips have been in evidence, but are now on the wane.

Callas and Easter lilies have been in fair supply. Spanish irises, centaureas, candytuft, feverfew, sweet peas, stocks, etc., complete the list of offerings.

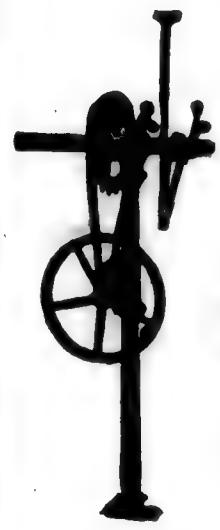
The bedding season is a little late this year, due to cool weather up through the middle of May. Frosts continued until May 12. Demand is now beginning, however, and a big season is anticipated.

Mothers' day was a big success. Flowers were in big demand and everyone sold out completely. Many more flowers could have been utilized, but no more were available.

As usual, carnations were the most popular. The supply of these was soon exhausted and then the people clamored for anything they could get. The floral "gifts to mothers" were extremely popular and since it is the custom to wear a flower on this day, colored for the living and white for the dead, single flowers and small corsages were also in heavy demand.

Indiana Florists.

The May meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held May 6, at the establishment of the Roepke Floral Co., this city. The meeting was unusually well attended, both by local and out-of-town florists.



Owing to the absence of some of the chairmen of committees, most of the business was postponed. Routine business was followed by the election of Professor Greene, of Purdue University, to membership. Fred Kiel, a former member, who is again in the business, reaffiliated with the organization. Frank Anderson, of Indianapolis, was proposed for membership.

Dillon A. Myers, who was recently elected president of the Muncie Hail & Tornado Insurance Co., was to have been present to present the merits of this company, in order to obtain the indorsement of the association. Mr. Myers, however, found it impossible to be present and communicated by letter. After considerable discussion, it was decided to let the old insurance committee act as a board of directors and report to the association. If this is favorable, the association will take up the matter.

A report on the fall show indicated that great progress is being made by those in charge.

Professor Greene opened a discussion of the plant quarantine, during which it became evident that there were many and different opinions on this subject.

A delicious buffet luncheon was served.

Various Notes.

The Roepke Floral Co. is well prepared for the bedding season with an unusually large stock.

E. E. Randall, with S. T. Hitz & Son, had good success with Columbia this year. He also had a fine crop of Russell and Ward. This firm has 14,000 geraniums with which to meet the demand.

August Bender, recently with the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co., is now with the Bertermann Bros. Co., having charge of the conservatory at the store.

Isaac Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, called on the local trade this week.

Several of the local flower stores donated flowers for the home-coming of the 150th Field Artillery. The Circle Flower Shop had a balcony built over the store and two young women in May day costumes showered the soldiers with flowers as they marched past.

Clarence R. Greene's flower store is the first in the city to have Shasta daisies.

Baur & Steinkamp have a nice lot of hydrangeas coming on.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. furnished a quantity of flowers to the school children for the welcoming of the Rainbow Division soldiers. The company also had several decorations for the occasion. This company will have an exceptionally large crop of peonies for Decoration day.

FEDERAL GREENHOUSE CEMENT

SAVES TIME

MAKES MONEY

We make the following Black Greenhouse Cements:

Federal Greenhouse Cement No. 1.—Thick paste consistency, especially adapted for use on metal, slate, composition and other roofs, and for effecting general repairs. Some florists use this consistency for glazing, although it is rather hard to apply, because it works stiff. It can be handled fairly well, however, in the greenhouse gun.

Federal Greenhouse Cement No. 2, or Regular.—A medium thick consistency. We consider this the ideal consistency for glazing work, not too thick nor too thin. Can be used in greenhouse gun, putty bulb, or other instruments. Those who prefer a slightly thinner consistency can thin with Federal Special Greenhouse Thinner.

Federal Greenhouse Cement No. 3.—Semi-liquid consistency, especially adapted for lining gutters, etc. Last year we sent out this consistency for glazing work in general, and many florists prefer it. It of course works very easy in the putty bulb. We believe it is a little too thin for glazing, and consider No. 2 better.

Federal Greenhouse Cement No. 4.—Made on a different base, from the products of wood distillation. This cement is similar—in fact identical with certain competing brands of greenhouse cement on the market. Some florists prefer this base. We do not consider it nearly as permanent as No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3.

Federal Greenhouse Cement No. 5 and No. 6.—Respectively paste and semi-liquid, made on a gilsonite base. Very quick setting and efficient; preferred by carnation and rose growers, but not quite as good for general work as No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3.

Federal Greenhouse Thinner, in 10, 5 and 1-gallon cans, is an excellent article to keep on hand to restore cement not used at once, to just the consistency that you like, in case the cement thickens somewhat.

PELARGONIUMS

The response to our adv. for Mother's Day Easter Greeting was all we could desire. Now we have a fine lot of still later stock in 4-in.; low down, branched, budded, not bloomed out, but all ahead that will hit late May sales to a T. Really we think it quite professional to have such stock at this season. Would advise ordering early so as to have them established in your own houses. It is not an easy matter to pack such stock so as to be in condition for sale on receipt; however we can do it, and do do it. We appreciate any orders, early or late, but it is to your advantage to give the plants a little time if possible. Our price for this 4-in. stock—20 cents—is the same as many are charging and paying for 4-in. geraniums. Think about the extra profit in Easter Greeting at that price. S. C. Templin & Son, Easter Greeting Specialists, Garrettsville, Ohio.

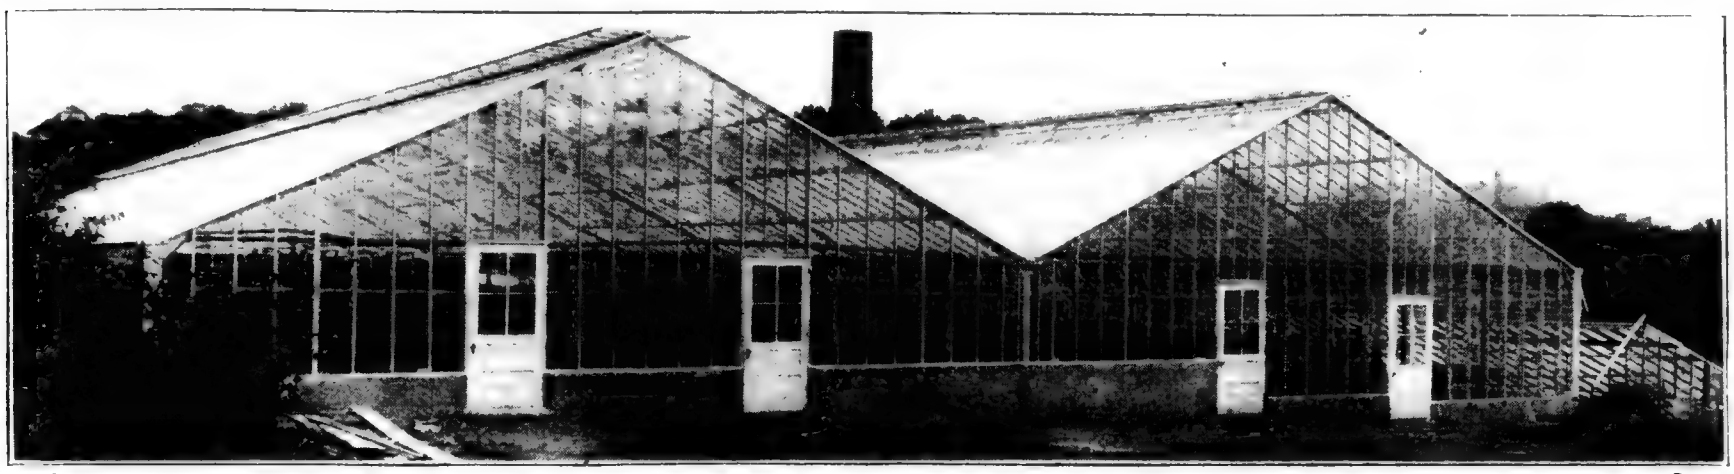
WOOD LABELS



LABELS FOR NURSERYMEN AND FLORISTS.
Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H

Hannibal, Mo.—Vernon Griffen, who has charge of the growing end of the business of Griffen & Sons, has found acid phosphate a wonderful help on the clay soil in his vicinity. Used with cow manure, the combination seems to be just right. It hastens the growth of practically all greenhouse crops. Used as a top-dressing for sweet peas, the rapidly growing foliage does not mildew and the buds do not drop.

Pekin, Ill.—In the George A. Kuhl establishment there is a greenhouse 18x100 which Mr. Kuhl erected over thirty years ago, of cypress material obtained from the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. The wood gutters have always been kept painted and the original 1-inch steam pipes have never been removed. The house at present is in Russell roses, the plants being 4 years old. The cut from this house in the week before Easter was over 200 flowers per day.

Schenectady, N. Y.—A tour among the trade disclosed a highly satisfactory condition of business. All salable stock was cleaned out at prices that will convince the pessimist that there is good money to be made, and the optimist will be spurred to greater efforts. To describe individual cases would be difficult, as no great attempts at display were made, for the reason that sales began early and it was impossible to keep up any kind of a show. Azaleas were not missed. Ramblers and hybrid roses, with French hydrangeas, went like the proverbial hot cakes. The growers were completely cleaned out.

—think a moment:

How many inches wide is your house?

Most greenhouse owners are accustomed to say, "Our houses are 29 feet wide," or 72 feet or some other width. And they say this quite naturally as a result of long usage.

In AGMCO houses, however, you'll find a new way of gauging widths. Every inch is measured off carefully and counted in or counted out as the case requires.

When talking AGMCO houses to you, we say this or that house is so many inches wide, and we can show you a good reason for every inch put in and for every inch omitted.

Analyzing the numerous greenhouses scattered over the country in an effort to find out how nearly they fulfill the demands made upon them, you will see that many of them are too wide and many others are too narrow. But we say with the assurance that we are giving utterance to an established truth that in AGMCO houses the width is always correct.

It has always been the custom of other manufacturers to gauge their standard widths according to the way the materials work out. If the sash bar is cut from 16-foot lumber, you'll get a house 29 feet wide. And so the design is worked down from the roof.

On the other hand, the AGMCO pays attention to such things only as a detail of the design — bearing in mind always that the roof is not the starting point, but the finishing point. In fact, we often waste a foot on a sash bar and save this five times over elsewhere.

Knowing these things, you'll realize that if you are going to grow cut flowers, you need us now.

Ask us about our 409-inch house or our 434-inch width.

Which will it be?

MEMORIAL DAY NUMBER

Consider Atlanta
Perhaps It's There You Ought to Build

HERE are the facts. We will get you a lot more if you want them.

Just came back from a two weeks' trip through the South.

Went to look the Southern Field over and find out if it was so that the South is so prosperous. It's so.

Went straight from New York to Atlanta, and then on to New Orleans, stopping at Birmingham, Meridian, Jackson and numerous smaller places. From New Orleans went to Mobile, Pensacola, Jacksonville and down the east coast of Florida and into the heart of the orange groves. Then back again to Atlanta by way of Savannah.

Atlanta looks to me like a mighty good place to build; especially for vegetables. It's far enough north so you won't be bothered by the swarm of insect pests, which are such a hindrance in Florida.

Climatically, it is right for raising two inside crops, which is not practical farther south. Average temperature for the winter months is never below 32 degrees, making heating costs low.

It is but a short haul from the Birmingham coal section, making fuel costs low. It is within practical shipping distances from all the main large markets, as the map above shows.

In talking with the owners of one of the largest ranges in the South, they declared that Atlanta is the ideal southern location. In fact, they are talking of selling out and building an up-to-date range there.

It is also rumored that one of the big western growers is doing some scout work with the same thing in mind. As a matter of fact, I was just a day behind his trail.

Whether you are a southerner or northerner, think these facts over. Perhaps you are losing a good bet.

Any further information you want, don't hesitate to write us.

FREESIA PURITY—Improved

The Freesia Bulbs the American Bulb Co. offers were raised by the finest grower in California. Florists who have grown our Freesia Bulbs have received large returns when they were shipped to the wholesale flower markets. In every case we have received a duplicate order which was increased over the original order. Florists who have purchased Bulbs from us agree that we handle the finest quality of well matured, ripened bulbs.

We believe we are the largest handlers of high-grade PURITY FREESIA bulbs in America. Florists who have not given us a trial will profit by sending us their first order. We know you will re-order from us every season, after enjoying your first successful season with our high-quality bulbs. By early planting they can easily be brought in bloom at Christmas time and a continuous blooming season can be maintained by successive plantings. For growing on the side of Carnations or to follow Chrysanthemums, we recommend smaller bulbs. To get good results they should be tied up like Carnations. Do not overlook this fact, as it is important.

Prices for well cured bulbs are as follows:

⅜ to ½-inch.....$6.00 per 1000
½ to ⅝-inch..... 9.50 per 1000
Mammoth Bulbs, ⅝ to ¾-inch....$15.00 per 1000
Large Jumbo Bulbs, ¾-inch..... 18.00 per 1000

All prices F. O. B. Chicago. No charge for packing.

AMERICAN BULB CO.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Gentlemen:

Just a word about the Freesia Bulbs you sold me last year. I have grown Freesia Bulbs for the past 20 years, but I have never before cut so great a percentage in December. I cut fully 50% of my crop for the Christmas holidays. They were fine and sold well at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange in Detroit.

Your Dutch Bulbs are also fine.

Yours truly,
ROBERT KLAGGE, Mt. Clemens, Mich.

RAINBOW FREESIA

Our Mr. Miller is now on the Pacific in the S. S. Korea Maru en route to Japan to make sure OUR customers get their Lily Bulbs for Easter flowering, 1920.

All the world will to obtain the very largest Small Crop

Our Mr. Miller has

LILY BULBS are sure to be extremely scarce for this coming Fall's delivery.

The planting of Lily Bulbs in Japan for the 1919 crop, planted last fall, before the war ended, was reduced to less than half of former years. Now that the war is over, the demand is much greater than the supply. No European country has taken any lily bulbs for several years—the United States received the entire crop. But every country in the world will be in search of Lily Bulbs at harvesting time this year.

Giganteum Multiflorum, Formosum

THE DUTCH BULB situation last Fall proved that it is necessary for you to place your order with a reliable concern. The American Bulb Company last Fall filled in full every order that was placed with it up to August. We also took care of hundreds of disappointed Florists from our surplus stock that we always provide for late buyers.

THE FRENCH BULB situation is about the same as the Japanese — scarce and a large demand for them. We have made preparations to secure our full delivery by sending 100,000 francs to France on April 16 to take care of our order.

We can ship Dutch and French bulbs F. O. B. New York, and can also make the same shipments F. O. B. Chicago. Write us immediately and place your order with us.

It is our understanding that this arrangement is made by you to secure the best discount for cash from the shippers and that no portion of this credit will be used in payment of freight charges, insurance or any other item except the actual cost of the goods.

If there are any further instructions which you desire to give, please let us hear from you by return mail.

A. MILLER
President American Bulb Company

The American Bulb Co. has been constantly in direct touch with the Lily Bulb growers of Japan, and has had information that America must compete with the world for this year's crop of Lily Bulbs. To avoid any hitch, the American Bulb Company had placed to its growers' credit on April 15th, the sum of $50,000, to take care of part of its purchase, to assure it of its supply, and May 20 our president sailed for Japan to give his personal attention to the unprecedented situation. Our customers' interests must be protected.

Present-time Spirit

THE spirit was never greater than now, with our troops coming home and with the memory fresh in the minds of those at home for the brave ones left on the battle fields of France. They will turn to flowers in memory of their dear ones. Memorial Day this year will be the greatest in history. Florists should prepare themselves with a big supply to meet the demand.

John A. Booth's tribute to Davey Tree Surgery

John A. Booth, superintendent estate of J. J. Van Alen, Newport, R. I.

A portion of the grounds on the estate of J. J. Van Alen, Ochre Point, Newport, R. I. Many of these priceless trees have been treated by Davey Tree Surgeons Gentlemen: I cannot speak too highly of the efficiency shown by your experts working on the estate of Mr. J. J. Van Alen. It astonished me to see the way they cabled some of the fine specimen maples and elms. Each man worked like a clock. Each man knew exactly what was expected of him.

The trees had been previously chained with heavy chains, but when your men finished with a tree these chains hung so loose as to be entirely useless. The cables your men put in are a great improvement, and can hardly be seen from the grounds.

In closing, I would say that I was highly pleased with the courteousness and gentlemanly bearing of every one of the experts. It is a great relief to superintendents and gardeners to have such men around who can be trusted to be live wires at all times.

Wishing you a prosperous year, Very truly yours,

JOHN A. BOOTH.

The saving of priceless trees is a matter of first importance on every estate.

Davey Tree Surgery is a fulfillment of the maximum expectations of those who love and value trees. A careful examination of your trees will be made by appointment.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

MEMORIAL DAY AND THE FLORISTS

With Memorial day only forty days after Easter, and with Mothers' day in the interval, this is a record season for the trade. And of the three special flower days in less than six weeks, the one now at hand, with many florists, is the most important because it brings the most sales.

IT is obvious why Memorial day has been slow to develop in the south: It had its origin in a general order of John A. Logan, then commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., issued May 5, 1868, designating May 30 of that year "for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country in the late rebellion," and expressing the "hope that it will be kept up from year to year." But why should a leading Cleveland florist have said, a week or two ago, "Memorial day never meant much in my store"? It was significant, though, that he added: "We intend to try to develop it."

There are many places, particularly in New England but including large sections of the middle west, where Memorial day has become the big day of the florists' year; not so large, perhaps, as Christmas and Easter in the money total of sales, but exceeding either of those days in the quantity of stock sold and the number of individual sales. That it is otherwise elsewhere is due only to the failure of the florists there to take advantage of their opportunity.

Everybody's Day.

Of course the flags and stacked muskets still are the window symbols of Memorial day, but if anyone looks upon it as principally an old soldiers' observance he must have paid little attention to what the public does that day. In recent years, as the ranks of the veterans thinned, the general public began to observe the day in the same way, by carrying flowers to the cemeteries. There still are parts of the country to which Memorial day has not penetrated, but in nearly all northern cities and towns Memorial day in the cemeteries calls for the same general use of flowers that marks All Saints' day in the cemeteries of the sunny south.

SENTIMENT SELLS FLOWERS

Every advertisement of flowers should contain an appeal to sentiment. Here are two suggestions for Memorial day ads:

There is a beautiful sentiment in connection with the remembrance of loved ones departed, by placing tokens of respect or affection on their graves for Memorial day.

The sentiment of Memorial day finds its best expression in the use of flowers arranged by skillful hands.

So long as May 30 belonged specially to the old soldiers it did not really count in flower selling, but when the general public began to take hold the trade naturally got a big boost, and any florists who did not share in the good business probably will find the reason in something they failed to do.

Whether or not this is the season to look for a record Memorial day and to repair any omissions of other years depends on the supply of stock available for each individual florist. One of the first things learned by the pioneers who developed the sale of flowers for this special occasion was that the Memorial day demand was largely from people who are not frequent flower buyers and that they would not pay high prices. Probably they will expect to pay more this year than heretofore, but what effect it will have on the demand is problematical.

Memorial day is essentially a day of cemetery decoration. The greater part of the cut flowers usually are sent to the cemeteries in the form of large, low-priced bouquets. This is especially true in the country towns and small cities. In the metropolitan stores that cater to a higher class of trade, wreaths sell well and there are possibilities in low-priced sprays.

Simplicity and Dignity in the Memorial Day Window Decoration.

Trade Curiosity.

One of the curiosities of the trade has been the vogue of the magnolia wreath trimmed with artificial flowers. Nothing can be said in its favor except that certain florists, more particularly in New England, have built up a big business in them. Metal and wax flower wreaths sell well in certain localities, being preferred because of a custom which probably resulted from the difficulty of obtaining natural flowers. We all should realize that the demand for flowers has grown most rapidly as florists have made known their ability to meet it.

Undoubtedly many of us have been devoting every spare moment during the last few weeks to making up wreaths for the demand that is sure to come; others have ordered them ready-made from the supply houses. If we have done neither of these things we are likely to be among those who say, "Memorial day never meant much to my business."

Many Wreaths Used.

Magnolia and cycas wreaths have become as staple in flower stores as sugar in the groceries. Nine out of every ten flower advertisements that will be published in the newspapers next week will offer a wreath as a leader. Advertising a leader is the best way to develop the business—it is the method the pioneers used.

Newspaper space, when the number of readers is taken into consideration, is the most effective and the least expensive of all forms of advertising. But if the ads are to do all the work that is possible, they must make a double appeal. They must have a punch and they must make the right impression upon the buying public.

When we prepare our advertising copy we must forget that we are talking to a great number of people. Imagine that we have a prospective customer in our store and we want to sell him a wreath, say, for Memorial day. In trying for this sale, if you are a skilled salesman you would undoubtedly first call his attention to the sentiment of the day; next you would tell him about the special wreaths you have made up for the expression of this sentiment, their lasting qualities and finally how little one of them will cost. In other words, you would try to create in this man a desire to possess one of these wreaths. We must do the same thing with the men and women who read the newspaper ad—try to create in them a desire. We must not take it for granted that the desire is there and that the mission of our announcement is merely to tell where a wreath may be obtained.

Leader Idea Profitable.

While there is a good profit in the sale of leaders even at an attractive price—a price that will bring buyers to the store—this same leader many times will be the means of making a larger sale. When a man or woman enters a store with the fixed intention of making a purchase, he or she is a ready subject for the real salesman.

Special flower days are not so numerous that the trade can afford to overlook any of them. Consistent boosting by the trade has created some of these days, Mothers' day for instance. Each recent year has seen these days better from a business standpoint than the year before. They will keep right on getting better, too, but we each must do our own boosting in our own town.

MOTHERS' DAY ECHOES

REVIEWING MOTHERS' DAY.

Why Was It Successful?

How does the recent Mothers' day look to the members of the F. T. D.? What part did publicity play in making the day successful?

Mothers' day business in Detroit surpassed all previous records, both in volume of business transacted and number of sales made. I cannot say that the weather was ideal, because the day before the holiday it rained intermittently and was cold and blustery—in fact, Mothers' day was an extremely disagreeable day to look forward to for business. Sunday morning it again looked dreary, but did not rain.

The question arises: What was the cause of this great volume of business? Was it because of the wonderful sentiment connected with Mothers' day, or was it because of something else? My belief is that sentiment played an important part, but that, without the aid of publicity, Mothers' day business would not have been one-half of what it was. By publicity, I do not mean simply the advertising done by the various florists' organizations. However, there is no question that the method of advertising adopted by Detroit florists is to be highly commended and was in part the means of this increase in business.

Proclamations and Sermons.

But what about the publicity given Mothers' day by means of the various proclamations, from the president of the United States down to the mayor of your city? The ministers who gave Mothers' day sermons, eulogizing "mother" and pointing out the beautiful sentiment of the day—what of them?

How about the editorials in the daily newspapers, of which there were many? Some of these even went so far as to ask one to wear a flower in memory of "mother," whether living or dead.

Now, do you think that the press would print those glowing editorials if advertising matter were not placed with them? I have my doubts.

A large department store in Detroit had a full-page advertisement, about one-fifth of which was devoted to Mothers' day and in which was printed a picture of "mother," surrounded with flowers. This advertisement included a beautiful description of the sentiment of Mothers' day. It stated that while the store did not sell flowers, it carried a fine collection of flower receptacles.

The Mothers' day stickers, almost universally used by florists, are to be highly recommended and should be used about ten days previous to Mothers' day. They should go out on all boxes, packages and plants.

Banners Prove Helpful.

The large banners used by Detroit florists on the sides of delivery cars were a wonderful means of obtaining publicity. They attracted the attention of the public when many other methods failed.

Advertising in the newspapers is, beyond question, the surest and best way to inform the public on what we have to sell. Put in your advertising matter something to create a strong sentiment for Mothers' day. Try to leave out, as much as possible, commercialism; keep the sentiment aglow and the public will more readily respond.

What part did the F. T. D. play in this important campaign of publicity? Do you realize that a large part of the Mothers' day business was obtained because of the telegraph service? I can safely say that this particular branch of our business increased at least twenty-five per cent and that it was the means by which the public expressed sentiment in distant places. The publicity given F. T. D. service was responsible, in a large measure, for the healthy increase in Mothers' day business. The F. T. D. service should be more strongly advertised, so as to enlighten the public to the fact that it is just as easy to have a floral tribute delivered to any part of the United States or Canada as it is in your home city. The florists should strive to gain the public's confidence, and convince the people that the trade can guarantee good service and give full value for money expended. Then they will be surprised at the results.

A Splendid Advertisement.

The publication of comments by the recipient of the gift, as well as the sender of an F. T. D. order, makes a splendid advertisement. The F. T. D. has made splendid progress in the last eight years. The last year, particularly, has been a source of pleasure and gratification, as the gain in membership has truly been great. This proves that retail florists throughout the country are beginning to see the light and that the F. T. D. service might be comparable to, or at least be called, a new era movement in the retail florists' business.

In order to advance this so-called new era movement, it is necessary that the hearty coöperation of every member be placed at the disposal of the association. A lukewarm or a half-hearted effort is not desirable, but the energy and push of a live wire are needed. The florists' business is in its infancy and all that is necessary is for everyone connected with our profession to get busy and to keep busy. Do not allow your energy to slump into a state of lethargy.

Gratifying Results.

The F. T. D. office congratulates its members and coworkers because of the splendid results obtained. The association is in an extremely healthy condition, financially and as to added strength and influence.

The F. T. D. is a patriotic organization, having contributed to every Liberty loan bond issue to date and recently having purchased $700 worth of Victory loan bonds. The money used for the purchase of these bonds was taken from the guarantee fund of the association. The bonds are considered by the officers of the association to be a safe investment, bringing more than bank interest.

THE CASE OF THE COURIER.

Mothers' Day Prices Provoke.

Mothers' day again has produced the annual eruptions from those who, for some unexplained reason, feel themselves aggrieved because of the operations of the law of supply and demand. Just why some people take it to heart because the price of flowers advances when the demand increases is not clear to the ordinary understanding. None of us has seen any fulminations in the press because it costs $5 on New Year's eve, against nothing on any other night, to reserve a table in one of our popular restaurants for an after-the-theater supper, nor do we see any protest in the newspapers because theaters, including even the movies, now charge more on Saturday nights than on other evenings, but there are recurring protests in certain newspapers because flowers go up in price when everybody wants a part of the limited supply.

It seems that there has been less objection this year than in previous seasons, although prices were higher this Mothers' day than ever before. The case of the Harrisburg Courier is an extreme one. Its front-page article in the issue of May 11 is reproduced herewith. "Local Florists Stage Annual Hold-Up Because of Mothers' Day" is the heading. The complaint is that carnations were $3 per dozen. The newspaper says the florists "offered the same weak-kneed excuse for increasing the price, the demand for them." The trade gets little attention when it undertakes to explain the reasons for the prices of flowers. No one cares that there are times in every year when florists sell their goods below the cost of production and that this must be made up at other seasons if florists are to continue the production of flowers.

Once Called Us Nonessential.

The Harrisburg florist who sent the newspaper to The Review labeled this article "An outrage on the craft by a sorehead," and it seems that the editor must have had an unusual interest in the subject because in the flag beside his masthead, where editors frequently print some pleasant greeting to their readers, there also appeared: "Good morning! Carnations will return to regular prices tomorrow."

Local Florists Stage Annual Hold-Up Because of Mother's Day

Tack Extra Dollar Onto Price of Carnations Because of Demand Made for Them; Poor Farmers Do Likewise

Florists of Harrisburg and vicinity perpetrated their annual hold-up on the public yesterday by charging an extra dollar for carnations knowing that many persons would be willing to pay almost any price for the pretty flowers which they give yearly to, or wear in honor of, "Mother," on Mother's Day—today.

Likewise the florists offered the same weak-kneed excuses for increasing the price—the demand for them. The fact that it cost no more to grow the flowers during the past week than it did the week previous made no difference to the florists. They were determined to stage their little hold-up and succeeded admirably, according to all indications.

Yesterday the carnations were selling for $3 per dozen. A week ago the price was $1.50 and $2 per dozen.

And to top the whole situation "poor" Mr. Farmer came in from the country district with his bundle of carnations, which he usually sold for a dollar a dozen and when he learned of the hold-up prices of the city florists he followed in their tracks and likewise proceeded to collect $3.

TRIAL FOR KAISER

WILSON PLANS TO

Article on the Front Page of a Harrisburg Newspaper.

It is one of the curiosities of the situation that those who protest most violently at the special-occasion prices of flowers are those who referred in war times to our business as among the nonessentials. To hear them now one would suppose flowers were as necessary as meat, or bread, or clothing, not to mention coal, which is one of the things florists have found advanced in greater proportion than the price of flowers has advanced for any holiday.

Such fulminations are aggravating to the florists in the locality in which they occur, but they are of slight importance, especially so long as demand exceeds supply. Indeed, they have an advertising value, because there is a curious trait of human nature which makes the average person covet the things that are costly and disregard the things that are cheap. The advertising that prices are high may deter a few buyers, but the demand always has exceeded the supply at Mothers' day and the more people understand that flowers are not cheap the easier it becomes for the trade to get the necessary returns to maintain production.

To Meet Such Situations.

One way to meet a situation like that at Harrisburg is for the florists there to get together a little in advance of Mothers' day next year. Let them assess themselves a percentage of their Mothers' day week sales this year and spend it in coöperative advertising in the Harrisburg newspapers, beginning three or four days before Mothers' day. Let them advertise:

For Mother at home, flowers bright;
In Mother's memory, flowers white.

Let the advertisement refer to roses, peonies and any available cut flowers except carnations, and let it include something about the potted plants that mother might enjoy. "Mother's favorite flower" is the special flower of the day.

Put the advertisements in the papers the people read. If this includes the Courier, well and good, but if it does not include the Courier, let the Courier rave. The reason will be so obvious that no explanation will be necessary.

PROTECTING BENCHES.

We wish to paint the floors of our benches heavily with hot gas tar, coal tar. Would the plants in seven or eight inches of soil or sand be affected by the roots reaching this? If so, then what kind of cheap coating would you recommend? J. D.—Ill.

We would not put gas tar anywhere around a greenhouse and on benches we should put nothing whatever beyond a coat of hot lime wash as an exterminator of any insect life.

Probably your thought is to prevent decay. Build your benches of pecky cypress and you will need no protection other than what nature has provided. F. R.

BUCKEYE BULL'S-EYES

BUSINESS BOOMING.

What with a record-breaking Easter, a tremendous Mothers' day trade and every prospect pointing to an exceptionally heavy Memorial day business, unprecedentedly high marks will be established by florists in general for the months of April and May. Memorial day has acquired a new significance, due to the war, and as this year manifestations of patriotism will be rampant, the demand for flowers should be greater than ever before. It therefore behooves every tradesman to make unusual preparations.

In expectation of an abnormal demand for bedding stock, an immense supply of plants has been got ready and, now that the weather has at last become settled, movement should begin in earnest. That great leader with general florists, geraniums, is somewhat below par in quantity, but the higher price should operate to materially offset that. More annuals, however, have been prepared this spring than formerly, owing to the necessity for many growers, whose ranges were closed down during the winter, stocking up with plants of quick growth. The manner in which large stocks of bedding plants have been shaped up by some of these florists is truly a miracle and is a strong comment upon what can be accomplished where the will exists. Of course, this spring, better values lend an exceptional incentive and let us earnestly hope that the same stimulus will continue.

It is doubtful, in view of the splendid business of the last few months, if ever the time was more singularly opportune for embarking in the work of growing flowers. Surely, there was never a better and firmer demand and most certainly the morale of the trade was never higher. Flowers have indeed become a necessity in the life of the average person and the present plans of our publicity committees are well designed to see that the need does not diminish. The average florist has an increased belief in the merits of publicity and upon that rests the hope for the future.

The general feeling that prices of raw stock and building materials, not excluding labor, will descend to lower levels is erroneous. As we realize more for our products, we can amply afford to pay more for the means of their production. Good money is being made and it should be kept constructively moving. There never was a more propitious time for investing in land, greenhouses, coldframes and young stock of accepted merit and also the necessary education for raising the standard of our goods. Business is truly booming and it is our part to keep pace with it.

ANTOINE WINTZER.

The trade numbers few men in its fold whose lifelong love for flowers transcends that of Antoine Wintzer, the canna wizard of West Grove, Pa. Coming to that thriving little town from Flushing, L. I., over forty years ago, a young man with rare ability as a rose grower and full of enthusiasm over the possibilities of shipping plants by mail, the history of his career is largely a narrative of the progress and development of that great business there. His early contemporaries have, one by one, been laid to rest and he, touched gently by the hand of time, is hale and hearty and daily active at his work.

The secret of Antoine Wintzer's success is simple: He loves his work; and throughout his long years of constant application, perhaps his best reward is the pleasure he has obtained from it. Ever hopeful of creating something even greater in merit than his previous productions, his untiring effort continues with undiminished zeal. He not only loves his novel plant creations, but delights in talking about them to appreciative listeners; and having a wide acquaintance in the trade, in addition to being well read, his observations upon the advancement of his profession during well-nigh half a century are of particular interest to fellow craftsmen.

The career of Antoine Wintzer is of special inspiration to the young in that it exemplifies the wisdom of a life of healthful and constant application and points out the inestimable advantage of early adopting a congenial calling and putting one's best effort into the chosen sphere of action. While compensation in money is of importance, particularly at present, the great return is the satisfaction and pleasure derivable from an intelligent and complete obsession in one's work. Just as there is no royal road to learning, so there is no favored road to success; it is known only to the energetic and consistent worker. And of all lives the simple is the best.

The name of Wintzer is synonymous with all that is good in flowers and it will live forever in the annals of commercial floriculture. The writer takes singular pride in having spent, nearly twenty years ago, his first year in the trade as an assistant to this truly great florist; and the lapse of time has served but to strengthen his regard for his old tutor. This sentiment will abundantly find an echo in the bosoms of scores of successful florists scattered throughout the land.

WIND INSURANCE

PRESIDENT MYERS' STATEMENT.

Will Try to Protect Trade.

There are signs of a tempest in the affairs of the American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Co., of Muncie, Ind., the storm being precipitated by the notice sent to members outside Indiana by Secretary James F. Hildebrand, apprising them that "your certificate is of no more value to you as a protection on your greenhouses."

President Dillon Myers had announced in The Review, some weeks before, that the company hereafter would confine its operations to the state of Indiana, but the members outside that state did not appear to realize the import of that notice. The one sent them by the secretary, however, was unmistakable and caused numerous inquiries to be made as to the status of the company and its members.

Mr. Myers' Letter.

Replying to the inquiries in The Review for May 15, President Myers makes this statement:

"In answer to the article in The Review regarding the American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Co., I will say that under the old organization the policyholders had no say at all in the management. This was left to the board of directors, who were the organizers, and they ran it for their own benefit.

"Their charter only allowed them to do business in the state of Indiana, but this did not seem to keep them from doing business wherever they could write a risk. All policies outside of Indiana were in a separate class and the understanding with the new management was that these policies had already been canceled.

"This is a most unfortunate affair, but I do not see what we can do about it. Under the old management fifty per cent of the membership fee and all of the certificate fee went to the party writing the application; twenty-three per cent to the secretary and treasurer; four per cent to the president, and three per cent to the vice-president. This left only twenty per cent of the membership fee to be applied to the payment of losses.

"Now, it seems to me that there might be proceedings brought against the party soliciting and writing the application for membership outside the state of Indiana, but it would have to be brought against him by the applicant and would depend upon the laws of the state wherein the said applicant resides. Now, if any applicant wants to do this, the new management will do all they can to help them by furnishing all the proof they can.

"As regards the refunding of any moneys, we found none in this class fund to refund, and as it is absolutely contrary to the law of Indiana to continue to do business outside the state, the new management could not do otherwise than conform with the law.

"Now you see our position.

"When Mr. Hildebrand invited a number of policyholders to attend a meeting at Muncie and told us that they were willing to turn the management of the company over to the policyholders, I for one felt that only by our taking charge could we make our insurance good, and as the board of directors has full power over the management they can change the rates and membership fees as they may see fit.

"There will be a directors' meeting early in June, after the Decoration day rush is over, and I will see that this matter is taken up and if there is any redress for the brother florists outside the state of Indiana you may rest assured that we will do it. But we cannot continue to carry these risks, as the law will not allow it and we cannot do otherwise.

"In regard to the assessments collected, I think their books will show that this money was used to meet losses outside the state, or in their class, and they were not collected in advance. Of course they could not have been collected, as they were not legal, and the insurance so carried was absolutely no good. This is talking plain, but I believe such is the case and it looks as though the old management were not as careful as they should have been and there may be a chance for legal proceedings. If so you may rest assured the present management will not shield anyone."

This was signed, "Dillon Myers, President."

The Present Management.

The five florists who took over the management of the company as directors are William Bettmann, New Albany, Ind.; W. H. Pollett, Terre Haute, Ind.; Charles Hafer, Indianapolis, Ind.; Adolph Schilling, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Mr. Myers. They retained, as secretary, treasurer and office manager, James F. Hildebrand, who held the same positions as a part of the former management and who, President Myers says in his statement, received twenty-three per cent of the membership fees paid in by florists, the president receiving only four per cent and the vice-president only three per cent.

Secretary Hildebrand seems to be a man of wide experience in the business. Under date of August 6, 1918, he sent The Review "a complete list of all the losses that have been received and approved" by the American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Co. "since January, 1918. We trust this may be a matter of news for your publication." (It was not printed because The Review feared some of its readers might not make the distinction between "approved" and "paid.") September 24, 1918, The Review received a letter from Mr. Hildebrand at Toledo. He signed as secretary for the Florists' & Gardeners' Insurance Co., which had just been organized. The next heard of him was when, back at Muncie, he called in the local florist members to take up a proposition which evidently had grown too warm for those who had been handling it.

New Store of H. L. Hunt, Concordia, Kan.

NOTHING MATTER WITH KANSAS.

An unusual and attractive establishment is that of H. L. Hunt, of Concordia, Kan., known as the Concordia Greenhouses. The proprietor held an opening during the week before Easter and during three days the place was crowded with visitors. The buildings were completed only recently.

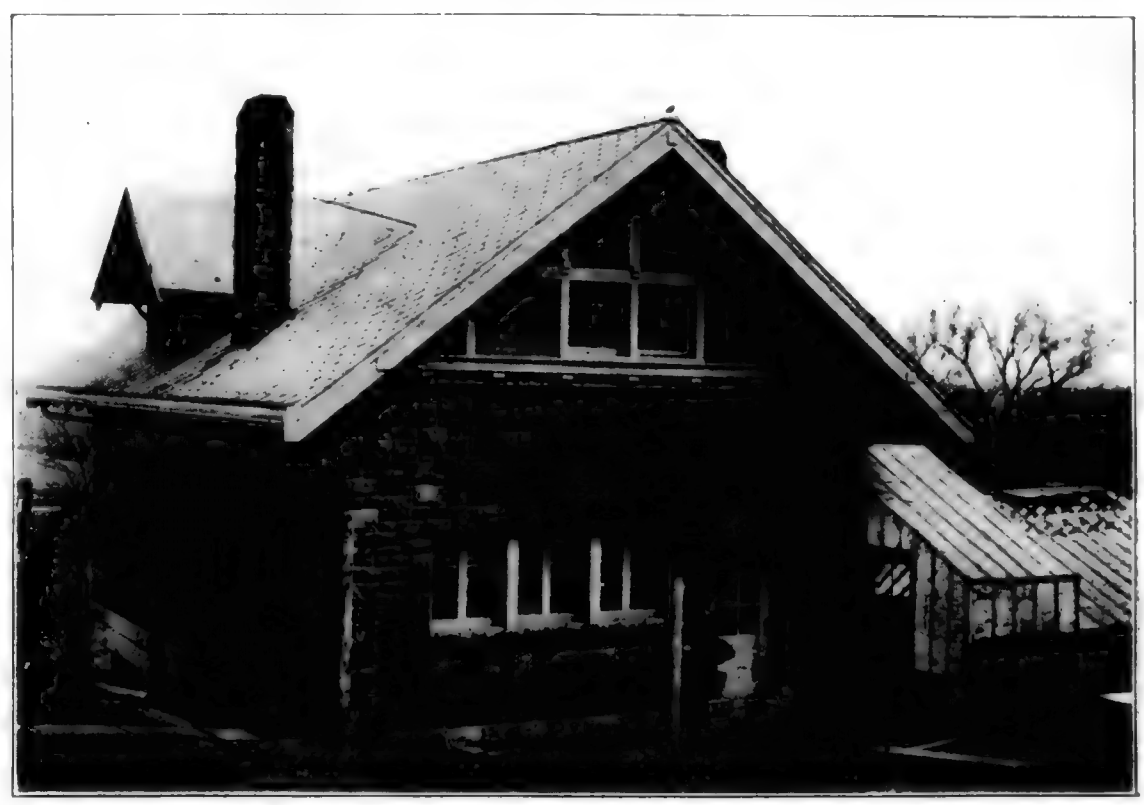
Mr. Hunt's office, salesroom and display room are located in the front portion of the building, which is built to resemble a cottage. Concrete blocks resembling rough stone are the material used for the walls of the building, while casement windows fitted with small panes of glass add to the appearance of the structure. There is a window box filled with flowers. From outside appearances, it would be supposed that the office building is a dwelling.

Access to the greenhouse, which joins on the rear of the cottage-like building, is easy, there being a door opening into the greenhouse a few feet from one in the office building. The greenhouse is modern in its appointments.

The interior of the store building is thoroughly up-to-date, as may be seen by the accompanying illustration. A cash register and a large refrigerator are the only things that indicate the commercial nature of the salesroom. Mr. Hunt keeps an attractive display of cut flowers and plants in view at all times.

Refreshments were served at the opening of the establishment by Mrs. Hunt, between the hours of 3 and 5 p. m.

ADVISES FRESH START.



I am sending you a piece of a chrysanthemum cutting, pink pompon, that has become affected with some disease. As yet, it is on only a few plants and I would like to know what can be done for them and what the trouble is.

J. N. W.—Mass.

The leaves submitted are badly infested with midge. If all the stock is as bad as that, I would suggest that J. N. W. get rid of the entire stock and start in with new plants that he is sure are clean. Before planting the new stock, the house should be thoroughly fumigated and new soil brought in, so the stock can be started entirely clean. Then the plants should be closely watched for a few weeks to s[illegible] that midge does not develop again.

Legislation and Legal Decisions

CARRIER IS BUYER'S AGENT.

A Case of General Interest.

A decision of practical importance to both shippers and buyers of flowers, nursery stock and seeds, and particularly to the Texas trade, was announced recently in the case of Schnoutze vs. Texas Seed & Floral Co., 209 Southwestern Reporter, 495.

The plaintiff sued to recover damages on the ground that he contracted to buy a quantity of broom corn seed from defendant and that the defendant sent cane seed instead, the difference not being discovered until the crop was growing. He declares that he lost $3,000 in consequence.

The suit was brought in Kaufman county, Tex., the county in which the plaintiff resides, although the defendant's place of business was in Dallas county. Under the statutes of Texas, it was undisputed that the plaintiff's right to bring the suit in his home county depended upon the contract being so interpreted as to provide for delivery there. Otherwise, the defendant company should have been sued in its own county.

Delivery Point Important.

Therefore, it became important to determine where the contract called for delivery. Since the place for delivery would also be important in a controversy concerning liability, as between buyer and seller, for any loss or injury to the goods in transit, in any state, this question becomes one of general interest.

It appears that it was mutually agreed that the seed should be shipped by express, C. O. D., to the plaintiff from Dallas to his place of residence. This was done and the court holds that delivery was accomplished when the seed company shipped the goods at Dallas, and that, therefore, the Texas statutes entitled the company to be sued in that county. Quoting from a standard legal work, the Texas Court of Civil Appeals said:

High Court's Decision.

"Ordinarily a delivery of goods by the seller to the carrier, designated by the purchaser, or to one usually employed in the transportation of goods from the place of the seller to that of the purchaser, is a delivery to the purchaser, the carrier becoming the agent of the buyer." 35 Cyc. 193.

"There is a conflict in the authorities as to whether the rule stated applies where the delivery to the carrier was for carriage, C. O. D., to the purchaser, as it was in this case," adds the Texas court.

"In some cases it has been held that the property remains in the seller until payment has been made by the buyer, the carrier being considered the agent of the seller; but in other cases it is held that where the shipment is C. O. D., the carrier is the agent of the buyer for the purpose of transportation, and of the seller for the purpose of collection, and unless a contrary intention appears, the property in the goods passes upon their delivery to the carrier, although the buyer is not entitled to the possession until payment is made." 35 Cyc. 335.

All Shipments Same.

The Texas court follows what is apparently the prevailing view of the highest courts of the various states, by holding that the mere fact that a shipper sends goods C. O. D. does not alter the rule that title is presumed to pass from the shipper when goods are shipped in the absence of provision to the contrary.

Under straight billing to the buyer by express or freight, the carrier is presumed to become his agent, in the absence of other agreement, and the fact that, merely to secure collection of the price, the C. O. D. plan is used, is not to be regarded as changing the legal effect of the shipment as amounting to delivery to the buyer, excepting for the limited purpose of enforcing payment.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

BEST LETTERING PLANTS.

Having noticed various requests for suggestions as to the best plants to use for lettering, I offer my experience. Undoubtedly alternantheras are the best plants to use. They are compact, need little trimming and grow just the right height. In one of our beds planted at Lakewood Farm, Holland, Mich., for the summer of 1918, the letters are four feet high and three feet wide, with the exception of the "L" and "F," beginning respectively "Lakewood" and "Farm." These two letters extend one foot above and one foot below the other letters. There is a space of one foot between each letter and one of three feet between the words.

In preparing the bed for planting, it is raked level and double lines are drawn by means of a pointed stick, guided by a straight-edged board. These lines form the edges of the letters. We planted Alternanthera aurea nana in these lines in last summer's bed and between the lines we planted A. brilliantissima. This gave three rows of plants, in two colors.

The plants should be spaced about three inches apart. As a filler between the plants, santolina may be used. This, with an occasional trimming, does not outgrow the alternantheras. These three varieties of plants make a good combination.

Last summer's bed was edged with sweet alyssum, but Legion of Honor marigold could be used to better advantage. Small plants should be used when planting and should all be from one propagation. Alfred H. Brown.

ARE FLORISTS ENTERPRISING?

Who will argue that the last eighteen months have not been months of various experiences, from times of depression to periods of extreme pressure, when it was difficult to get the work done? How well obstacles have been overcome you well know. The florists have all been put to the test and have not been found wanting.

Out of all this the thing that has stirred the florists generally throughout the land is our progress in the field of publicity. Many who were slow in taking up advertising to help them in the selling field have now learned to profit by its application to their business; many have not yet learned the importance of it as a means to accelerate the momentum which the national publicity campaign is giving to the business generally.

"A word to the wise is sufficient," but the man who has not accepted our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," as part of his stock in trade, is missing a good trick that should not be overlooked.

The florists who are taking part in our publicity work are getting results commensurate with what they do or give and, if a florist is enterprising enough to succeed without the use of publicity, how much better might be his success with it? This question must be left for him to answer.

The work mapped out by the publicity committees will mean greater progress for all in the trade. Will you assist in this effort and help yourself thereby? Your answer will be your contribution. Do it now. Henry Penn.

THE APPROACHING QUARANTINE.

As It Looks to a Bostonian.

A careful perusal of the views of those who support Quarantine No. 37, which will soon go into force, shows clearly that the horticulturists who side with the Federal Horticultural Board do so from business reasons; not because they have any fear of insect foes, but because they believe that with foreign competition eliminated they can secure higher prices for goods which they can propagate and grow, plants which would, probably, in the majority of cases have not been easy to dispose of unless "protected." The specious arguments used by the supporters of the quarantine show clearly that it was the fiscal and not the insect legislation they favored.

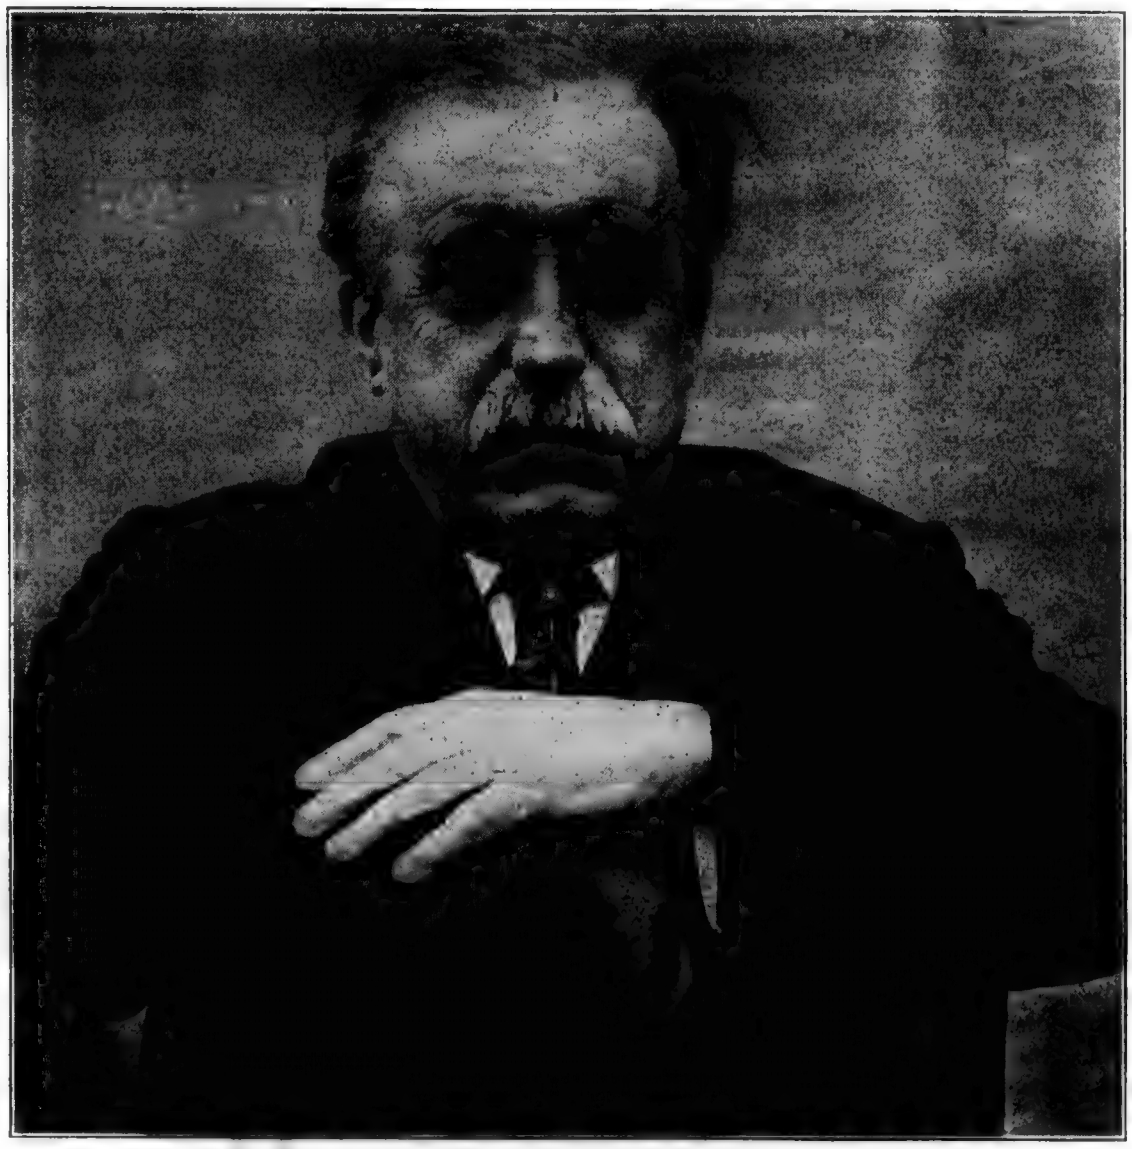
The F. H. B. introduced the quarantine as a protection against enemy alien insects and diseases. They are driven to defend it as a fiscal piece of legislation which Congress never gave them powers to enact and practically their entire support comes from firms or individuals who do not care a brass farthing about what pests come in and have not, except in rare cases, expressed any concern on this point, but who see visions of wealth if their own particular little enterprises are protected by such a Chinese wall as Quarantine 37.

It Makes Us Smile.

The statement of the F. H. B. that the quarantine is "scientific" is enough to make the most grouchy individual smile. It is just the reverse of scientific and a man needs to be possessed of brazen effrontery or a sense of humor to term it "scientific." The measure as it is, however, will soon become law, as the board evidently felt that they must stand or fall with the measure.

The board some time ago, in answering a letter of objections, stated that they were open to receive "constructive suggestions." I made a number, but these, with other pointed queries, were entirely ignored in their succeeding reply. The board, entrenched at Washington with its solid phalanx of entomologists, plant pathologists and bacteriologists, complains because busy florists and nurserymen do not pay car fares from long distances to hold "public meetings" with a board which does not contain a solitary practical horticulturist and which, supported by its lone horticultural adviser, simply snapped its fingers at the whole horticultural industry of the country.

Crowding It Down.



What can be thought of a government board whose chief adviser stated in a public meeting in Boston that "this quarantine is going into force June 1 and will stay there forever, no matter whether you pass forty resolutions here today, and all the orchids and other flowers you mention don't amount to a bagatelle"? It was a statement made without any qualification, and this said board, when asked if they approved of such language, replied that they "were afraid you did not see Dr. Galloway's viewpoint"! The audience saw it plainly, and it was that a man who had been supported by florists for years had gotten into a position where he felt he could snap his fingers at the entire trade.

I have had considerable correspondence with the board relative to orchids. I received a list of 100 pests or thereabouts which have been "identified" on orchids. The most serious were mealy bug, scale, orchid midge, cockroaches and cattleya fly. A further reply on my part to this letter brought answer that the great danger from allowing orchids to come in was that "certain tropical ants" might come in with them. When asked face to face in Washington by a prominent New Jersey orchid grower if these ants would not come in just the same if orchids were debarred, they had no answer. They, however, urged him (and others, I presume) to "propagate their orchids at home," presumably, I suppose, in the same way as geraniums and mums! Is it not shameful that the entire orchid industry should be threatened with practical paralysis for the trivial reasons the board has enumerated?

How About Onion Bulbs?

Our importations of bulbs are to be limited to six varieties hereafter. The board cannot tell us that there is any more danger in allowing iris, snowdrops, chionodoxas, scillas, gladioli and begonias to come in than with tulips, hyacinths, crocus, lilies, valley and narcissi and they cannot name any pests which have come in on bulbs in the past. Nor can they explain to us why thousands of tons of onions, which are bulbs, can come in uninspected and be spread broadcast over the country, any more than they can tell us why thousands of bales of peat moss litter for bedding can come from countries whose boxwoods, bay trees, rhododendrons and azaleas are debarred because of the

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

HARRY A. BARNARD.

DESIGNED primarily to keep out bugs, Quarantine No. 37 will have the effect of depriving the trade in America of many things which could do no harm and which cannot be replaced. One of them is the periodical visit of Harry A. Barnard, unique among salesmen. Mr. Barnard is now making his eleventh trip in this country. He crossed the ocean eight times while the submarines were being subjugated, but he will not come again unless the quarantine is modified. Mr. Barnard's firm, Stuart Low & Co., Bushhill Park, England, are plantsmen; practically everything they sell is barred by the quarantine. Mr. Barnard is 72 years of age and has been in the employ of the firm fifty-nine years, through three generations of proprietors, a record probably unique in the horticultural trades. We shall miss him because of his great good nature and the fund of information he brings with him of trade conditions on the other side of the Atlantic.

pests which may be lurking on their roots.

Peter Bisset advised the board to allow azaleas to come in for seven years, so that growers here could get a chance to stock up. Why was the advice of such a man ignored? Could it be that he was too "practical" and not sufficiently "scientific"?

A comparison of British and American methods is interesting and illuminating. Over there the advice and opinion of the entire trade were sought and legislation such as they desired will be enacted. Here the Federal Horticultural Board asked the opinion of nobody. Is it not high time that the personnel of the board be changed and that some, at least, of its members shall be practical men instead of "scientific" theorists? Surely it must be so changed before it can recover the confidence of the horticultural interests of America.

The Harvard Professor's Moth.

Among the specious arguments now being used to bolster up a failing cause and justify the new exclusion quarantine, we are now told of the grave dangers facing us from the importation of gypsy moth and brown-tail moth egg clusters. In regard to the brown-tail moth, whose possibilities for damage were always exaggerated, it was once abundant in New England, but is now about as extinct as the dodo. The gypsy moth costs us $1,000,000 a year to fight in Massachusetts alone, but remember always that it was a legacy originally given us by one of those studious entomologists near Boston.

Disease has practically exterminated the brown-tail moth and, if our state and government scientists would combat the gypsy moth with parasites and disease cultures, we soon would suppress it, but objections to this course are that many men now filling lucrative positions would lose them if this sensible course were adopted.

Fight Only Beginning.

The new quarantine will soon become law, but the fight against it has hardly begun. Congress will be appealed to and in no uncertain fashion. It is unthinkable that a law, which I believe at a conservative estimate has not the support of over ten per cent of the horticulturists of America, can long disgrace the statute books. The fight will be taken up in earnest by the S. A. F., American Association of Nurserymen, National Association of Gardeners, florists' clubs, garden clubs, horticultural societies and other allied bodies, and from such a vigorous war a change is bound to come, not in the law only, but in the personnel of a board which has so flouted the entire horticultural interests of America. W. N. Craig.

SPOTS ON GERANIUM LEAVES.

We are forwarding, under separate cover, some geranium leaves which are disfigured with spots which we call rust. Please tell us what will check this disease. State, also, the real name of the trouble, and its cause.

L. A. E. & S.—O.

The geranium leaves arrived in a dried-up condition, so that it is hard to tell what is the matter with them. It is always best to submit a few branches of such a plant, with the affected leaves attached. The specimens sent do not have any trace of the rust so often met with on antirrhinums and a few other plants. Neither do the leaf-stems appear to be affected in any way. As nearly as I can tell, the trouble is due to some kind of scald, which may be caused by escaping gases or fumes. I have met with a similar trouble when the geranium plants were set on coal ashes from the boiler pit. The action of the sun on the damp ashes generated a gas which caused the leaves to scald. After removing the ashes and using sand or limestone screenings, we have not had any trouble in this respect.

M. P.

BLIGHT ON GERANIUM FOLIAGE.

Will you please tell me what is the trouble with the enclosed geranium leaves and what to do for them? This trouble seems to affect only the crimson varieties. M. J. C.—Kan.

This is not an uncommon trouble with geraniums. It often has its inception in the cutting bench, where cuttings frequently are allowed to remain far too long before potting. Other conditions favorable to this disease are a too close and humid atmosphere, injudicious spraying overhead and keeping the plants too wet at the roots. The last-mentioned cause gives us plants with a soft, luxuriant growth, which falls the most easily a prey to disease.

To correct the trouble, let the plants have plenty of fresh air and all possible sunshine. Keep them well spaced apart and let the soil dry out well between waterings. Give the plants worst affected a spraying with Fungine or Bordeaux mixture; repeat the application a week later. Remove the worst affected plants and avoid throwing dead or diseased leaves below the benches. Cleanliness, sunshine, fresh air, a dry atmosphere, moderate watering and a minimum of 50 degrees on cool nights will grow geraniums to perfection if the soil is right. C. W.

BLACK ROT OF GERANIUMS.

I am sending you a sample of geraniums that are affected by some disease. Can you tell me the real cause of the trouble? Do you think it could be due to red spider? The disease is most apparent on the variety S. A. Nutt. If there is any remedy, I should like to learn about it at once. C. B. K.—O.

The specimen geranium plants clearly show signs of black rot from the roots up into the stems. This trouble is often caused by overpotting and then carrying the plants along in a wet condition and a low temperature. Some growers, in their haste to get their geraniums into 4-inch pots, transfer them from 2-inch to 4-inch and then treat them in the same way as the plants that were strongly established in 3-inch pots before being repotted into 4-inch. This is a mistake. Geraniums are of succulent growth and during dark or cold weather are easily affected by moist, unnatural conditions.

At this late date about the only advice that can be given, with reference to the plants that are not affected, is to hold them a little on the dry side until the roots are firmly established in the soil. M. P.

FREESIA BULBS HELD LATE.

We are sending a few freesia bulbs that we ordered from California for forcing. They were supposed to be ⅞-inch bulbs and to bloom this spring. If you break them open you will find they are full of little bulbs, such as we grow on for two years. We wrote to the concern we obtained them from and they wrote back saying that the bulbs were first-class and would bloom this summer. We planted some last fall without breaking them open and they are not up yet. We do not look for them to come up. We wish you would examine these bulbs and let us know what you think about them.

K. F. C.—Neb.

Every florist knows that there are many bulbs and seeds which undergo certain changes if they are kept too long out of the ground and that there is a date beyond which they cannot be kept and produce the results that are had by planting at the proper time. With the freesia the bulbs must be planted in late summer or early autumn to insure satisfactory flowering. Sometimes good results are had with bulbs that have been kept to an unusually late date, but ordinarily bulbs that have been kept into the winter or following spring will be like these samples. The external appearance is unchanged, but on breaking them open, instead of one large bulb, a shrunken old bulb is found with a cluster of little ones, one of which probably is considerably larger than the rest. This is nature's way of perpetuating the new species; not being planted at the proper time, the bulb nevertheless makes an effort at reproduction. Such bulbs will not force; on being planted, all their energy goes into the development of the new crop of bulblets. If the little bulbs are grown on they will make flowering bulbs in one or two seasons.

To find bulbs in this condition is not unusual, nor is it evidence that the bulbs were or were not perfectly sound when sold. They may have begun the reproductive process before the dealer sold them, or afterwards. It is merely that they have not been replanted in time.

SCHIZANTHUS WISETONENSIS.

Friends of Thomas W. Head, superintendent of J. Ogden Armour's Mellody Farm, Lake Forest, Ill., will be specially interested in the accompanying illustration. Mr. Head was a well known figure at trade gatherings while he was located in the east, but he has not been heard from frequently since he moved to the Chicago district. The illustration will show that he has lost none of the skill with which he directs the growing of plants.

This schizanthus is one of a pair recently exhibited at a meeting of the Lake Forest Horticultural Society. The plants were six feet across and scored ninety-eight points, which seems to be as near perfection as one can expect to attain in plant production.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There was a fairly good market last week and prices have held up well for the third week in May. Roses of grand quality continue to arrive; in fact, I do not remember seeing so many fine flowers at this season. Even varieties like Ward, Sunburst, Ophelia and the Killarneys, which ordinarily arrive of inferior size and color at this date, are still equal to midwinter quality. The same is true of carnations. Sweet peas are much more abundant and somewhat lower in price. Short-stemmed stock goes as low as $5 per thousand, while specials realize $2 per hundred.

Some splendid gladioli, chiefly Mrs. Francis King and America, are arriving. Prices on these have dropped considerably; also on the small-flowered sorts like Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride. Antirrhinums continue druggy. Of ten weeks' stocks there is a large supply, which would be valuable for Memorial day but is hard to clear now. Early shipments of candytuft realize little. There are good supplies of both Spanish iris and Darwin tulips. Callas are decreasing in numbers and lilies are scarce.

A good supply of valley is now obtainable from frames and outdoors, and there is an abundance of lilac and sprays of Cornus florida. Yellow marguerites are excellent and sell at from $1 to $3 per hundred. Other flowers include calendulas, forget-me-nots, anemones, ixias, sparaxis, pansies and hardy larkspur. The latter grows under glass. The Cattleya Mossiæ crop still holds out well.

Various Notes.

The Horticultural Club visited the Arnold Arboretum and Boston park system May 15. Among those present from a distance were Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y., and F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y. At the arboretum few lilacs were found in bloom, but the large collection of malus was specially fine, a noteworthy variety being Arnoldiana. The azaleas, such as Kæmpferi and Vaseyi, cornus, loniceras, halesias, kerrias, fothergillas and other trees and shrubs, made a fine display. E. H. Wilson piloted the party through the arboretum and James B. Shea through the parkways. Dinner was served at the Parker House in the evening and the concluding meeting of the season was held.

A small flower show was held at Horticultural hall May 17. James Marlborough, from the Thomas Proctor estate, had a fine display of handsome pelargoniums and received a cultural certificate for a superb vase of Carnation Laddie. Hillcrest Farm received first prize for collection of wild flowers. Faulkner Farm and Oliver Ames divided the vegetable prizes.

The newly organized Boston Florists' Association held its second meeting at the Parker House May 20. A dinner was served and entertainment furnished by Sailor Ryan. Matters of business were later discussed. There was a fair attendance. Henry Penn presided.

William H. Elliott, in speaking of a recent visit to Philadelphia, states that the vase of Russell roses shown by Alfred Burton at the last meeting of the Florists' Club there, was unquestionably the grandest ever staged.

Frank J. Wheeler, son of James Wheeler, of Natick, has the sympathy of many friends in the death of his litle 4-months-old son, who succumbed to an attack of double pneumonia May 16.

Wollrath & Son, of Clematis Brook, have a grand stock of bedding plants for Memorial day and a handsome lot of rhododendrons in a variety of colors. They have a large lot of ten weeks' stocks, Darwin tulips and other flowers for Memorial day. Of cyclamens and begonias they have thousands of plants. Some cyclamens are already in 6-inch pots. Melior has largely displaced Cincinnati and other begonias. Of Optima a fine batch was noted.

A conference of local members of the National Association of Gardeners was held at Horticultural hall May 16. W. N. Craig, Robert Cameron and Duncan Finlayson were appointed a committee on resolutions on the death of William J. Stewart. A number of matters pertaining to the gardening profession were discussed. Among those present from a distance were M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; Thomas Hatton, New London, Conn., and A. McKay, Newport, R. I.

The beautiful, clear weather attracted thousands of visitors to the Arnold Arboretum Sunday, May 18. The lilac display will not be at its best until May 25, but many other handsome trees and shrubs were to be seen.

The B. A. Snyder Co. is receiving a large lot of Memorial day orders and looks for the biggest turnover for that holiday Boston has ever had.

John K. M. L. Farquhar had a narrow escape from pneumonia, but careful work on the part of his physician pulled him through nicely, I am glad to report.

Mr. Saffron, of the Garland Co., of Cleveland, was among our callers last week. He reports business as being extremely good.

A local orchid specialist just back from a visit to the Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont., told me that the orchids there were the finest lot he had seen in America, also that stock of every kind was in a remarkably fine condition there.

James Wheeler, of Natick, is now our heaviest local grower of Euonymus radicans var. vegeta, pachysandra and Taxus cuspidata. He has dropped marguerites and has his big house entirely planted with carnations. Two other houses are planted with tomatoes, Carter's Sunrise, John Baer and Comet. On the earliest of these picking will commence early in June.

James Bond, of Port Chester, N. Y., was among our callers last week. He is a brother of Charles Bond, the orchid grower of Naperville, Ill.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club had an excellent attendance at its meeting May 20 and Fred E. Palmer's lecture was thoroughly enjoyed. A fuller report will appear in our next issue.

Superb America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli are coming in from C. B. Johnson and Fred Holbrow, of Dorchester.

C. T. Beasley & Co. are still picking excellent pansies and recently have had a fine cut of ixias.

Memorial day talk fills the air now and everything points to a tremendous demand and high prices for flowers. The artificial wreath looms up more prominently than ever and many thousands will be sold here within the next few days.

The writer visited Fred C. Green, superintendent of Roger Williams park, Providence, R. I., May 18, and found this beautiful park in perfect condition. Over 100 varieties of beautifully bloomed lilacs were seen and many handsome specimens of Cornus florida rubra were noted. Such azaleas as Vaseyi, Kæmpferi, Hinodigiri ledifolia alba and yodogawa were in perfect bloom. The malus, cerasus and other trees and shrubs were equally fine, while the garden of hardy perennials, rock plants, Darwin tulips, primulas, auriculas and other plants was extremely fascinating. More garden lovers should visit this lovely and well cared for park. The genial and able superintendent will give them a cordial welcome.

There will be an iris and rhododendron show at Horticultural hall June 7 and 8. W. N. C.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

The Monday following Mothers' day found stock diminished almost to the vanishing point. What little stock found its way into the market was taken up quickly. Business was brisk the early part of the week and there was no accumulation of flowers among the wholesalers. The bright, warm weather, with a falling off in the demand, caused some trouble to the commission men the latter part of the week. But, as usual during the last eight months, there has been no protracted spell of dull business here. The receipts for last week were heavy and the prices were steady. Nothing of quality was sacrificed and, if the present week holds up, a healthy market will be assured for the month of May. Peonies of good quality are now coming in rapidly. Outdoor valley has made its appearance and is more welcome than ever before. Some fine gladioli arrived and were sold immediately.

The weather has been unfavorable for outdoor planting. This week's sunshine has made the sales in seeds, bedding and vegetable plants jump considerably.

Various Notes.

A hail storm, which hit North Milwaukee May 16, caused excitement among growers in that part of the city. Carnations in the field had the appearance of being packed in ice. Hail was piled three feet high in the greenhouse gutters of the Greenwood Carnation Co. Little damage was done to outdoor stock and the carnations appear none the worse for their experience.

The general strike, which has paralyzed Winnipeg, Canada, is being felt by local wholesalers. About twenty boxes of flowers were returned in poor condition, the express company being unable to move them farther than St. Paul.

William (Bill) Schumacher, an employee of Holton & Hunkel Co., was among the members of the 120th Field Artillery who returned May 17. Mr. Schumacher will resume his former position.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club is cooperating with the Civic Improvement Association in an endeavor to get a continuous row of window boxes on both sides of the street, in what is known as City Hall square. If successful this will put the window box business of Milwaukee where it should have been years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. George Asmus and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Zech, of Chicago, attended the May ball given by the Florists' Club at the Calumet Club, May 15.

With their alterations completed, giving them plenty of window space and a well arranged interior, J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., have one of the prettiest stores in the city.

The greenhouses that grow bedding stock have been taxed heavily with out-of-town orders. Present indications point to a shortage for Memorial day.

Mr. Livingston, gardener for Fred Vogel, Jr., invited the local florists to inspect some calceolarias of which he is justly proud. One plant was forty inches across and bore hundreds of flowers. Mr. Livingston gave an interesting and instructive talk on this flower and its culture at the last meeting of the Florists' Club.

There was an extra large consignment of optimism on hand May 12, thanks to the wonderful producer, "Say It with Flowers." M.

Florists' Club's Party.

A pretty dancing party was given by the Milwaukee Florists' Club Thursday evening, May 15, at the Calumet Club. The reception rooms were beautifully decorated with hydrangeas and fancy-leaved caladiums. Palms interspersed with pink roses made an appropriate and artistic decoration for the ballroom. Each woman guest wore a pretty corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas. The music was furnished by Dryburgh's orchestra. An interesting program was given, among the numbers being several vocal selections by Mlle. Lurad. Those in charge were President W. A. Kennedy and Secretary Eugene Oestreicher. The entertainment committee consisted of Albert A. Hare, chairman; Walter Holiday and Henry Marquardt. The affair was well attended, there being over 200 couples present. H. J. S.

YORK STATE NOTES

Oswego, N. Y.—C. Beckstedt reports a good call for carnations for Mothers' day. Having a full crop he retailed them at $2 per dozen and naturally had a run at this popular figure.

Watertown, N. Y.—A. Stoeckle observed that passing from the busiest Easter to a good rush on Mothers' day was a pleasing and profitable transition. Now Memorial day looms up fully as promising, with a first-class stock to meet the demand.

Syracuse, N. Y.—When Robert Bard was accused of piling up profits on Mothers' day sales to purchase an automobile, he replied that while it could be a Pierce-Arrow or Packard it would certainly Ford them over the dull period previous to Memorial day business. "But," observed Mr. Bard, "as we are busy almost daily attending florally to life's stages from the cradle to the grave, we have hardly time to reflect upon the mutability of events, so rapidly do they pursue each other."

Auburn, N. Y.—"Some results of advertising," observed George Dobbs, of Dobbs & Son, as the postman handed out a bundle of mail. "Orders from all over, showing there is a shortage of stock, that our method of publicity is profitable and that those who buy have confidence in those with whom they are trading." Bedding stock and carnations are first-class. Carnations for Mothers' day were in fine crop and sold freely at $3 per dozen. Young plants are in good shape. An overdose of cyanide cut down two houses of tomatoes and carnations. The tomatoes passed out, but the divine flower recovered and the later growth seemed stronger than the first. The bugs were unharmed, Auburn, N. Y.—"Best business ever," reports Pierce Patrick; "fine stock sold well at fair prices. We expect our usual good share of planting orders that have graced the files of the Patrick establishment for a generation." Four sons of Patrick adorn the profession.

Oswego, N. Y.—Workman's Flower Shop had good sales for Mothers' day by recommending roses and other flowers in place of carnations. The total averaged up well. A fine lot of campanulas in 6-inch pots sold well. They were tried as forcing plants and are highly satisfactory. Bedding stock looks good.

Skaneateles, N. Y.—"Demand on Mothers' day surpassed all records," observed Archie Patrick, "and while the carnation led, roses sold well and being cheaper by comparison gave full satisfaction. Now for Memorial day; we have the stock and certainly the earth will be moist enough for planting. The demand promises to be good, judging from orders already placed with us."

Syracuse, N. Y.—The W. E. Day Co. notes a steady increase in the demand for carnations on Mothers' day, but fears the high prices will eventually hurt the sale. "Far from being a pessimist," observed W. E. Day, "and being able to obtain as high prices as anyone, we fear the day is not far off when there will be a reaction and all the efforts of publicity will not stem it. Carnations at $15 per hundred, wholesale, with express charges added and allowing for any loss, it is easy to see where the retailer stands. Roses were easier and sold freely. All in all, it was a banner occasion."

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

A review shows that the business of Mothers' day was fully up to the expectations of the most sanguine of its promoters. The wholesale market did a splendid business and, according to reports from retail shops, that division of the trade did equally well.

As the market stands now, roses range from $6 to $15 per hundred; sweet peas, $1 to $3; snapdragons, $1.50 to $2; adiantum, $2 straight; ferns, $5; carnations, 8 cents each; orchids, 75 cents; mignonette, 4 cents; daisies, 2 and 3 cents; calendulas, 35 cents; Sprengeri, 60 to 75 cents; plumosus, 40 and 50 cents; Mexican ivy, 75 cents; galax, $2, and leucothoe, $7.50.

Brook Lodge Tulip Show.

Since the opening of the Red Cross benefit tulip show at Brook Lodge, the summer estate of J. Wilkinson Elliott, thousands have journeyed there. The Brook Lodge garden is said to be one of the finest natural spots in the country.

Chairman Edward A. Woods, of the show committee, said, in launching the benefit: "I have seen many floral displays in this country and abroad, but I have never seen anything to equal the present exhibition."

Miss Dorothy Elliott, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, provided a special entertainment for the children in a charming scene from Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird." The show was under the auspices of the garden club of Allegheny county the afternoon of May 16.

Various Notes.

Accompanied by his family, Oliver J. Parker, president of the Scobie & Parker Co., has gone to Los Angeles, Cal., to remain until October. Mr. Parker has a lemon and alfalfa range near Los Angeles, which is in charge of his son, Joseph Parker.

Earl C. Tipton, manager of the cut flower department of the McCallum Co., has returned from a several days' trip, during which he visited Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Lancaster.

Joseph H. Seaman has severed his connection with the Alpha Floral Co., to become a staff representative of the artificial department of the McCallum Co. His territory will include the Pittsburgh field.

Max Goldhammer has become manager of the Grand Flower Shop, succeeding Peter Matsukes. He will be assisted by Harry A. Smith, a former casket trimmer in a local undertaking establishment. Mr. Goldhammer has just closed the branch shop of the Victoria Flower Shop, in the Oliver building, which was opened just before Easter for the business of that holiday.

E. E. S.

The showing of floral pieces at the funeral of H. J. Heinz May 17 was perhaps the largest ever known in Pittsburgh. The services were held at a church close to the store of Randolph & McClements, that firm having the family order and being in charge of the flowers. Not only were the pieces unusually numerous, but they were of the finest character. Wreaths predominated, cattleyas being used extensively. No previous event in the history of the trade in Pittsburgh has brought so many telegraph delivery orders. The deceased not only was a wealthy man, but had connections all over the country and telegraph orders for funeral pieces came from all parts of America.

WHITE FLY ON ROSES?

We are sending you by parcel post a sample of rose buds that have been affected by something that we are puzzled about. A week or ten days ago our section of roses, Killarney, Ophelia, Richmond and Russell, had a promising crop in sight. A few days ago they seemed to be blighted and we are sending you the buds and an envelope with some small flies. They are quite small and look white when flying and are hard to catch.

One of our growers thinks that the trouble was caused by this fly and another thinks possibly it may have been the sun, which came out strongly last Saturday and Sunday after a dark spell of nearly three weeks. We would like to have you ascertain what is the matter and if you can describe any way of getting rid of this pest or correct our system of growing we would appreciate it.

We might say that we have been using a mulch of cow manure that has been in a tank soaking for two weeks and have mulched quite heavily, especially the last two weeks. In fact, we have fed them with this mixture since last fall, with the exception of most of January and February. C. F. N. C.—Minn.

Probably it was the white fly, brought in with the manure mulch. The writer has had no personal experience with this insect on roses and has been unable to find any other grower around Chicago who has had similar trouble. If any reader has had such an experience and will send in an account of his treatment, no doubt The Review will be pleased to print it.

Persistent fumigating with one of the standard nicotine extracts in accordance with the instructions on the can will clean up any house infested with the white fly, but where this process is too slow or too costly because of the quantity of space to be fumigated, then the use of hydrocyanic acid gas will do the work. The formula has been published many times in The Review and no doubt every grower knows it or has saved a clipping. H. O.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

There were many carnations unsold Mothers' day in Syracuse, N. Y. Sunday evening I saw quite a large number in the stores.

* * * *

Fred A. Taylor, of Canastota, N. Y., like many others who felt rather blue during the dark days of last winter, has recovered his old-time push, and the place has a prosperous look, so the desire to dispose of it has almost vanished. All that is desired is the early return of the young man who is still in France and who was a big asset to the business.

* * * *

The Allen-Churchill Co., Cortland, N. Y., in handing in a subscription to The Review, expresses the opinion that The Review's columns will be perused more closely than ever before owing to the scarcity of some kinds of stock and the necessity of keeping posted. The company mentions having been fortunate during the winter in having large cuts to meet the excellent demand.

* * * *

Brant Bros., Utica, N. Y., spoke of Mothers' day—in fact, all the season's business—as being a banner one for the grower and expressed the opinion that if money is not made now, it never will be. They mention that a contract placed with the Lord & Burnham Co., for 50,000 feet of glass, before the war, will be carried out this summer, with the possibility of an additional 100,000 feet next year.

* * * *

H. L. Crandell, of Glens Falls, N. Y., says: "To be successful, one must put on a big front. In this instance, it is necessary to make a prominent display to catch the eye." The new store, fronting on the junction of the two principal streets in town, is on a good site and will be adorned with window boxes, kept well filled, both during summer and winter.

The Adolph Frost establishment, at Cortland, N. Y., is known as "The Sign of the Pansy," because of the presence, on the front of the place, of an immense wooden sign in the shape of a pansy and painted in natural colors. "For more than fifty years," observed Adolph Frost, "our place has been known by this name." It was an idea of the first Adolph Frost and, as it has been such a successful name, the third generation of the Frost family will continue to use it.

* * * *

A visit to several growers on Long Island found all satisfied with the season's business. Many are rebuilding; some are adding. All have high hopes of a continuance of the good times, for, though prices are higher than heretofore, they cannot be allowed to return to the former scale, with the cost of production remaining as it now stands.

* * * *

Theodore Hengstenberg, of Hempstead, L. I., has one of the best grown full lines of bedding plants on the island. All will undoubtedly be disposed of at good prices, so that he will not regret having switched over from carnations, which happen also to be a profitable crop this season.

William H. Workman, of Oswego, N. Y., observed that the growth of The Review reflects, in a floricultural sense, the tremendous resources, vastness of scope and range of vision of our country and its laborers. Geographical and other lines are becoming rapidly obliterated. The position of the florists was formerly in a corner, so to speak, but they have been brought to the front, mainly through the medium of the F. T. D. Mr. Workman regretted his inability to fill a home order for a casket cover, to consist solely of cattleyas.

The Review brings results.

IT is not likely that there will be any shortage of bedding stock, even geraniums, after Memorial day.

SOME careless newspaper editors handle the word "profiteer" as though it were a complimentary appellation.

THESE are the weeks when the florist works from dewy dawn to deepening dusk and does not then get each day's duties done.

THE sentiment back of the use of flowers for Memorial day makes a specially good opportunity for coöperative advertising by florists.

SEND The Review clippings of the flower ads printed in your local newspapers for Memorial day, also a photograph of your Memorial day window or special Memorial day designs.

THERE is an old saying that "Opportunity knocks once at every man's door." Don't get the idea that it is only once. For florists, at least, Opportunity is beating a regular rat-a-tat-tat.

To justify the present level of prices and to keep the trade on its better basis, we need an improvement in the average quality of stock. It will pay the trade as a body and the grower as an individual.

IF the trade suffered because of the war, one most desirable object has been attained. Credits have been restricted and collections accelerated. The trade is on a better financial footing than it ever was before.

THERE always are two sides to a story and if florists were allowed the same liberty in explaining why flower prices are what they are as some newspapers take in scoring the trade for "extortion," no doubt the public would be less inclined to place florists in the same classification as Captain Kidd.

THERE have been more complaints this season than ever before, that young stock shipped on mail orders was not up to description. While the stock sent out certainly has destroyed for some shippers whatever reputation for veracity they ever possessed, there are other cases in which at least a part of the responsibility rests on the buyer's insistence on early delivery.

Do it better than the other fellow and you will not lack for business.

ONE of the plants which surely advanced in popularity this season is Pelargonium Easter Greeting.

THE editor of The Review would like to obtain two or three good photographs showing the abundance of flowers in cemeteries on Memorial day.

UNLIKE other industries, floriculture has not fallen into the hands of rich and strong corporations, excluding the little man, but has at all times held opportunities for working up from the bottom of the ladder.

PROFESSOR BERTRAND, of the Pasteur Institute, has informed the Academy of Science that the asphyxiating gases which have been used in the war are likely to be turned to account in the destruction of insects harmful to vegetation.

TWO shows will be held this year under the auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society, at Newport, R. I., instead of monthly exhibitions, as in former years. The first will be held June 25 and 26, while the second is scheduled for September. Numerous prizes, for both commercial and amateur growers, will be awarded.

THE VICTORY LOAN.

The trade has every reason to be proud of the showing made on the Liberty loans. The Fourth loan came at a time when florists were ill prepared. It was at the end of the hardest season this trade ever had known. But the trade responded nobly; its subscriptions to the loan exceeded what we were asked to do. The Victory loan found the trade in better financial position. We had had a season of heavy demand and good prices. Some had suffered through failure to have much to sell, but on the whole the trade had paid its debts and put itself in shape to meet any obligation. Having acquired the habit of paying its bills, the trade was ready to pay its share of the war bill. In New York, which in many respects still is the biggest trade center, the Victory loan subscriptions were $318,000. Chicago, not so strong numerically, bought more than $300,000 of the bonds. In other communities the florists did proportionately as well. We have no reason to be otherwise than proud of our war record. The trade has done its part.

EAST OR WEST.

One of the beauties of the business is that it makes no difference where a florist is located, at least as far as the opportunity to do wholesale business is concerned. The man who is located at the center of the trade and the one out on a radius have equal opportunity to reach the buyers. Like this:

The Review sells our stock faster than we can ship it out.—Hammerschmidt & Clark, Medina, O., May 14, 1919.

I have almost completely sold out; The Review did its share and I thank you.—R. T. Davis, Jr., Wheatridge, Colo., May 14, 1919.

BREAD IS RETURNING.

A florist whose opinion on civic matters evidently has some weight is George T. Ryan, of Ryan & Powers, Waterbury, Conn. A leading newspaper of Waterbury prints the following at the top of its editorial columns:

George T. Ryan sends us a letter which we present in our columns today with a word in behalf of sanitary inspectors who may be obliged to pay for their own uniforms. The letter is headed with Mr. Ryan's well known catch phrase: "Say It with Flowers." For a moment we wondered whether Mr. Ryan were about to advocate killing the inspectors or whether he was simply seeking a more flowery expression of any ideas we might have in regard to them.

The editor of the newspaper pays a tribute to the efforts of the florists' publicity committee when he writes of the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," as "well known."

A STRENUOUS SEASON.

This is a record season in the flower business in more ways than one. Never before have the special flower days come with such rapidity. Easter was not later in 1919 than in one other recent year, but in 1916, when Easter was April 23, Mothers' day had not assumed the importance it now holds as a special flower day. This year, with Easter April 23, Mothers' day May 11 and Memorial May 30, the trade has three days of big special demand to be met and handled within the space of forty days. It has been almost too strenuous. The special days have come so fast that it has been impossible to meet the situation as fully as will be done next year. In 1920 we shall have, first of all, normal production, with all our greenhouses in operation. Easter is April 4 and Mothers' day is May 9. There will be five weeks in which to prepare for the second big day. Memorial day comes Sunday in 1920. May 30 is three weeks after Mothers' day. The opportunity is there for preparations which will make Mothers' day and Memorial day of greater importance than ever before.

A DUTY TO THE TRADE.

How many of us have given a thought to the future of the trade, to the situation which will exist three, five, ten years from now?

Look ahead a few years and ask yourself where the growers of that day will get their skilled assistants, the men to take charge of one end or another of the business.

The florists' business is absolutely sure to grow, because nothing ever will be found to take the place of flowers in the great events of life, but the rapidity and direction of growth depend first of all on the men in the business today. Are we training our successors? Are we creating a body of skilled labor to expand the business in coming years?

It must be admitted that we are not. We are not even developing the experienced help we need today and will need worse tomorrow.

We must have first-class help or the business will develop slowly and in the direction of one-man establishments. To get first-class help we must train it and to get men worth training we must pay enough to make the business attractive.

It is up to every florist to pick out at least one likely young man who finishes his school education this spring, to bring him into the business and, if he proves adaptable to it, to pay him enough to hold his interest, adding to his responsibilities as his abilities develop. In that way, and in that way only, can we create the large body of responsible assistants the trade so badly needs.

OBITUARY

James S. Smith.

James S. Smith, aged 25, son of George C. Smith, landscape gardener and florist, of Canandaigua, N. Y., died at the Memorial hospital after a few days' illness. Death was due to ptomaine poisoning. Mr. Smith was an enterprising young man and the many and beautiful floral tributes received gave evidence of his sterling character.

James A. Foster.

James A. Foster, proprietor of the Warwick Greenhouses, at Warwick, R. I., died suddenly at Fostmere, his country home, May 15, aged 73. He was born in Brooklyn, Conn., but removed to Providence when a small boy and learned the jewelry business. Later he began business as a retail jeweler and diamond broker. He was the pioneer of the automobile industry in Rhode Island and established the first automobile supply business in New England. He was interested in upwards of a dozen large business concerns, real estate, theatrical and other lines. From a small beginning he amassed a fortune and was worth considerably more than a million dollars.

Mr. Foster was a great lover of art and nature and his estate at Warwick was one of the show places of Rhode Island, the landscape effects being among the most attractive in that section of the country. He made it his year-round residence, having moved there twenty-three years ago. He built a range of greenhouses, eight in number, where he grew roses, carnations and chrysanthemums for the market. His mums were among the most consistent prize-winners of any growers' thereabouts.

Mr. Foster was a Civil war veteran, being less than 15 years old when he enlisted. His wife, one son and a sister survive him. W. H. M.

THE COST OF BUILDING.

Will It Come Down?

One of the most vexing of the many problems which confront producers in many other fields besides the greenhouse trade is that of how they are to prepare for increased business, provided an increase is forthcoming, as all signs indicate it will be. Increasing business requires building expansion, and the present prices of building materials are, like the maiden lady's cat, high up a tree and undecided whether to remain there or come down.

Nobody seems able to forecast the ultimate turn of the markets. Of late, steel has come down a bit, while some other materials descended for a short distance and then went up again. One naturally dislikes to sign a contract for a building and run the chance that shortly afterward there would come a drop in the materials market that would have saved him many dollars had he waited.

The construction companies are no happier than the would-be builders in the existing situation. If they could, they would gladly foretell just when and how much the markets are going to drop, provided they are going to drop, and figure accordingly. Present indications, as constructors see them, point to the likelihood that the market will drop neither soon nor far. However, one guess is as good as another and almost anything seems possible, even to a rise instead of a drop in prices.

"Cost Plus" Contracts.

One immediate result of the situation has been a change in the style of contracts as prepared by the big general construction companies. The cost plus percentage contract, used so extensively by the government for war contracts, has been carried over into general commercial use. In this connection, it might be well to correct the erroneous impression held by many, that the percentage figured for the builder's profit is always ten per cent. Different companies have different methods of figuring their profit, but the general practice is to lower the percentage for big jobs and raise it slightly for small ones. In any event, all accounts pertaining to a job are open to the owner, who is at liberty to audit them as frequently as he desires, to remove any possibility of error or misunderstanding.

An entirely new form, according to the information department of the H. K. Ferguson Co., large general contractors, is a contract by means of which the maximum cost of the job and the builder's profit are both prearranged and agreed upon. All savings under the maximum cost belong to the owner of the building. Should the market rise, bringing the cost up above the agreed maximum, the builder stands the increase out of his profit. The builder usually submits his bid in competition with other construction companies, so there is no opportunity for him to protect his own interests by naming an extra high figure.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that the construction companies in general are willing to accord building owners every possible protection. Anyone who contemplates building may feel assured that he will be given the benefit of every possible saving. He can also feel reasonably certain that he will gain little, if anything, all things considered, by postponing his building in the hope that markets will fall.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Market conditions show a great change. Business continued fairly brisk last week, but there was a steady trend toward more normal spring conditions. No previous May in many years has seen so few flowers or so large a demand as existed in the first half of May this year. Since the mid-month day there has been steady increase in supply and a corresponding decrease in the assiduity with which buyers were hunting stock. For the first time in many months the wholesale market carried over a large quantity of stock when it came time to close on Saturday evening, May 17.

This week opened with an unusually dull Monday and a larger accumulation of flowers than has been seen at any time this season. Not since last spring have there been so many flowers. Compared to the present demand there is an abundance of stock of practically every seasonable variety, from American Beauties to outdoor Darwin tulips. This is not an unusual condition at this time of year; indeed, the condition would not occasion remark if it were not that the price level was considerably above what flowers have brought at this time in other years and that there is objection on the part of growers and wholesalers to seeing a break just before the enormous demand that is assured next week for Memorial day.

There are just a few things that are scarce. Easter lilies are practically out of the market. The last of the cold storage bulbs have flowered. A few of the 1918 crop of giganteum bulbs which came in a few weeks ago are coming along and will flower in June, but in a general way the market will be bare of lilies for the next several months. Valley also is scarce and there are few orchids, local growers having cut their heavy spring crops. On the other hand, there are plenty of Beauties, roses, carnations and the largest supply of sweet peas of the season. The latter constitute the wholesalers' greatest problem. There are moderate supplies of large-flowered gladioli and of baby gladioli, also of Spanish iris, stocks, daisies, calendulas, snapdragons, candytuft, wallflower and mignonette. Peonies exceed the present demand, but have not been going into cold storage after the usual mid-May fashion.

The weather has been cool, with little hot sun, and the quality of flowers grown under glass is better than even the oldest inhabitant can ever remember flowers to have been in the third week in May. Almost midwinter quality is the rule.

Ferns have turned short. There are those who fear there will be a pinch for Memorial day.

The Peony Crop.

Last week's report in this column to the effect that the southern peony crop had suffered from weather conditions has been confirmed and it now is apparent that the damage has been severe. It seems that the loss has been particularly heavy in Tennessee and southern Indiana; the southern Illinois growers and the Missouri shippers have suffered to a less extent. It is said that some of Indiana's largest shippers to this market will not have more than one-tenth of a crop and good judges say that if the Memorial day supply of peonies is one-third what it has been in recent years it will be as much as can be looked for.

The damage seems to have been the combined result of frosts, of rains and of a fungous disease which has attacked the buds.

A few days of good weather may make a great deal of difference in the Memorial day supply, because favorable conditions could bring in the cuts from plantations farther north, outside the damaged district. Weather conditions continuing unfavorable, however, the market is uncertain about peonies and most of the wholesalers are cautious about booking large orders. Where the best stock was sold on advance orders last year at $8 per hundred and $10 just before Memorial day, the present idea is $10 to $12 on advance orders, with the prediction that strictly first-class stock will be worth $15 before Memorial day.

Decoration Day Prospects.

There is a general belief that the Decoration day demand will exceed anything heretofore known in this market. Everything is shaping up to bring a flood of last-minute orders. In the first place there is the experience at Christmas, Easter and Mothers' day, when the demand far exceeded the supply. In the second place, weather conditions are such that outdoor flowers will be less abundant than usual, resulting in increased demand for greenhouse flowers. Then there is the shortage of peonies, which will result in turning many buyers to indoor flowers. Word comes from Alvin, Tex., that the jasmines are late and most of the shippers booked up to their limit.

Memorial day has been recognized as a time when the public does not look for high-priced flowers, but there is a belief that this year fair prices will be paid without objection. There is no disposition to charge all that the traffic will bear, advance orders being booked at moderate increases over last year's prices. For instance, where advance orders for good carnations were taken at $50 to $60 per thousand last year, $80 is the figure this year. On roses there is little advance on the best grades, but the early demand for short roses is so heavy that it is apparent there will not be enough to go around and prices on this grade have been advanced. Sweet peas will be abundant. The shortage of peonies will be the principal factor in this market.

Greenhouse Builders Busy.

The greenhouse construction companies are busy, in some cases busier than at any time in the last five years. There are some large orders and a great many smaller ones, enough to insure a summer that will keep everyone on the jump.

It is said there will be a scramble to get material as autumn approaches.

Various Notes.

Ernest Oechslin states that he has nothing whatever to do with the suit started to prevent Concordia cemetery from leasing space inside its grounds to another florist; Mr. Oechslin adds that while his business may benefit from such action, as reported in The Review last week, he is in no way responsible for the legal action taken in the names of certain lot owners. He says he has been on most friendly terms with the cemetery management and hopes to so continue.

The Wabash Flower Market, retail, has been removed from the basement at 106 South Wabash avenue, to the street floor at 26 East Monroe street. It is almost opposite the Mangel store in the Palmer House and has added another well equipped establishment to the circle of flower stores surrounding the intersection of Wabash avenue and Monroe street.

A note from George Rye, Fort Smith, Ark., says: "John Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, dropped in to see me May 14 and I took him around the city. He said to me that Fort Smith was one of the best towns he had ever visited in the southwest and of course that made me feel pretty good."

Sam Pearce has been notably successful during the war years, but he has earned his success by his forethought. As far back as the spring of 1918 he was thinking of the supply of bulbs for the spring of 1920. At that time it seemed doubtful if there would be any importations from Holland, so Mr. Pearce took good care of the stock from which he had been cutting and turned it over to the Michigan Bulb Farm, Benton Harbor, to be planted last fall and grown on as a fifty-fifty proposition. This spring there have been three acres of Dutch bulbs in bloom at Benton Harbor and they have made a showing calculated to encourage the idea that we can grow tulip and narcissus bulbs to supply all our needs. The only question seems to be one of cost.

Miss Marguerite McNulty, who is right-hand man for Peter Reinberg, says the call for carnation cuttings and young mum stock has been a surprise this season. They never before have sold out the surplus at such an early date.

Frank M. Johnson and Henry Niebuhr, of the A. L. Randall Co., spent a few days in New York last week and Saturday, May 17, were in Pittsburgh. They had the opportunity to see the flowers at the funeral of H. J. Heinz, of pickle fame, and say that for quantity and quality of flowers the funeral was the most notable they ever have encountered.

Wendland & Keimel Co. has planted trial batches of the new Montgomery roses, Pilgrim and Crusader, illustrated in last week's Review, and which are to be disseminated next season by A. N. Pierson, Inc.

Cassimer Gouza, of the Randall cut flower department, has been at home for a week with a light attack of appendicitis. It is thought he will get through without an operation.

C. J. Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., points with pride to G. Swenson's Darwin tulips. There are few growers of outdoor flowers for this market who achieve the high quality that this venerable Elmhurst shipper gets.

Arthur Weber has returned from Coblenz, where he guarded the bridge across the Rhine with an American battery of heavy field artillery. He says he is glad to get back to rose growing.

Evansville, Ind., reports visits from three representatives of Chicago wholesalers last week. Eric Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., Edward Schultz, of the E. C. Amling Co., and C. L. Sherer, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, each investigated the damage done to the crops.

Bonvallet & Co., Wichert, Ill., have completed the planting of between six and seven acres of gladioli for the local cut flower market.

Frank Schramm has ordered a new 200-horsepower Freeman boiler to take the place of one of the two 100-horsepower boilers heretofore used in heating his Crystal Lake rose houses. He will sell one of the old boilers and keep the other in reserve.

Between showers the Lombard Floral Co., Lombard, Ill., is planting a new house built this spring, which adds twenty-five per cent to the glass area. Ophelia plants which were taken out of an old house to make way for Premier are being used to plant the new house.

George C. Weiland, of Evanston, has a prophetic vision. As far back as last summer he saw good times ahead and he made every effort to make his facilities produce to the utmost this season. One of the things he planned was a crop of Darwin tulips in frames. He has been cutting them heavily the last few days and they have added a tidy sum to his income.

Lieut. David C. Boyle, recently returned from France, has joined the sales force of the A. L. Randall Co. He was with eastern supply houses before entering the service of Uncle Sam.

THE PAST FEW DAYS have wrought a big change in the Peony situation of the country for Memorial Day.

Unseasonable weather—Hail, Frost and driving Rain have ruined the Peony crop in many sections.

The fields which are undamaged still offer you good Peonies—but the supply is limited. Those flowers which we offer you under the name GOULD'S SELECT will be of highest quality, as they come from sections which fortunately escaped to a large degree.

We advise that you order from them at once if you want the best in Value and Quality.

Allen Gerling, with Bassett & Washburn, will be back on the job about May 26, as he has been released from the army. Joseph N. PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The cut flower market is in fair shape for the season. The unusually cool weather has had much to do with preventing the oversupply so apt to occur during the middle of May, far more than any special business activity, for business has been only moderate. It has been sufficient to keep up prices and prevent any accumulation of good stock. This applies particularly to carnations. With a supply of about two-thirds that of a year ago, prices rule high and the stock continues to be in active demand. Orchids are still short of the demand. Cattleya Mossiæ furnishes most of the flowers, with a few Cattleya gigas to give variety. Prices are extremely high. Outdoor sweet peas from coldframes are a little more abundant, with promise of a good crop soon. The indoor sweet peas are still fair, but many of them are inferior. Roses are the leaders at present. It is so hard to get perfect Beauties that an unusual price is asked for selected long-stemmed flowers.

Russell sells well at lower prices than a week ago. Killarney can only be used in bargain lots. Where 500 are offered at an attractive figure, some Killarneys go in; they are rarely ordered by themselves. Of course this does not apply to Double White Killarney, which is in demand. Looking back to Mothers' day, it seems that roses were little used.

Easter lilies are practically out of the market this week. There is promise of some during June and July. Outdoor valley is pretty good, the so-called Russian valley especially so.

Business was at a standstill in the local market May 15. There were quite a lot of out-of-town orders, some of them of considerable importance. Practically all the florists closed for most of the day to see the parade of the Iron Division. This tended to accelerate business next day to an extent that kept flowers moving well.

Peonies are coming in more freely from the south. Everyone predicts that there will be an abundance of fine peonies for Memorial day, but no one feels perfectly easy about it. There has certainly been enough rain to make them good, given some warm sunshine. Outdoor iris from the south is now quite plentiful. Cornflowers are increasing in numbers.

Wilmington.

One of the large dinner table decorations of the season was arranged by J. J. Habermehl's Sons, of this city, in the Hotel Dupont, Wilmington, Del., May 15.

The occasion was the presentation of the croix du guerre by the French envoy to Pierre S. Dupont and Colonel Buckner, former president and vice-president of the Dupont Powder Co., for conspicuous services rendered to the cause of the Allies during the war. The dinner was given by Irene Dupont, now president of the company. The table, in the form of a hollow square, was of great size. It measured 20x40 feet. Covers were laid upon it for seventy-five persons. The hollow space in the center contained a fountain illuminated by colored electric lights, two baskets containing 100 choice American Beauty roses in each, and many beautiful flowering plants and ferns. The table was profusely decorated with flowers.

The Business Outlook.

Inquiry among those best informed shows that the general feeling is that prices in all lines are likely to remain high for some time to come. Some opinions are that they will advance. It is thought that this will mean general prosperity. Everyone feels that the prices paid for labor are likely to remain high and that while this continues, prices for merchandise cannot well decline. It is pointed out that the slowness of peace and the consequent slowness of demobilization is an advantage, as it enables the various industries

NEW YORK.

The Market.

As far as arrivals are concerned, the market is taking on conditions similar to those in evidence before the fuel embargo went into effect. In only one or two lines is there any shortage of a supply which might be considered normal. In spite of this, values of the better stock have not receded in proportion and prices today may be considered much in advance of those formerly obtained. This may be taken as an excellent sign of adjustment to production conditions, dominated by increased cost. Complaints on the part of growers are few and, value for value, the market may be considered satisfactory from every point of view. While clearances in some lines drag along through evident oversupply, only a little stock goes to waste.

The rose situation is practically unchanged, supply and demand breaking about even, with prices a little firmer due to cool weather. American Beauty is fairly plentiful and, moving under late spring conditions, minimum prices of specials continue around the 15 cent mark. Teas and hybrid teas are in plentiful supply and when the quality is good clearances are not difficult, although the demand at times weakens.

Carnations are not so plentiful as usual at this time of the year and prices are maintained at 6 cents for the best. The quality of some of the blooms seen is remarkable for the time of year with some growers, more like what one would expect to see in February. The lower grades are as customarily seen, with small flower heads and a worn-out appearance. Prices continue as reported last week, 6 cents for the best grades.

The supply of orchids fully meets the demand, which is anything but exceptional. Some extra fine Cattleya gigas is coming in and moves well. Spray orchids, such as Phalænopsis amabilis and the odontoglossums lag somewhat and growers are cutting to anticipate requirements rather than to furnish a supply.

Lilies are plentiful and meet a steady demand at a price which insures clearances, 10 to 12 cents. Inferior flowers close out at as low as 8 cents. Lily of the valley is in good supply and in the better grades moves well. Outside stock is much in evidence, growing conditions being in favor of a splendid cut. Sprays bring as much as 4 cents each, and are taken in preference to the lower grades of glass-grown stock.

Tulips and daffodils have about passed for the season, excepting occasional shipments of outdoor stock, which is poor in quality. There still is plenty of Spanish iris, and German iris from outdoors is arriving in large quantities. Early varieties of peonies are strongly in evidence, especially the old officinalis varieties, and are taken mainly for window display.

Miscellaneous flowers continue abundant, but their movement is not particularly active. Some fine delphinium is coming in and clears out well. Sweet peas are in great quantity and move slowly. It is possible to get $1.50 per hundred for the best. The return for the rest is a matter of clearance. Daisies, snapdragons, many of them poor in quality; wallflowers, pansies, candytuft, calendulas, myosotis and stocks form the bulk of arrivals.

Various Notes.

The strike of employees in the railway express service ended May 12, but the service shut down for two days more, until congestion of freight was relieved. Conditions are now normal, much to the relief of wholesalers, who were badly hampered by the temporary abandonment of service.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to Jack Trepel, of Brooklyn, whose wife died May 13. Death followed a severe attack of pneumonia, from which she had suffered for some time.

The preliminary schedule of the International Flower Show has been issued. The liberal prizes offered should draw an unusually fine array of exhibits. The show dates are March 15 to 21, 1920. Assurance has been given that the Grand Central Palace will again be in the hands of the International Exposition Co. long before these dates, although at present it is still used by the government as a hospital.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

There was an unusually large attendance at the monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society held in Pembroke hall May 14, Vice-president Frank Watson presiding. Thos. Richardson was elected an active member and six petitions were received. It was decided to hold a rose show sometime in June, with all arrangements to be left in the hands of the executive committee. A tulip show was held in connection with this meeting and a fine display of blooms was on the exhibition tables. The Darwins were exceptionally fine, considering the inclement weather we have had. Nearly all the fourteen classes were keenly contested. The prize-winners were James McCarthy, James McDonald, Thomas Twigg, F. O. Johnson and Edward Harris. The judges were John F. Johnston, S. J. Trepess and Alexander McKenzie.

The next meeting will be held June 11, at 7 p. m., when the competition will be on twenty-four pods of peas, twelve strawberries and a vase of outdoor flowers, not an annual or shrub. H. G.

think it time to obtain one, either in glass or transfer form? Several of our large supply houses are carrying stocks of glass signs, which they supply to their local trade at the advertised cost, $2, without profit to themselves. The S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia; the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; George B. Hart, Rochester, N. Y.; the William F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y.; the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.; the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh; the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. and the Welch Bros. Co., Boston, are among them. The secretary would like to hear from other wholesale and supply houses which would undertake to place among their local trade a few of these signs. To see one is to buy one, if a retailer.

Money Is Required.

Need it be said again that our publicity committees can not carry out their plans for publicity unless they pay as they go? It is all right, Mr. Nonsubscriber, to commend the work which your brother florists are doing for you, but would it not be better to "cash in" on the good intentions you undoubtedly have, and send to the secretary your check for the amount you are willing to contribute? Get wholly into the game; it needs you. We are trying to raise $100,000 this year and to give back to the contributors many times that amount in increased business. Every subscription is recorded and every item of expense laid before the subscribers. If you want to see what your neighbors have subscribed, write to the secre-

West Plains, Mo.—Spring business with the Cottage Greenhouse and Ozark Pansy Garden is excellent. Rains are coming just right and there is great promise of a fine lot of pansy seed. The firm intends to sow 1,000,000 pansy seeds this year, all of the cut flower and long stem variety.

Salt Lake City, Ut.—An attractive full-page advertisement of Mothers' day, gotten up by the associated florists of the city, appeared in the May 9 issue of the local daily paper. "Say It with Flowers" and the F. T. D. notice had prominent places in the ad, which was devoted mostly to explaining the why and wherefore of the day and how to observe it properly. Cuts of big brother and sister, little brother and sister, all gazing fondly at the smiling mother, lent charm to the advertisement, but there were no flower pictures in it.

The Market.

The wholesale market was in much better condition last week, with larger receipts, smaller demand and much lower prices. There was an excellent supply of roses and carnations, as the cool days of last week caused the quality of these to keep up wonderfully. Among the roses, Russell, Ophelia and Columbia had the call and were not in oversupply. White Killarney was in abundant supply, but not in as strong demand as the other varieties of roses. Carnations were in somewhat weak demand, with prices down to 4 and 6 cents for choice, and growers report a fine crop coming on.

Peonies are now in full crop. Large shipments of cape jasmines are arriving and these, as well as peonies, are in heavy demand for Memorial day. Large consignments of excellent gladioli are coming daily from local growers and the fancy varieties are in big demand. The gladiolus crop in this vicinity promises to be heavy this season.

Sweet peas again are plentiful and have dropped in price to $1.50 and $2 per thousand for a good grade of stock. There is an abundance of snapdragons, Spanish irises, mignonette, calendulas, candytuft and pansies, with a slow demand. Easter lilies, callas, orchids and valley sell well at regular prices. In this market there is always a lively demand for greens, especially asparagus, smilax and ferns.

Meeting of Retail Florists.

The Retail Florists' Association held its regular meeting May 12, in the Knights of Columbus hall. The attendance was not encouraging to the officers, especially in view of the large amount of business which should have been transacted, but which was laid over for the next meeting, when a better attendance will be looked for.

A general discussion took place on Mothers' day business, which was reported as the best ever experienced. The high prices of cut stock for this day were condemned and the matter should be taken up by the Florists' Board of Trade at its next meeting. Publicity also came into the discussion and it was generally acknowledged that advertising pays, as it surely helped to boom Mothers' day business. The next meeting will be held May 26.

Various Notes.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle was entertained by Mrs. C. C. Windler, at her home on Virginia avenue, and the ladies spent a most pleasant afternoon.

The old buildings at 1406 and 1408 Pine street are being wrecked to make room for the new building which is being erected for the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co.

A call at the Mullanphy Florists' Grand avenue store found all hands busy and the boss, Nat. Kingsley, says business was never better. Big preparations are being made for Memorial day.

At the store of the Pieper Floral Co., on North Grand avenue, Edward Pieper, the manager, stated that the company will build an additional show house at the south side of the office, as the increase in business demands this improvement.

West Plains, Mo.—Spring business with the Cottage Greenhouse and Ozark Pansy Garden is excellent. Rains are coming just right and there is great promise of a fine lot of pansy seed. The firm intends to sow 1,000,000 pansy seeds this year, all of the cut flower and long stem variety.

Salt Lake City, Ut.—An attractive full-page advertisement of Mothers' day, gotten up by the associated florists of the city, appeared in the May 9 issue of the local daily paper. "Say It with Flowers" and the F. T. D. notice had prominent places in the ad, which was devoted mostly to explaining the why and wherefore of the day and how to observe it properly. Cuts of big brother and sister, little brother and sister, all gazing fondly at the smiling mother, lent charm to the advertisement, but there were no flower pictures in it.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

All growers, wholesalers and retailers in this locality report that business for Mothers' day was the best ever. Stock was not overplentiful, but there was enough to go the rounds and prices were satisfactory. The only flowers that rose much in price, were carnations, which brought $15 per hundred. By Sunday morning nothing was left in roses or carnations and at that time many hundreds more could have been sold had they been obtainable.

The market during the last week has been good, no particular let-up being noticed. A brisk demand for cut flowers keeps up, owing to several good-sized weddings and an abundance of funeral work all the time. The supply of roses is larger and the average quality is good. Weather conditions during the last week have been more favorable and stock is plentiful. All grades of roses are in full supply and include Columbia, Ward, Sunburst, September Morn, Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer, Russell, Ophelia, Milady, Prima Donna and Sweetheart. Prices range from 4 cents up. Orchids are in good supply, but there is no particular demand. Snapdragons are plentiful and are seen in all colors. Sweet peas also are plentiful and the majority of excellent quality. They range from $1.50 per hundred up. Daisies are plentiful and sell well.

Easter lilies are in good supply at this time, but the demand is not large. Callas are plentiful and a fair amount of yellow callas is seen in some stores. Carnations are none too plentiful and command good prices. Calendulas are abundant and sell well. Much Spanish iris is on hand and is decidedly fine. There is some good delphinium arriving and it sells well. Cut candytuft of good quality arrives and sells easily. Bulbous stock, both inside and out, is fast waning and becomes more scarce each day. Extra fine Darwin tulips are seen and sell readily. Pansies and forget-me-nots are in fair supply and sell

FRAT-M

FRATERNAL EMBLEMS

What are they?

They are 4-inch reproductions of emblems in the highest-class Gold and Color embossing that can be done.

How does the Florist use them?

They are attached to the ribbon or chiffon of any floral piece.

Why are they of such help to the Florist?

1. The florist can use any color of flowers in the design, as the colors demanded by each organization are embossed on the FRAT-M.
2. The florist does not have to worry about keeping a large stock of wire designs on hand; any pillow, spray or wreath, at the price the organization wants to pay, becomes a special fraternal piece by simply attaching a FRAT-M.
3. They do away with the nuisance of lettering, and the keeping of a supply of letters on hand.
4. They get new standing business for the florist who uses them, for any small organization can get its emblem on any priced piece purchased.
5. They are worth many times their cost, if they were used for door badges alone.

What do they cost?

They cost 20c each, or $2.00 a dozen, and if you will give them a trial, they will do for you what they have done for us. The dies to make each emblem average a cost of $75.00, and yet they are worth that to us in OUR retail business alone. A hustling florist will find them a great help. If you will sit down right now and send an order to your supply house, or to us personally, you will find we have told you the truth.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Trade was satisfactory last week, although there were no large social affairs. There was a fair amount of funeral work and a big demand for flowers for the hospitals, besides a number of small weddings, flowers for table decorations and informal pre-nuptial affairs. The supply was exceptionally short following Mothers' day, but increased toward the middle and latter part of the week. The weather has been much more favorable for production during the last fortnight, and if it continues, a fine supply of both indoor and outdoor flowers for Memorial day may be expected. Already advance orders are coming in to the retail and wholesale establishments through the F. T.

Roses are in excellent demand, particularly Russell, Shawyer, Columbia, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia and Milady. The supply is equal to the demand in these flowers, but carnations are somewhat shy and prices remain firm on these. Sweet peas are selling well, and snapdragons continue in popular favor. A large number of outdoor flowers are taking the place of the fast decreasing greenhouse stock. Peonies from the southwest are arriving in excellent condition. Large irises are in bloom, as also are spiræas and other shrubs. Fine greenhouse-grown gladioli, of the America variety, are being offered in the retail stores at $3 per dozen. Outdoor valley is on hand, but the call for it is not strong. Calla lilies are about equal to the demand. Some handsome Darwin tulips are attracting considerable attention and bring good prices. There are plenty of smaller flowers, such as gypsophilas, forget-me-nots, pansies, sweet alyssum, etc. In blooming plants a few rhododendrons in deep rose are offered for $3 to $5 each. Hydrangeas are $1.50 and up. Yellow and white marguerites, pelargoniums, begonias, Shasta daisy plants, Martha Washington geraniums and a good variety of bedding plants are on the market. The sale of ferns during the last week has been good.

Various Notes.

Excellent America gladioli, the first of the season, are being cut at the greenhouses of the Flick Floral Co.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey report a most satisfactory Mothers' day trade as far as the demand was concerned, but not enough stock to meet it. They have a large crop of lettuce, which they are selling to local grocers. Bedding plants of every variety are moving with a vim at their range.

Miss Catherine Vesey is home for a visit from Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., where she is a member of the Soldier Players' Company. She has been touring the country with this theatrical concern.

The Doswell Floral Co. reports that it specialized in made-up baskets and hampers of blooming plants for Mothers' day and that they proved quite popular. Shasta daisy plants are attracting buyers here.

The Knecht-Freese Floral Co. is enjoying a record sale of bedding plants since the arrival of the warm weather.

Rhododendrons are being featured at Edgar Wenninghoff's store. He is having a good sale of these and hydrangeas.

Various Notes.

E. G. Gillett reports that he has received word from C. J. Ohmer, West Palm Beach, Fla., that the latter, with his wife and family, expects to come north for the summer.

C. E. Critchell has been having his banner year in the handling of huckleberry.

Frank Schumann, of Delhi, has been sending some excellent sweet peas to the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange for several weeks.

L. H. Kyrk had some excellent cornflowers last week. They were from George Klotter's place and sold readily.

The William Murphy Co. has been handling a fine lot of gladioli during the last fortnight.

ing time. And, after all this business had been taken care of, large forces worked all night on orders for Sunday. Stock was exhausted by noon. Prices were good. There was a fairly good variety, but stock was not plentiful, because there had been heavy demands on growers for a long time, business in general having been unusually good for months. Carnations sold for $2.50 to $3.50.

This week finds stock coming in well and nearly everything in good condition. Beauties are not particularly good yet and there are few on the market. Roses are good, ranging from 4 to 15 cents. Carnations sell at 5 cents. Peonies are arriving and are from 6 to 8 cents. Valley is 4 cents and sweet peas are 50 cents to $1 per hundred.

Some of the growers are beginning to cut peonies and are putting them in cold storage for Decoration day. Indications are that there will be a good supply of these flowers, but they will all be needed, for this year's Decoration day promises to be better than any other. Orders are being received now by the wholesalers. One grower has already had a bid for 20,000 peonies, but has not decided to take it.

Cupid Stops in Flower Store.

The store of the William L. Rock Flower Co. was the scene of a wedding May 10. The place was crowded with customers when a couple with a minister entered. It took but a few minutes for the minister and the groom to explain matters to Mr. Rock and a setting was quickly arranged for the ceremony. Incidentally, it developed that Mr. Froman, the minister, had married Mr. and Mrs. Rock twenty-six years before. The wide stairway leading to the office on the second floor of the store was more fully bedecked with blossoms, a bower was improvised for the bridal couple and the service was read while clerks and customers stood around. This is the second marriage to take place in this store and Mr. Rock is willing to accommodate any couple desiring the place in future.

Various Notes.

A local chapter of the Burroughs Nature Club, a national organization, has been formed in Kansas City. The object of the club is to promote interest in nature and to create greater interest in the preservation of birds, wild animals, flowers and trees.

William L. Rock is one of the directors of the Continental National bank, an institution which has just been organized and which has a capital of $1,000,000.

Herman Rogell, an employee of T. J. Noll & Co., has returned home after twenty-seven months' service overseas and is back at his old post again.

A tree planting service, in honor of the fallen heroes of the American School of Osteopathy, was held in Kirksville, Mo., recently. This practice seems to be growing steadily and it is a movement which will be encouraged by all nurserymen. J. E. K.

Waterbury, Conn.—George T. Ryan, of Ryan & Powers, this city, has been appointed to have charge of the distribution of trees and seeds in connection with a "city beautiful" campaign which is being carried out.

Nyack, N. Y.—During a tour of some patrons around the plant of E. H. Pye inquiry was made for the "lager beer plant," which later was found to be the aspidistra. "There's something in a name," observed our confrere, "and when the amber liquid is forgotten, the aspidistra may flourish to perpetuate its memory."

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.; thirty-seventh annual convention, Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 24, 25, 26, 1919.

A HEARING granted May 7 by Governor Smith, at the executive chamber, Albany, N. Y., on Assemblyman Witter's seed bill (Int. 183) resulted in the governor vetoing the bill.

IN view of the easy market, an unusual number of seed salesmen are packing their grips for a trip to Montgomery, Ala., where the Southern Seedsmen's Association meets next week, May 26 and 27.

THE Holland bulb travelers are hastening home. Several sailed on the Nieuw Amsterdam May 14 and numerous bookings have been made for the Noordam, sailing May 23, and the Rotterdam, June 14. The Sloterdyk sails from Baltimore May 31.

OUR friends, the canners, think they see a large white light. Inspection and certification of their merchandise seems a matter of certainty and to avoid having it done by outsiders they propose that their national association fix the standards, inspect and certify, at the same time advertising coöperatively. It may be a hunch for the seed trade.

THE growers of gladiolus bulbs have been busy planting. Practically everyone has exerted himself to the utmost to increase his acreage. Still there are those who believe there will be a shortage of bulbs for next season. Of course Holland is shut out. Both the demand for bulbs and the supply of first size stock next season depend somewhat on the demand for cut flowers during the approaching summer.

MANY Holland bulb travelers make the statement that England has been opened to them for the 1919 season, but the British trade press has recorded no official action. The travelers' statements appear to be based on the report in The Review for April 17, that the British government had asked the trade what its wishes were in the matter of admitting Holland bulbs and that a trade meeting had voted unanimously that "the embargo on the importation of the following bulbs from Holland be removed, and that free imports of these varieties be permitted: Hyacinths, early-flowering single and double tulips, crocus, Spanish iris, gladioli, chionodoxa, Scilla sibirica, and that the embargo on other bulbs be continued for the period of one year from April 1, 1919."

SOUTHERN SEEDSMEN.

An interesting program has been arranged for the first annual convention of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, to be held in Montgomery, Ala., May 26 and 27. The first session will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning of the first day. The program follows:

Welcome Address and Reply.
President's Address, Louis B. Reuter.
Secretary's Report, Frank S. Love.
"The Production and Supply of Velvet Beans for Seed Purposes," address by Professor J. F. Duggar, director of the Alabama Experiment Station.
Afternoon Session, 2:30 o'clock.
"Seed Laws," address by Curtis Nye Smith, attorney for American Seed Trade Association.
"Advertising," address by Fred I. Meyer, advertising manager for Chris Reuter.

SEED FOR CENTRAL EUROPE.

Survey Shows Shortage.

Dutch, Italian and French seed dealers state that Germany and Austria-Hungary are practically out of field seeds and will have to depend for them on foreign sources next year at least, according to representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture, who recently returned from an investigation of field seeds in England, France, Belgium, Holland and Italy.

Foreign seedsmen anticipate a heavy trade with the countries of central Europe and American dealers will have to take this fact into consideration in making their plans for the future. The red clover seed crop of 1918 was short in Italy, as well as in France. Normally, both of these countries export large quantities of red clover seed. Italy exported to Hungary and the United States, while France exported chiefly to England and the United States.

Italy Stops Exports.

Because of the short crop of 1918, the Italian government prohibited exports of red clover seed, although some were allowed to go to France. High prices in Italy would have restricted exports of red clover seed to America, even if exports had been permitted.

There is no demand in Italy for American grass and clover seeds, because the Italians do not use the grasses extensively grown in the United States and produce enough clover and alfalfa seed for their own use and for export. Rye grass is the most important meadow grass in Italy. The balance of the meadow consists of wild grasses, in combination with red and white clover and alfalfa. Recently the price of clover hay has been so high that much of the clover crop, which otherwise would have been saved for seed, was mowed.

Belgium in Need.

The supply of oats, red clover and grass seeds is short in Belgium at this time. Some of these seeds could have been supplied by the United States if a request for them had been made last fall. It is, of course, too late to export any American seeds to Belgium for the current season. Belgian livestock, however, will not suffer, because it has decreased to such an extent that there is plenty of pasture for the remaining animals for next year at least.

Efforts are being made to establish an organized vegetable seed industry in Belgium. The director of horticulture of Belgium has expressed the hope that his country will be made self-supporting in the matter of seed supplies. The supply of vegetable seed available at present is said to be ample for the use of Belgium this year, in most cases. If any scarcity develops, it probably can be overcome by importing some of the large stocks in France and Holland.

Holland Has Specialties.

As is widely known, Holland is one of the chief vegetable seed producing countries, particularly of cabbage, cauliflower, turnip, spinach and kale seed. It is expected that importations from Holland, as soon as normal trade relations are reëstablished, will replenish the stocks of those varieties of cabbage and cauliflower that have been reported as low in the United States. In North Holland the cost of producing seed has increased at least 100 per cent during the war, chiefly because of higher wages. Therefore, vegetable seed prices are expected to remain higher than they were in 1914.

The only vegetable seed that Holland imports extensively from the United States is lettuce seed. England, France and other European countries also buy lettuce seed from the United States, because it is grown cheaper and sells for less in California than in Europe. Before the war, Holland imported large quantities of American field seeds, most of which, however, were merely in transit to other countries, chiefly Germany.

American Products Unpopular.

As a rule, American field seeds are not used in Holland, because most of the hay of that country consists of rye grass and red clover. The Dutch farmers do not like the American strain of red clover, because the plants are hairy. The best European strains of red clover are smooth and produce much better hay. On this account, about the only use the Dutch farmers make of American red clover seed is as a green manuring crop, which they use probably as extensively as any other country. The recent price of red clover seed in Holland has been at least 300 per cent more than prevailing prices during 1914.

During the war the Dutch government exercised strict control over the exportation of seed and temporarily suspended exports. The government required that each seedsman furnish frequent statements concerning the seed he had on hand. In this way an accurate account was kept of the seed needed for domestic purposes and export permits were granted only when a surplus was available.

Dutch See Opportunity.

According to figures furnished by the commercial attache of the American legation at The Hague, there were no exports from and no imports of seeds into the Netherlands during 1916, 1917 and 1918. No opportunity is seen for American seedsmen to sell any quantity of field or vegetable seeds to Holland for domestic use. The Dutch field seed dealers, however, anticipate an active trade with Germany soon after the peace treaty has been signed and it is probable that considerable quantities of American seeds will pass through Holland on their way to Germany.

MARKET FOR AMERICAN SEEDS.

Scandinavian Wants.

There is a great demand in Denmark, says Consul General William H. Hale, Copenhagen, Denmark, in the United States commerce reports, for the following American seed: Red clover, alsike, timothy, white clover, Kentucky blue grass and other grass seeds. There is demand also for cocksfoot, Canadian blue grass, carrot, onion, parsley, cucumber, melon, beans and peas, beet, celery, chicory, leek and tomato seeds.

No official statistics as to imports and exports have been published since 1913, but during that year the importations of various seeds from all countries were, in kilos, as follows: Red clover, 1,992,000; other clover, 1,207,300; timothy, 822,100; grass seed, 867,200; beet seed, 1,204,400; turnip, cabbage, cauliflower, carrot, 147,300; other garden seed, 136,300.

Look to United States.

Not all of these imports, of course, came from the United States, but it is safe to say that if the United States can supply the demand, the larger portion of Denmark's imported seeds in the next few years will come from America.

The commoner classes of seeds, such as cabbage, peas, radish, carrot, timothy, clover and several others, are of domestic cultivation in Norway, according to Consul General Marion Letcher, Christiania, Norway; but all other classes must be supplied from abroad. Previous to the war, seeds were obtained from the United States, France, Holland, England, Germany, Denmark, Italy and Russia. At the present time, however, there are no imports from Russia, Germany or Italy.

Norwegian Imports.

In 1917, Norway imported 6,071,628 kilos of linseed, 297,150 kilos of rapeseed, and 159,722 kilos of all other kinds of seeds. The largest imports of linseed occurred in May, June and October; of rapeseed in February.

Information obtained from a Norwegian seed expert is to the effect that American seeds can be readily sold in Norway. The varieties used in Norway do not differ materially from the seed placed on the market in the United States. It would probably be most advantageous in entering this market to establish an agency in Christiania for the whole country.

Regarding Shipping Terms.

The usual terms of sale before the war were sixty to ninety days' credit, with a small discount for cash. Wartime terms have, of course, been much stricter, generally calling for confirmed bankers' credit in New York, payable to the American exporter before the goods are shipped. The Norwegian merchants prefer prices quoted c. i. f. Christiania. The English language is in general use in business circles and can be employed in correspondence.

A list of seed dealers in Norway and Denmark may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, or its district or coöperative offices.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

While carnations have been a little overplentiful the last few days, the demand has kept up well and there is every reason to believe that prices will be maintained until after Decoration day. The greenhouse stock is of fair quality only, but the outdoor and lath house flowers are much better than usual at this time. Gladioli are coming freely now and will be more plentiful each week. There should be a fair supply for the holiday. Roses are about as last reported and their quality is not of the best for long-distance shipping. Apparently there will be a big demand for all classes of "everlastings." Statice, helichrysum and others are fine. Shasta daisies again ship well and are in great request. Outside of cornflowers, there is little in the way of good shipping stock in small flowers, although they are good for local retailers' display. Orchids are even with the demand. Greens are not plentiful.

Various Notes.

C. Brazee, of Wilmington, says he will increase his plantings of statice considerably this year, at least five additional acres going in.

At the Superior Nursery all hands are busy shipping dahlias and other dormant stock, as well as a big quantity of local ferns and flowering plants. A new fern, a sport of Nephrolepis Whitmanii, shows great promise. It has lost most of the crest or fringe and is practically smooth-leaved, hard in appearance and texture. It should be splendid for porch and window plants and is an unusually rapid breeder. It is quite a distinct break, looking more like a pteris than a nephrolepis. The pretty N. Smithii is also being raised here in considerable quantities.

Mr. and Mrs. Gutting are considering a fishing trip to the Bear valley country shortly.

D. MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco, was a visitor this week.

George Eischen has resigned his position with J. W. Wolters, at least temporarily, in order to help out his father at his Montebello ranch. Mr. Eischen, Sr., has not been as well of late as his friends would wish.

H. N. Gage is passing the cigars this week, the occasion being the arrival of an eight-pound boy at his home. Both mother and child are doing well.

C. E. Morton, of Phoenix, Arix., has been visiting in the city this week, having driven up with a friend. Business, he says, is good and flowers more or less plentiful at Phoenix.

Tassano Bros. have their new greenhouses about ready for the glass at the Artesia nursery. Angelo Tassano, who runs this end, says he is well satisfied with the season's business there.

W. B. Clarke, salesman for the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka and San Jose, has been calling on the trade this week. His sister, Miss Pansy Clarke, accompanied him on his trip from San Jose, which was made via the inland route, taking in Fresno, Bakersfield and other cities. Both claimed a most enjoyable time.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Judging from the combined reports of growers, wholesalers and retailers, Mothers' day business reached a highly satisfactory figure in proportion to the special effort expended. Stock was plentiful and good, with the exception of carnations, and city sales were generally above expectations. Already certain members of the trade are beginning to advocate concerted action for the next Mothers' day to stimulate interest in the custom of remembering mothers, both living and dead, with flowers, realizing that from the increase in business this year over last the custom offers great possibilities for the florists' trade. The volume of shipping orders to the inter-mountain country and near-by points was proportionately heavier than the amount of flowers needed for local consumption. This is one of the reasons for stimulated effort here, it being seen that adjacent cities and towns have profited more by Mothers' day than the local trade. From present plans, however, it is doubtful whether this will occur again.

Roses continue in splendid bloom and wide variety, with prices back about where they were before the Mothers' day rush. The supply cleans up fairly well from day to day. Irish Elegance is especially fine, weather conditions allowing a perfection of bloom rather unusual here, and the foliage, which adds greatly to the attraction of this particular rose, leaves nothing to be desired. Russell and Ophelia show excellent quality and Columbia is next in popularity.

Carnations are not abundant and the quality does not average high. This has a tendency to divert attention to other stock. Good white varieties were at a premium for Mothers' day. Outdoor sweet peas are about at their best. In seasonable offerings, herbaceous peonies are a dominant factor. Many downtown stores employ this flower extensively in window trimming and display work generally. Never were there finer peonies offered here than now. Delphinium is just starting and its quality affords room for improvement. Snapdragons and hawthorns are plentiful and good. Iris is nearing the end of its season, but enough good stock to meet the demand is still arriving. There is an abundance of orchids and gardenias, both of which sell seasonably well.

Various Notes.

L. Picetti, manager of the local store of the Chas. C. Navlet Co., says that the season for planting has been longer than usual this year. In all varieties of bedding plants, flowers as well as vegetables, the demand has been heavier than for some years. At present this firm is supplying a brisk demand for flowering rose bushes. Some of the bushes that were on hand this week reached a height of four or five feet.

Mr. Hallowell, of the Hallowell Plant Co., reports a strong demand for bedding plants. He has had a big call for dahlia roots also. Although planting is just beginning, his stock is practically cleaned up. Insecticides have been in big demand at this establishment for some time and continue to sell in quantity, pests being more annoying this year than usual.

Mr. Ritter, of Shellgrain & Ritter, in the Sutter hotel building, reports a close clean-up on stock for Mothers' day. Extensive preparations are now being made for Memorial day business, the firm anticipating banner sales.

The staff of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. is somewhat reduced at present. Frank D. Pelicano has been ill for over two weeks and three other members of the force are also on the sick list. The remainder of the organization, consequently, has time for nothing but work, work, work. Business has been decidedly good with this firm.

A nice supply of the new Laddie carnation, a splendid pink bloom of remarkable size and unusual length of stem, has been arriving here and meets with immediate favor. The new carnation is grown by N. Peterson, of San Mateo, proprietor of the Peninsular Nursery.

Some particularly fine orchids were seen this week at the establishment of Podesta & Baldocchi. Mr. Podesta said that the blooms had never been superior to the ones on hand at present. This firm also had some splendid sprays of Rose Hawthorne and a quantity of Irish Elegance roses, which formed an entire window display during the middle of the week.

The store of B. M. Joseph reports a big volume of business, funeral work swelling the recent sales to a considerable extent. Several large weddings are booked for early June, for which quantities of flowers will be needed.

Avansino Bros. had a few early, single lavender scabiosas of good quality and some rather good delphiniums. Mr. Avansino spoke particularly of the good quality of herbaceous peonies now on hand. This firm cleaned up well on tree peonies earlier in the season.

F. C. Jaeger was well pleased with Mothers' day results and anticipates a good Memorial day business, with plenty of stock on hand. This firm continues busy on funeral work, sending a fine pall to a Stockton funeral the other day. The alterations on the windows in the Powell street shop are nearly finished and Mr. Jaeger expects to be able to display some artistic designs when the change is completed. He has a fine assortment of potted hydrangeas on hand, which he says are good sellers this season.

F. Claverie, old-time San Francisco florist, for several years connected with the American Florist, has been ill with dropsy for six months or more. The trade extends sympathy to Mr. Claverie's family in this their time of trouble.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. keeps busy with the usual amount of special decorating and Manager Fred Bertrand reports a brisk sale of cut flowers of

SPLENDENS

Fischer's beautiful lavender Freesia—the great commercial sort—the Freesia that can be used for any and all purposes, from wedding decorations to funeral work, where lavender tone is wanted.

Can be used alone or combined with other tall flowers for decorative effect. Given rich culture, will produce large blooms with strong, stiff stems, two feet long and over, with luxuriant foliage well up the stem. Color is a lovely shade of bluish lavender, varying slightly; but all are of equal beauty and elegance.

Great care was used in propagating this stock and nothing but the choicest sorts were used. Each sort had to possess the following qualities: Large size; long, strong stems; healthy, vigorous growth; strong fragrance; beautiful color, and great keeping qualities. When a well grown bench of this superfine Freesia is in bloom, it is a grand sight.

Don't stock up with poor Freesias, when stock of this most elegant Freesia can be procured.

All of my other varieties of Freesias are of the same fine stock, flowers of which are eagerly bought by the best people of the land at prices never before paid for Freesias. I have now stock of SPLENDENS in sufficient quantity to offer it to the trade at a lower price than was ever possible before. Don't wait, as the price will not be any lower for some time to come, if ever, as growing conditions here in California are too uncertain to grow valuable stock outside. Therefore, stock will never be plentiful. Other good varieties will follow in quick succession, as soon as stock is ready.

Prices: $50.00 per 1000; $7.00 per 100; $1.50 per dozen. 250 lots at 1000 rates. Cash with order. Usual trade discount to dealers. Only good, flowering bulbs will be offered for sale.

all kinds. A comparatively new variety of flowering shrub, grown in San Mateo and displayed in quantity for the first time this year, is Leptospermum Nichollii, a spring bloomer of excellent cutting qualities. The flower is a tiny deep red blossom, extremely effective in basket work, either alone or combined with contrasting or harmonizing colors. Several striking baskets were arranged for the special display of the new bloom, which attracted much favorable attention. It was this firm that furnished the smilax wreaths entwined with typical California spring flowers for the returning members of the 364th Masonic Ambulance Corps, which arrived in San Francisco last week.

P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., stated that Mothers' day closed most satisfactorily for the firm and that business continues brisk, with every indication of an exceptionally good Memorial day trade. This store has displayed lately a number of handsome spring baskets of particularly fine coloring effects.

A. O. Stein has been kept busy with floral decorations for many social affairs. A recent commission was an elaborate luncheon decoration, calling for three umbrella-shaped baskets, filled with a profusion of spring blossoms of every description and joined with garlands of sweet peas in pastel shades. The entire lot of blooms came from the San Francisco store.

Miss L. Lockyer, who has charge of the stand at the Fairmont hotel, has the sincere sympathy of the trade in PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Market conditions during the last two weeks remained about normal, with a good supply of all seasonable flowers and potted plants, excepting ferns, which are rather scarce. Dealers in bedding stock are doing a large business on account of the suburbanites getting their flower gardens in shape. Business on the whole is all that could be desired.

Florists all affirm in glowing terms that business on Mothers' day exceeded any previous year's business by a large margin. Carnations were the favorite sellers, although a great many roses and other flowers were sold for this occasion. The people must be taught that Mothers' day is not strictly a carnation day, but that all flowers are equally appropriate.

Various Notes.

Chappell's Flower Shop reports a good business and the sales for Mothers' day far exceeded those of any previous year.

Lubliner's new store opened April 1. Mr. Strausse, the manager, reports business more than satisfactory. Many compliments are received for their beautiful window decorations. The window is one of the finest and largest in the city.

Clarke Bros. have a fine display of gladioli and potted hydrangeas this week. Gladioli and snapdragons, although of good quality, are moving slowly.

Growers are holding back their stock as much as possible for Decoration day, as it is a foregone conclusion that business for that day will be enormous.

It is to be regretted that some of the flower stores remain open all day Sunday. There seems to be no good reason why they should not close at least half a day. Their funeral work and mail orders could all be taken care of by noon. The amount of business done during the week should be sufficient to make it unnecessary for the stores to remain open all day Sunday.

Montebello, Cal.—Roy F. Wilcox & Co. have been extremely busy with spring work and getting the place into condition. Several carloads of palms recently have been shipped east. Mr. Wilcox says it will be some time before the business is fully established on the basis planned, as it is the intention to specialize strongly on kentias and some other good staples for the eastern markets.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; forty-fourth annual convention, Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 25 to 27, 1919.

THE nursery trade has no complaint to make on the season now closing. It has been far better than seemed possible a year ago.

ARTICLES of incorporation were issued recently for the Meadowbrook Nurseries, 104 Tenafly road, Englewood, N. Y. The capital stock is given as $45,000.

WITHIN twenty-four hours after fire had destroyed the buildings of the Ferris Nursery Co., of Hampton, Ia., orders were being filled, so quickly did the concern recover from its loss.

THE California Association of Nurserymen will hold its annual meeting at Riverside May 26 and 27. One of the chief subjects for discussion will be the ability of California growers to supply stock which can no longer be imported from Europe.

DUPUY & FERGUSON, of Montreal, report business that taxes the capacity of their double store, recently remodeled and enlarged. The tacking on of a nursery department has proved to be a wise addendum and the amount of stock sold has exceeded their expectations.

WANTED—CO-OPERATION!

We think The Review's idea of getting impressions from different men in the trade is a good one, as we are always much interested in reading every article about the nursery business that we see in the paper.

We have nothing new to bring before the trade, but should like to say a few things. One of the most important is coöperation among those in business. We should like to see the nursery business get on a higher plane and cut out the reckless competition by price-cutting that has been the bane of the nursery business for the last half century. The writer has heard this talked over at conventions for a great many years and little progress has been made, but now, when all business is being reconstructed and men are becoming accustomed to talking more openly to their competitors, we think there is some chance of moving forward. Unfortunately, the buying public usually judges nursery stock by the price. Still, in the last few years we have seen an improvement in this and people are now commencing to know some little difference between good trees and poor trees.

If nurserymen had some idea of what it costs them to grow trees they would certainly not be so foolish as to sell their stock lower than the cost of production, but a good system of cost-accounting has never been devised for the nursery business and it is a hit-or-miss proposition. We have always calculated our costs on a percentage and we know how much we must ask for our stock to make a profit. We know our overhead expenses and know that these must be made up before a profit can be looked for. People are willing to pay a good price for a good article and that is a point that nurserymen should strive for —to produce a good article and then ask a good price for it. The people will be better satisfied and the nurseryman will make a little money.

The convention at Chicago this year promises to be of unusual interest to the nursery trade and every nurseryman who is alive to the interests of the business should be present. All should give their opinions and not merely sit around listening to the papers that are read and seldom commented on. Each one of us has some opinion that might help the trade in general and we should be willing to speak out and help. We certainly hope that some constructive plan will be worked out by which nurserymen in general will realize that the nearer each one comes to asking the same price for the same article, the better it is for them and for the nursery trade.

CONIFERS FROM CUTTINGS.

Will you tell me the right time to take cuttings of such conifers as the arbor-vitæ, retinispora, cupressus, etc.? Please state, also, what is the best form of bed and the right kind of wood to use. I should like to get a book concerning the propagation of conifers, both by seeds and cuttings. Can you suggest any such book?

C. B. N.—Ga.

It is not expected, of course, that any brief directions about propagation by cuttings will be equally applicable to all these conifers, as the methods used for the numerous species and varieties differ considerably. However, the most common practice is to take cuttings of half-ripened or fairly mature wood late in summer or in fall, insert them in well drained pots of sandy soil and place them in a cool greenhouse or well protected frame, where they are kept in a moderately moist condition through the greater part of the winter. By late winter or early spring the cuttings are well calloused and are then placed in gentle heat, where they root freely. If a little bottom heat is available, it will stimulate the formation of the roots. There does not seem to be any reliable book that treats exclusively of the propagation of evergreens, but the general subject of propagation is discussed in M. G. Kains' "Plant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice," which costs $1.75 and may be obtained through The Review.

75,000 Potted Cannas American Pedigree Choice Plants

THERE have been a lot of disappointments with potted Cannas, because they had been forced so hard the plants were soft. Also, because of poor packing and bruised foliage.

Our 75,000 potted plants have all been grown normally. If anything, on the cool side.

The risk involved in buying Canna Roots is eliminated in these started plants.

Every plant we send out is good and husky; has firm foliage; is warranted true to name, of superior Conard & Jones stock.

Plants ready for immediate shipment.

City of Portland 3½ ft. $15 per 100
Deep salmon pink. Blooms early and continuously. Foliage is green.

Comte de Sachs 4 ft. $ 6 per 100
Clear crimson scarlet without markings; flower heads large and full. Foliage deep bronzy green.

Conewingo 5 ft. $ 7 per 100
Intense, deep fiery scarlet. Foliage bronze—beautiful plum color at base, shading to rich olive green at tip.

Dragon 3 ft. $10 per 100

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY.

Committees Meet.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society, in conjunction with the nomenclature committee, was held at the Grand hotel, New York, May 12.

A report from the treasurer was presented, showing the finances of the society to be in good shape. A memorial resolution in recognition of the work and activities in the dahlia world of the late J. H. Slocombe, of New Haven, Conn., was adopted.

The members of the two committees, with all the officers of the society, were constituted a board of judges to inspect and judge the new varieties of dahlias planted this year in the society's trial garden, conducted by the Connecticut Agricultural College, at Storrs, Conn. It was decided that the day to be selected for the official inspection should be a "Society day," when all members and friends of the society would be welcomed at the garden.

Fall Show Schedule.

A preliminary schedule of classes for the fall show, to be held under the auspices of the American Institute, in the Engineering building, 25 to 33 West Thirty-ninth street, New York, September 23 to 25, was prepared and adopted. It was decided that in all classes calling for decorative arrangements, the use of other flowers, grasses or foliage will be allowed, to bring out the colors of the dahlias, but dahlias must predominate.

The matter of registration with the society of names of new dahlias was discussed at considerable length. It had been reported that duplication of names was becoming so general as to cause regrettable confusion in catalogue descriptions. For instance, three varieties had been given the name of General Pershing, each different in color and classification. It was decided to inaugurate a department of registration, which, it is hoped, will at least minimize this evil.

New Naming System.

Raisers of dahlias are requested, at naming time, to send to the secretary a description of the dahlia to be named, with the proposed name and an application for registration. The application will be advertised and, if no objection be received within a specified period, the name selected will be registered. All dahlias presented for registration must be distinct varieties, mere varietal differences not being considered. The coöperation of local societies and horticultural organizations is to be solicited in this work and, in the case of an award of a certificate to a variety, it is to be recommended that the name of the variety be submitted to the American Dahlia Society for registration prior to the issue of a certificate.

3. Tubers cannot be received after June 1; plants to June 30.

DISCOLORED SALVIA FOLIAGE.

We are having difficulty with our salvias. After they had been standing in 4-inch pots for some time, their leaves gradually became yellow. We have used good, old soil, with the addition of some new, rich black soil, and have kept them on the dry side at times. The plants, when transferred from the propagating bench to 2½-inch pots, were perfectly green. We might expect the old leaves to turn yellow, as they naturally do, but the entire plants have a yellowish tint, instead of being dark green. Enclosed you will find some sample leaves. K. & S. C.—Wis.

It is my opinion that the trouble is due to one or more of three conditions. Either the plants have been allowed to remain in the 4-inch pots too long and have become hard and woody, or they have been overwatered, or the temperature has been too low for them. Salvias are liable to take on a yellow cast when any of these three conditions have been allowed to prevail, but, unless they are in extremely bad shape, they will outgrow the trouble after they have been planted outdoors and the weather has become warmer. Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

IS THE BOILER BIG ENOUGH?

We are enclosing a diagram of a boiler made by the Ames Iron Works, Oswego, N. Y. Please inform us whether this boiler will heat 10,800 square feet of glass to a temperature of 55 degrees in zero weather.

B. F. C.—Ida.

The sketch shows the boiler to be of locomotive type, with twenty-four tubes that have an inside diameter of two and one-half inches and are five feet seven inches in length. The shell of the boiler is thirty-two inches in diameter and the firepot is three feet in length. The width of the firepot is not given, but we infer that it is thirty-two inches, the same as the diameter of the boiler. Just what are the dimensions of the grate is not stated, but they are probably four to six inches each way less than those of the firepot.

To heat 10,800 square feet of glass to 55 degrees in zero weather, we would use 3,000 square feet of radiation. Although we have had no experience with the boiler under consideration, we would not think it likely to be economical of fuel for the stated amount of radiation, even if the grate is of the full size of the firepot and if hard coal is used. For use with a good grade of soft coal we would prefer a boiler with a grate twenty-five per cent larger than for hard coal, since, while hard coal represents about 12,000 British thermal units, the average soft coal used in the western states has less than 9,000 B. T. U.

It is not economical to force the draft, especially in a firepot boiler. Although it may be possible to maintain the temperature desired with a boiler of the size mentioned, we would expect greater economy in the fuel and labor, if soft coal is used, with a boiler having about ten square feet of grate area.

WILL INSTALL LARGER BOILER.

I intend to make some changes in the heating system of my greenhouse. The house is 35x100 and is three-quarter-span, with four feet of glass on the north and south sides. The height to the ridge is fifteen feet. At present I have a hot water boiler, but it is not of the needed capacity and I shall put in a larger one. Will you please give me information regarding the proper size of boiler if steam heat is used and also if hot water is used? I am enclosing a sketch of the house. Two 3-inch flow pipes from the boiler are connected with a 4-inch header, from which three 3-inch flow pipes run the length of the house and are connected with a 4-inch header at the farther end of the house. Two 3-inch pipes from the latter header connect with the return coils, one on

Expressions From Men Who Know Boilers

Get the Kroeschell First

Several years ago Mr. ——— corresponded with us in regard to the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler, but was persuaded to install two sectional cast iron boilers which were claimed to be superior to the Kroeschell.

In the meantime we placed a number of Kroeschell Boilers in the immediate vicinity of Mr. ———, and he could not help but notice their great efficiency, and last year, while at the convention, he placed his order for his first Kroeschell. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We like the Kroeschell Boiler very much. It gives entire satisfaction, and it is so easy to fire. I will trade you the two cast iron sectional boilers for another like the Kroeschell I have."

[Signed] Mr. ———, Ohio.

No More Cast Iron Boilers

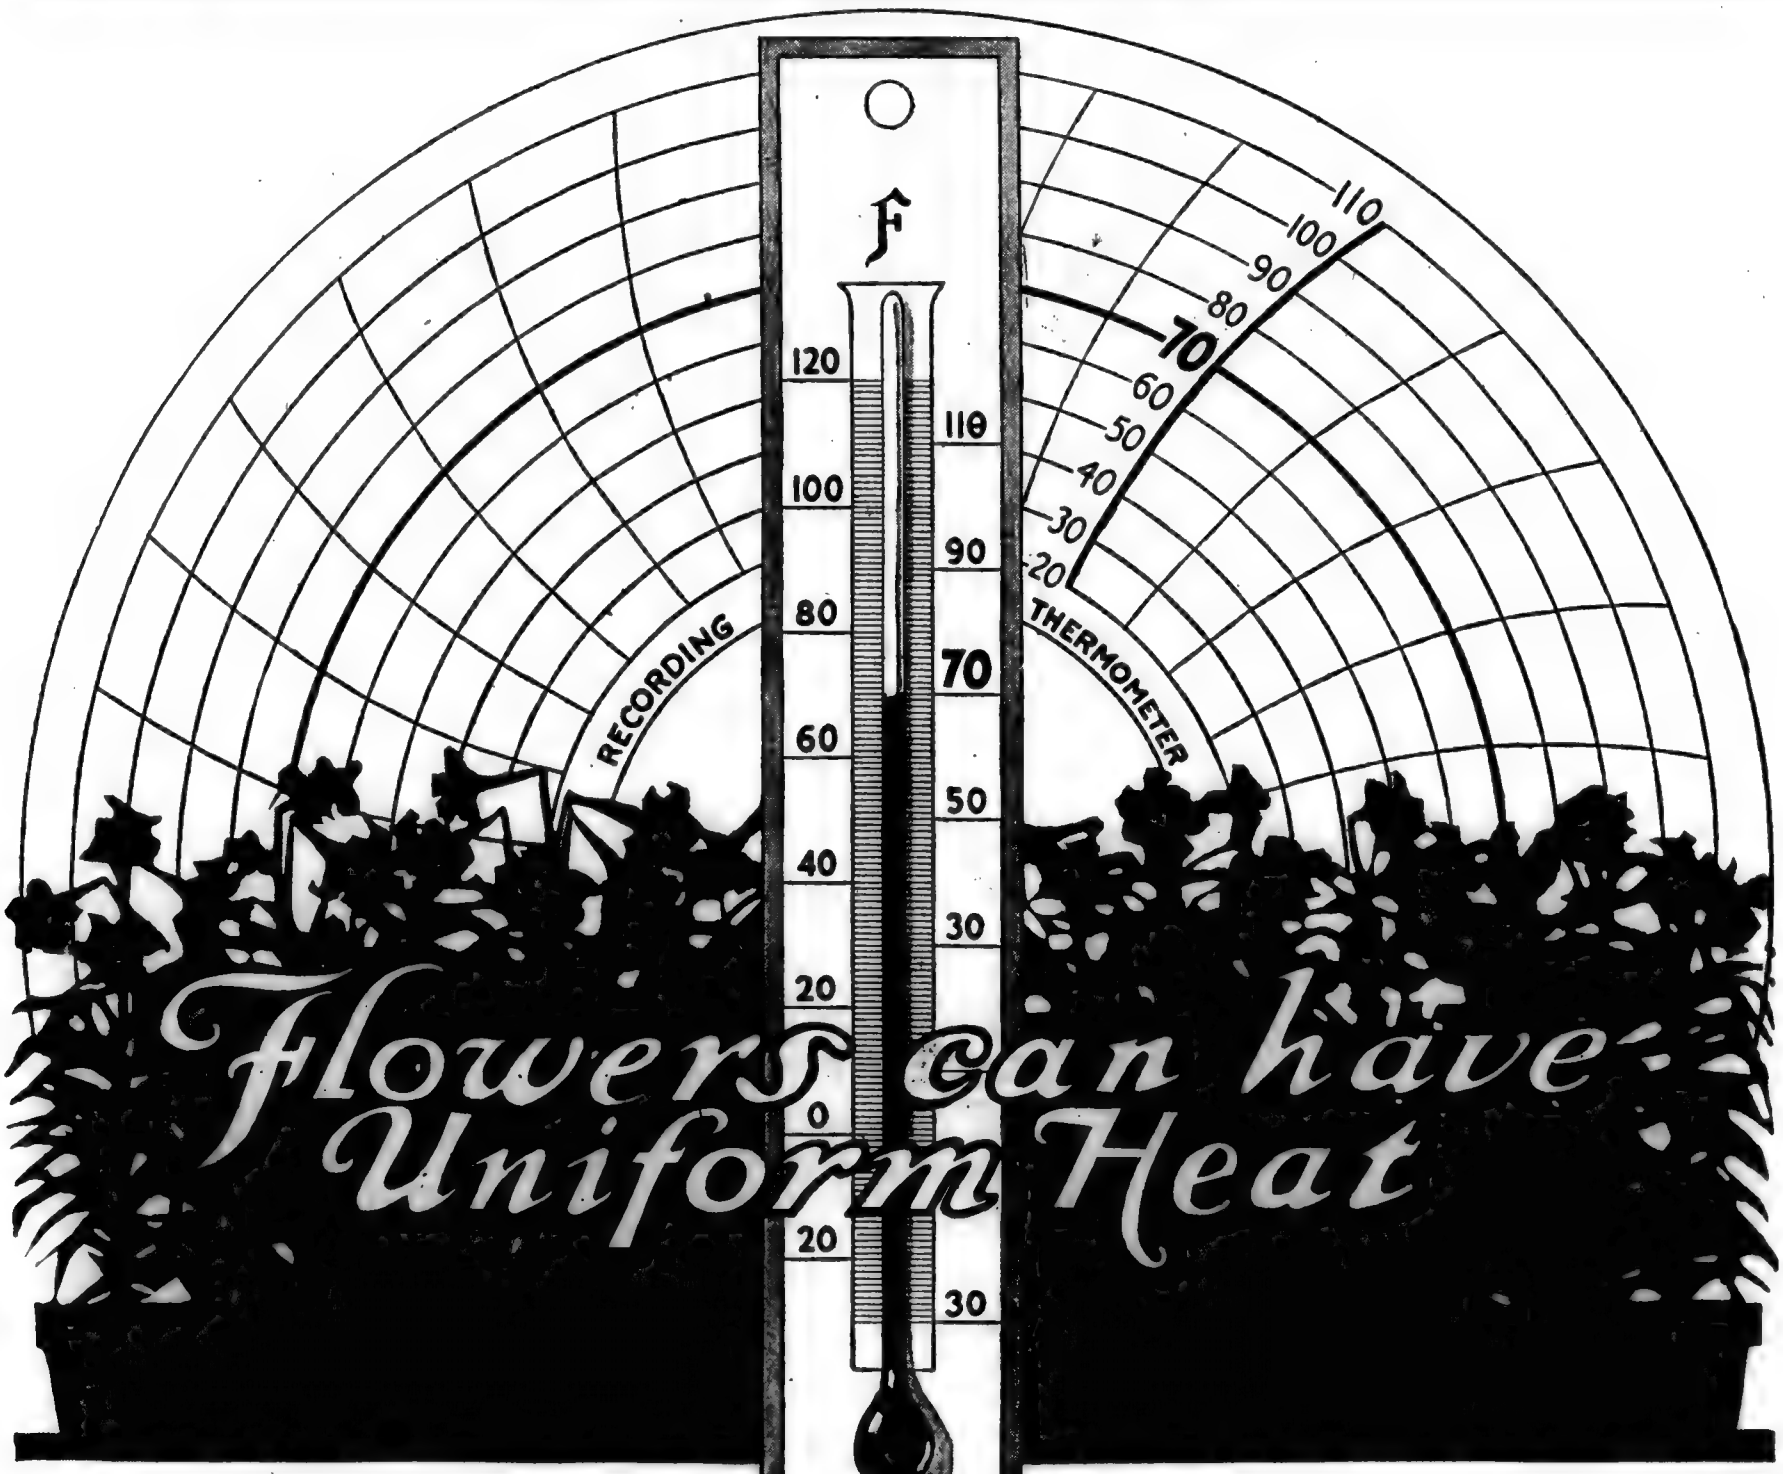
I have used several different makes of boilers but none I like as well as yours.

The Kroeschell is easier to fire, takes less coal and water circulates quicker than any other boiler.

I have used two different makes of sectional boilers—no more cast iron boilers for us.

[Signed] Mr. ——, Mich.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron



The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."

[Signed] Mr. ——, N. Y.

KROESCHELL BOILERS will put high temperatures into your heating lines.

Flowers can have Uniform Heat

KEEP your steam heating lines clear of condensation—keep every inch of the heating surface doing its full work—and you know you are getting that much-desired uniform temperature throughout your greenhouses.

The Morehead "Back-to-Boiler" System gives you this result. It also takes the condensation back to the boilers as pure HOT feed water. The steam is allowed to circulate freely—you get all the heat that is generated in the boilers.

Morehead
Back to Boiler
SYSTEM

With the Morehead System on the job you always get a definite action—a direct response to every additional pound of steam in the boilers.

You also save a very considerable amount of fuel—since the heat of the steam is utilized over and over again, as the condensation reaches the boilers in the form of hot feed water.

Ask us to tell you more about the Morehead System—what it is doing for other growers—what it will do for you.

DEPT. M.

each side of the house. Each return coil consists of one 2-inch pipe and four 1¼-inch pipes, which connect with two 3-inch returns near the boiler. There is a downward slant from the highest point, which is near the boiler.

How much more hot water piping will be needed to heat the house if a suitable boiler is installed? Can I use the piping as it is if I decide to put in a steam boiler? The temperature needed will be about 55 degrees in zero weather. The sides and gables of the house have two thicknesses of single-thick glass and the house is well protected from the north and west winds. I am strongly inclined to use a steam boiler, as it is difficult to get the boiler low enough for hot water. C. G. L.—N. Y.

In addition to the data furnished in the foregoing inquiry, the sketch shows that the house has four feet of glass in each wall. Whether steam or hot water is used for heating, the boiler should have a grate about thirty inches square. This would be rated for something like 2,000 square feet of hot water radiation and 1,000 square feet of low-pressure steam radiation.

For use with steam, the radiation now in the house is not far from the amount required for 55 degrees in zero weather, and no change would be required in the coils on the walls, although we would prefer to use three 1¼-inch instead of the two 2-inch pipes mentioned. While the three 3-inch flows may be retained for steam heating, we would prefer to use four 2-inch flows. If we were to repipe the house for steam, we would use four 1½-inch flow pipes and twelve 1¼-inch returns in the wall coils. For hot water heating we would use four 2½-inch flow pipes and sixteen 2-inch returns.

Proving out the Tractor Principle

The success of the Ideal ractor Lawn Mower was instantaneous. Wherever they have been used they have immediately demonstrated the great advantage and value of the tractor principle of operation for power mowers.

On large estates, municipal parks, school grounds, college grounds, golf courses, cemeteries, etc., the Ideal has delivered the same efficient, economical service. On this page we reproduce a number of actual photos showing Ideals at work in various parts of the country.

Does the Work of Five Men

One man with an Ideal Tractor Lawn Mower can easily cut as much grass per day as four or five hard-working men with hand mowers.

The Ideal has a 30 inch mower. One machine will mow from four to five acres of grass a day on an operating expense of about fifty cents for fuel and oil.

Keeps the Sod Rolled

The Ideal is designed with a roller as an integral part of the machine and the grass is rolled every time it is cut—this keeps the turf firm, smooth and in the finest possible condition.

Cuts Close to the Trees, Walks, Flower Beds and Shrubbery

With the Ideal a man can work just as close to various obstacles as with a hand mower The mower is hung at the front of the frame so that it turns easily and is guided around corners, flower-beds, trees, etc., without difficulty.

The construction of the Ideal is extremely simple—it has no complicated clutches or gears to break, get out of order and cause trouble.

Five Days' Trial — Satisfaction Guaranteed

Write for details of our trial offer. Ideal Power Lawn Mowers are sold on a positive guarantee of satisfaction and we will willingly refund money on any machine that does not prove satisfactory when properly operated.
